Population Of America Gets 'Older' Each Year

Quarter Century Will See Ratio Of Those Over 65 Greatly Increased

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

The make-up of America's population is steadily moving toward the "aged" end of the scale.

The next 25 years will see a great increase in the number and proportion of persons over 65 years old, an increase in the proportion of older workers, and a decline in the ratio of younger workers, children and youths.

The total population will increase from the present 145 million to about 166 million in 1975. But before the year 2000, the total population will turn downward.

These are the highlights of a monumental population study released today by the Census Bureau.

It was prepared by P. K. Whelpton, associate director of the Scripps Foundation in Population Problems, Miami University, Oxford, Ohio. Two Census Bureau experts, Hope Eldridge and Jacob S. Siegel, assisted in preparing the 150-page book.

The forecast is principally concerned with what will happen to our population between now and 1975. It also points out a series of important consequences—business, civic and social—that will come from the growing proportion of older people. This will have serious effects in changing the type of demand for housing, for hospital and medical facilities, for social security coverage and consumer goods.

Another aspect of the future with serious implications, the study declares, is the "profound effect" on the school system resulting from the very high birth rate during the war years.

Terrific Strain Foreseen

A great increase of prospective first-graders is expected between now and 1953. This will put a "terrific strain" on the public school system—first on the elementary schools and then a few years later on junior and senior high schools.

Some of the most important forecasts in the study:

Total Population. The 'medium" forecast of 166 million people in 1975 is based on an assumption that there will be "medium" decreases in both the birth and death rates, and a net immigration of 100,000 persons a year.

Other forecasts are possible, but not likely. One, assuming a small decline in the birth rate, a large decline in the death rate (through improved medical care and knowledge) and a net immigration of 200,000 a year, would bring the population to 185 million by 1975.

On the other extreme, a large decline in the birth rate, a small decline in the death rate, and little or no immigration would mean that the population would reach its peak within 20 years, and then would decline.

Sex ratio. Before 1943 there

Gen. Devers in New Job

Army Reorganizes Command Structure to Speed Training

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

The Army yesterday announced a reorganization of its command structure to speed up training and eliminate duplication and red tape.

Under the order Gen. Jacob L. Devers steps out as commander of Army combat forces in continental United States and takes over the broadened training job of readying both service and fighting troops for war.

Commanders of the six Armies in the United States and of the Military District of Washington are given command of troops and stations formerly under Devers. They will report directly to Gen. Omar N. Bradley, Army Chief of Staff.

While hailed as a move to step up training, military men noted that demobilization and the separation of the Air Force from the Army had left Devers' Army Ground Forces Headquarters largely duplicating the functions of the Army General Staff.

The order abolishes Army Ground Forces as a command, and renames Devers' "Headquarters, Army Ground Forces" as the "Office, Chief, Army Field Forces." It will become a part of the Department of the Army, but will remain at Fort Monroe, Va.

Maj. Gen. Charles L. Bolte, chief of staff to Devers, said the move will free the staff at Fort Monroe from much administrative supply and personnel desk work and let them concentrate on field training. Red tape, he said, has been "stagnating" training.

"There won't be time for mobilization next time," Bolte said. We've got to speed up training to stockpile time now."

General Devers, said Bolte, "in a sense becomes a staff officer under Bradley, charged with training." His new "Office" he added, corresponds to the old offices of the Chiefs of Infantry, Field Artillery, Cavalry etc. "rolled into one."

Packinghouse Workers Offer To Arbitrate

Strike Scheduled Tomorrow Waits On Firms' Reply

By the United Press

Chicago, March 14.—The United Packinghouse Workers (CIO) announced today willingness to arbitrate a wage dispute if the packers make retroactive to January 12 their wage offer of a 9-cent hourly increase.

A Nation-wide strike by the union, scheduled for 12:01 a. m. Tuesday to support demands for a 29-cent increase, would be averted if the packers agree by tomorrow midnight to arbitration and to make the 9-cent increase retroactive.

Packers' representatives were not immediately available for comment, but a source close to one of the leading firms said company policy in the past has been opposed to intervention of any third party in wage disputes.

100,000 Involved

The union announced earlier this month its plans to strike Tuesday the "Big Four" meat packing plants, Armour, Swift, Wilson and Cudahy, and leading independent companies. The walkout would involve about 100,000 CIO members and 100 plants across the country.

Union officials said acceptance of the Government arbitration proposal, made last week, calls for immediate payment of the nine-cent hourly increase offer made by Armour, Swift and Cudahy, retroactive to January 12. It also called for arbitration "of the question as to whether the companies' figure of nine cents or the union demand for 29 cents, or any other figure intermediate between these two points represents an equitable,

Jet 'Furies' Operating From Carrier

Successful Landings Mark New Epoch In Naval Aviation

Aboard USS Boxer, at sea, March 14 (AP).—Ten-mile-a-minute Navy jet planes are now operating for the first time from aircraft carriers.

Disclosure of this history-making advance in United States military aviation was permitted today by the Navy, following fleet operational trials last Wednesday and Thursday aboard this big Essex-class carrier off the California coast.

[The United Press quoted Vice Admiral George Muray, commanding Task Force 1, as saying the operation "marks the turn in Naval aviation."—Editor's Note.]

Sweeping out to sea from North Island Naval Air Station at San Diego, stubby North American "Furies" landed easily in the Boxer's arresting gear. With equal ease they were flown off under their own power, and launched effectively from the forward flight deck catapults.

For practical reasons, only two planes from the Navy's first all-jet fighter squadron—Fighting 5-A—were used in the qualification tests.

First to fly his jet aboard was Comdr. Evan P. (Pete) Aurand, Houston, Tex., squadron commander. Right behind came Lieut. Comdr. Robert M. Elder of Milwaukee, Oreg., squadron executive officer and a wartime veteran like Aurand.

Both pilots then made the first launch under power. They flew off easily, but it was evident that jets still are under the handicap of needing the full length of the flight deck to become air-borne.

The Washington Post Poll

Washington Parents Prefer Boys—If They Could Choose

If Washington parents could predetermine the sex of their children, more of them would prefer boys, The Washington Post Poll reveals, but many would like children of both sexes.

Twenty-nine per cent have a preference for boys and 19 per cent would rather have girls. Seventeen per cent refuse to make a choice because they feel that boys and girls are equally welcome.

But the largest group, 35 per cent, say they would want some of each to make a well-balanced family.

Asked which are more fun to raise, the women tended to vote for little girls, while the men selected little boys. But the largest group of both men and women said there is no difference in the amount of enjoyment derived from raising sons and daughters.

These findings of The Washington Post Poll are based on interviews with a representative cross-section of adults living in the District and nearby Maryland and Virginia.

Local residents were asked:

Which do you personally think are more fun (more enjoyable) to raise—boys or girls?

Answers were divided as follows:

	Total	Men	Women
Boys are more fun to raise	29%	34%	23%
Girls are more fun	25	16	31
No difference	38	42	36
Unable to decide	9	8	10

Post Pollers then asked:

Well, if you could choose, would you prefer to have boys or girls?

Washingtonians replied:

Would prefer boys	29%
Would prefer girls	19
Would like some of each	35
Likes one as well as the other	17

Although not many more people feel that raising a son is more enjoyable than raising a daughter, definitely more Washingtonians would prefer to have boys if they could pick and choose.

Many of those who would prefer to have a family with both sons and daughters feel that children need brothers and sisters, and that a family is much better balanced that way. Others simply say, "Well, I have both, and love them both."

Taft Doubts Early Crisis With Russia

Senator Discounts Byrnes' Warning; Doesn't Expect Military Expression

Boston, March 14 (AP).—Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) said today that he had "no knowledge of any Russian intention for military aggression."

The Republican Senate leader told a press conference here that "we have to work on the theory that there's going to be peace. There is no sense in appropriating $5,500,000,000 for a European Recovery Program if there's going to be war."

Taft stopped off in Boston on his way to Maine, where he is planning half a dozen campaign speeches in his bid for the Republican presidential nomination. He is being accompanied by Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.), who is supporting Taft in the presidential race.

Taft told reporters he did not agree with former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes that the United States was facing a crisis with Russia within four or five weeks. The Ohio Senator said Russia so far was only consolidating the sphere of influence awarded her by the Yalta Agreement.

Taft said Russia "dominated" Czechoslovakia since before the war. The latest move of the Communists in that country, he said, was just a "consolidation" tactic.

He said that if the President or Secretary of State Marshall had any inside information about Russia's intended military moves, they should tell the people about it.

Taft said he could not see anything the United States could do as far as Finland was concerned and declared:

"If the Communists win the elections in Italy, what can we do? That's no military move."

Taft said, however, that he did not think the Communists would win in Italy. He said the whole world situation was "still a war of influence, not a military war."

Taft is planning speeches at Colby and Bowdoin Colleges, Augusta, Bangor and Portland during his two-day swing through Maine.

War 'Is Impossible,' Says Soviet Consul

New York, March 14 (AP).—Talk of war between the United States and the Soviet Union was termed "a crazy idea" today by Yakob Lomakin, Soviet consul general here, as he left for a vacation in his homeland.

"War," he said, "is impossible." "It must not be. It is hysteria. The people do not want it. We Russians do not believe in war, and we do not want war. We want peace."

Slum Dwelling In Capitol Shadow

In the shadow of the Capitol, almost touching the backyards of several Congressmen, is No. 28 Dingman pl. nw.—beaten, crumbling, one of Washington's 1800 alley dwellings.

A Health Department inspector has recommended that No. 26 be condemned because of insanitary conditions—three families, 10 persons, ceiling falling, floors sagging, no gas or electricity, windows stuffed with rags. But condemnation action is slow and the tenants say: "Where shall we go?"

20 Arrested In Communist Czech Drive

Opposition Leaders In Parliament Face Loss of Immunity

Prague, March 14 (AP).—The Communist-led government arrested 20 persons today as it stepped up a drive to place leaders of the old National Socialist Party on trial as part of a spy ring.

An attack was launched on the parliamentary immunity of Vladimir Krajina and two other deputies who were leaders of the old party.

These actions constituted the second step in the government's campaign against Krajina and other leaders of the party whose headquarters, it was charged, were used as a base for espionage against the security police and nationalized industries.

Three nights ago the district police at Moravska Ostrava announced that Joseph Herod, district secretary of the party, confessed he was part of a spy ring headed by Krajina and then ended his life.

Another party leader, former Justice Minister Prokop Drtina, is still in the hospital with injuries suffered, police said, in a suicide leap.

This morning the government called on Parliament's immunity committee to strip Krajina and the deputies Otto Hora and Alois Cizek of their privileges as law makers. The most important of these is immunity from arrest. The government issued a warrant for the arrest of Vaclav Knotek, a government councillor, who the interior ministry said directed the alleged spying operation.

A ministry statement said secret orders, directions and other documents of the security police and nationalized industries had

Paraguay Chiefs Reported Jailed

Rio de Janiero, Brazil, March 14 (U.P.). — Supporters of President-elect J. N. Atalicio Gonzalez imprisoned Paraguay's foreign minister, army chief of staff and 80 army officers yesterday, a news dispatch from Pontapora, Brazil, on Paraguay's northern border, said today. There was no official confirmation.

The dispatch, distributed by the Brazilian News Agency, described the action as an outright coup d'etat, but it did not mention President GGen. Higinio Moringo, who controls the army.

Backs Chilean Complaint

U. S. Seeks Full U. N. Airing On Communists' Czech Coup

Lake Success, N. Y., March 14 (U.P.).—The United States will cast a strong and probably decisive vote in favor of full United Nations debate of Chile's charge that Russia engineered the Communist climb to power in Czechoslokavia, it was made known tonight.

The American position virtually assures that the U. N. Security Council will grant a complete hearing to the Chilean charges when it takes up the issue Wednesday.

Authoritative sources revealed that the State Department has instructed its U. N. delegation to vote in favor of placing the Chilean complaint on the agenda.

British Indicate Support

Seven of the Council's 11 members must vote to place the matter on the docket before it can be debated. And the decision of the United States was certain to attract at least six similar votes. British officials quickly indicated that they would vote for debating the charges.

The decision of American officials to support a full airing of the Chilean charges against Russia and the Prague Communists will not commit this country to any particular course of action in the Council's debate, officials pointed out.

It appeared to mean, however, that the United States will use Chile's move against the Kremlin to give the world a loud demonstration of the western powers' hostility to communism and to Communist tactics, even though the U. N. Security Council might not be able to do more than talk about the problem.

Officials pointed out that the United States always has taken the position in the Council that all matters submitted should be placed on the agenda for discussion even though debate might prove quickly that no Council action would be feasible or permissible under the U. N. Charter.

Russia was certain to fight angrily against placing the complaint on the agenda.

Since the Big Five veto normally does not apply to the matter

Move Slated To Add Spain To ERP Union

Delegates Assemble At Paris for Parley Of 16 Nations Today

Paris, March 14 (U.P.).—Delegates of 16 Marshall Plan countries assembled here today for a conference, opening tomorrow, aimed at uniting 270 million European people in a close economic alliance as a bulwark against the westward surge of communism.

Authoritative sources in Madrid and Lisbon said that Portugal, tomorrow or Tuesday, would make the first direct move to include Spain and its 27 million people in the Marshall Plan.

British sources commented that there was little likelihood such a move would succeed at the conference. But the basis for Spain's inclusion later will have been made if Portugal goes through with her planned move.

Purposes of Parley

The main purposes of the conference are:

1. To set up what will approximate a permanent economic "general staff" for Marshall Plan countries, with headquarters here.

2. To receive and approve reports on progress toward European economic cooperation.

The conference was called primarily to get the Marshall Plan countries on record as doing all they can, by themselves and in cooperation with others, to help themselves instead of merely de-

90,000 Hear Togliatti

Red Shouts U. S. Wants Italy For Atomic War on Russia

Rome, March 14 (U.P.).—Communist Boss Palmiro Togliatti said today the Marshall Plan seeks to make Italy a base for atomic war against Russia, and demanded a leftist victory in the April elections "to save the peace."

Togliatti spoke in Turin, while in Rome 25,000 women participated in a Communist demonstration for "peace".

Speaking to a crowd of some 90,000 Togliatti denounced the government for "police intimidation of the voters." He urged his followers to "hold yourselves ready to make your protests heard in whatever manner is necessary."

"The Marshall Plan means a division of the world into two parts—the west against Russia and eastern Europe—and air bases from which the atomic bomb would be unleashed on Russian territory," Togliatti said.

Both Togliatti and Leftwing Socialist Leader Pietro Nenni, who spoke at Milan, said Italy needed and wanted United States aid, but opposed the Marshall Plan for imposing "the political policy of America on our country."

Nenni said the European recovery program was "the bitter alternative for the United States Congress to allocation of big military funds."

In Rome, women from all over Italy, some with babes in arms, some in black for sons lost in the war, paraded for peace in a Communist pre-election demonstration.

Every non-Communist party in Italy admitted the Communists had put one over on them. Only the Christian Democrats worked fast enough to get out anti-Communist propaganda today.

The demonstration was part of the Communist Party's campaign for women's votes which has hammered at the western "warmongers" and has eulogized peace. Two million signatures were collected for petitions calling on the United Nations to outlaw atomic weapons.

The demonstration was especially important to the Communist Party, political observers said, since the Communist coup in Czechoslovakia has seemed to turn the scales against them here. As a result of that coup, the Catholic Church has entered directly and openly into the electoral battle against communism.

House Group Starts Work On Own Aid Bill Today

Outright Military Help for Turkey Greece and China May Be Included

United Press Staff Writer

The House Foreign Affairs Committee starts writing its own foreign aid bill today, and a leading Republican member predicted "confidently" that it would be passed before the crucial Italian elections April 18.

Representative Vorys (R., Ohio) said House action will be speeded, rather than delayed, by wrapping up several aid projects in one package. The House bill is based on the $5,300,000,000 European Recovery Program overwhelmingly approved by the Senate Saturday midnight, but it includes a separate section providing outright military aid to China, Greece and Turkey.

Two Senate committees meanwhile turned their attention to the purely military aspects of the world situation.

Chairman Vandenburg (R., Mich.) called his Foreign Relations Committee into closed session this morning to hear Secretary of State Marshall discuss the need for another 275-million-dollar installment on the year-old "stop communism" program in Greece and Turkey.

The Senate Armed Services Committee plans to hear Marshall tomorrow. Chairman Gurney (R., S. Dak.), said Marshall will be asked to state frankly "what he thinks is necessary for national defense and why.

Senators are expected to ask the Secretary of State to explain in more detail why he said last week that the world situation is "very, very serious" and why President Truman looks glumly at world peace prospects.

Defense Secretary Forrestal will testify before the same committee Thursday after he returns from Key West, Fla. Forrestal and the Chiefs of Staff of all three services have been meeting there since last Thursday, ostensibly to thrash out interservice disputes over the role each should play in war and defense strategy.

There were reports meantime that the Administration may call on Congress for new military preparedness measures to back up a strong United States statement to Russia that any further aggression in Europe would be "dangerous."

White House 'Considering'

High quarters said such a move is under "active consideration" at the Cabinet-White House level. The purpose would be to give the Soviet Union an unmistakeably clear warning that this country will regard future Communist expansion—particularly a grab for Italy—as a threat to the security of the United States.

Another purpose would be to assure the western democracies of Europe that the United States intends to stand back of them militarily as well as economically.

The armed services hearings were called originally to consider universal military training but Gurney said they will cover a much broader field.

"We want the Cabinet officers to tell us what the world situation is,

Sabath Blames State Dept. in Czech Overturn

The State Department was criticized for the Communist coup in Czechoslovagia by Representative Adolph J. Sabath (D., Ill.) in a broadcast yesterday over station WINX.

The Congressman, who was born in Czechoslovakia, said the department had been unfriendly to the democratic government there in refusing a 50-million-dollar loan "without giving any real reason." He said that action led the Czechs to accept Communist propaganda to the effect they could expect nothing from the United States and should depend on Russia.

Another speaker on the program, moderated by Ed Hart, was Juraj Slavik, former Czechoslovakian Ambassador to the United States who resigned the post last week in protest over the Communist coup.

Slavik joined Sabath in urging a United Nations investigation of the change in government. He said the Communists were able to take over the country by gaining control of the labor unions, police and some posts in the army.

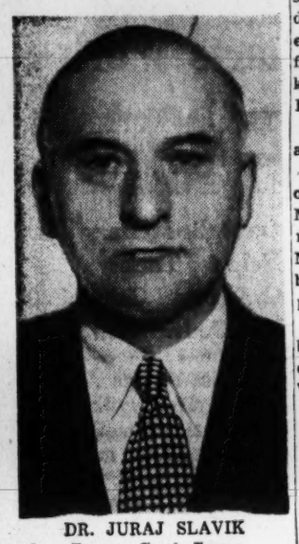
PEOPLE In The NEWS

Juraj Slavik

Like many another European diplomat, Juraj Slavik of Czechoslovakia is interested in literature as well as diplomacy.

In his instance it is poetry, and he has won some recognition as a poet in his native land.

When tragedy without poetry overwhelmed his native land he resigned the ambassadorship—12 days ago—and moved from the embassy-owned home (12 rooms, five baths) at 501 Aspen st., Takoma Park, Md., to the Shroeham Hotel, until he gets his bearings.



DR. JURAJ SLAVIK
Former Czech Envoy

Stocky, medium tall, Dr. Slavik also knows his Bible.

Yesterday as he spoke feelingly of the death of his friend, Foreign Minister Jan Masaryk, he referred not only to the Bible passages Masaryk had read before his death but recalled that on the following page it was written:

"Each man shall bear his own burden" and "So then, as we have opportunity, let us work that which is good toward all men."

Like the Masaryks, father and son, and President Benes, Dr. Slavik is an idealist, particularly where democracy is concerned. It springs from his land's innate wish to be free and was perhaps colored by the idealism of a World War I friend, Woodrow Wilson.

A forceful man in a gentlemanly way, he is sometimes inclined to be a little emotional and at such times his gestures become more frequent and his English pronunciation a little more foreign. His English reading vocabulary is considerable, however.

Born in 1890, Dr. Slavik early in his political career served as a district Governor in his home land and as minister of agriculture. Then he became minister of the interior, and in 1936 went to Poland as Czechoslovakia's representative.

When war broke out in 1939 he and his wife went to Paris, seat of the Czech government-in-exile. When France fell, in June, 1940, he followed President Benes to London, where he serve das minister of interior and of education. Then, in 1945, he and his pretty, dark-haired, multilingual wife joined the Washington diplomatic corps.

TWA Cancels Tickets On Palestine Flights

New York, March 14 (U.P.).—Employes at the ticket office of Trans World Airline said today that the company was canceling tickets for direct flights to Jerusalem and that it was suspending operations in Palestine "indefinitely."

Company officials were not available for comment, but employes said Palestine-bound TWA passengers would be discharged at Cairo and Algiers and furnished transportation by TWA aboard one of several foreign airlines still making the Palestine run.

NBC Reporter John Donovan radioed from Jerusalem yesterday that machine gunners fired on a TWA plane as it took off from Lydda Airport in Palestine Friday night.

sound, and adequate wage increase in the present dispute."

If arbitration is not arranged, and the Government does not intervene, the strike then would start at 12:01 a. m. Tuesday.

Only White House intervention then could avert the packers' walkout. President Truman could block it by creating a board of inquiry under the Taft-Hartley law, if he decided the strike imperiled the national welfare. The law also provides that he can ask the courts for an injunction to halt the strike for at least 80 days.

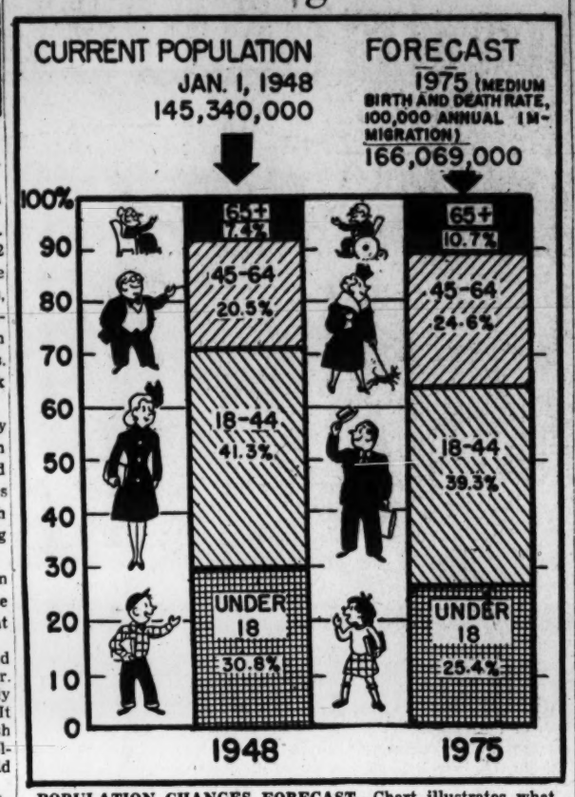
Coal Situation

Uncertainty over peace in the coal fields should end today. It will be the first working day since Lewis notified his rank and file that the producers had breached their contract by rejecting his pension demands. He wants $100-a-month pensions for all miners aged 60 or over with 20 years of service.

Lewis issued no strike call, but in years past, when he claimed his contract had been broken, wildcat strikes quickly followed. All the operators are aware of this and they fear stoppages in Ohio, West Virginia and Kentucky.

The Government also is facing the threat of a strike next Friday in the Oak Ridge, Tenn., laboratory operated by Carbide & Chemicals Corp., when a President's board of inquiry under the Taft-Hartley law is due to report.

America's Getting Old . . .



POPULATION CHANGES FORECAST—Chart illustrates what the Census Bureau expects to happen to the population of the United States between now and 1975. The change in the proportional composition of our population by age groups is shown were more males than females. Now there are 99 males to 100 females. If there is no immigration, the ratio will decline to 98 males to 100 females by 1960. If net immigration amounts to 200,000 a year, the ratio will stay about the same as at present (more men immigrate than women).

White and Non-White Ratio. The ratio of white to non-white persons for the Nation as a whole will decline slowly. The high figure, between 1930-40, was 880 whites to 100 non-white. It is now 850 to 100. By 1960 the ratio will drop to between 795 and 813 white to 100 non-white, depending on the amount of immigration and how rapidly death rates are decreased.

Children and Youths. At present there are about 45 million children and youths under 18. If the century-old decline in the birth rate is resumed after its wartime interruption, the number in this group will reach a peak before 1965 and then decline to 25 per cent below the present level. But "a more probable forecast" is 43 million for 1975, slightly fewer than at present.

Between now and 1975, however, fluctuations will take place bringing great difficulties to the school system. Between last September and 1953 (owing to the high wartime birth rate) there will be almost a 50 per cent increase in the number of children of first-grade age. The number will decline again, almost back to present levels, in the late 1950's or early 1960's. But in the meantime, there will be an extreme taxing of school facilities.

The big wave of increases will hit the junior high schools about 1959, senior high schools two years later, and so on.

Younger Workers. There are now about 60 million people between the ages of 18 and 44, the best working ages. This group will increase relatively slightly, from 1 to 10 million by 1975, depending on the birth rate for the next 10 years, and on the number of immigrants.

Older Workers. There are now about 30 million people between the ages of 45 and 64. They are due to increase by between 9 and 13 million—a much greater percentage jump than for the younger workers.

Older Ages. There are now about 11 million people who are 65 or older. Their ranks will be increased anywhere from 54 to 32 per cent by 1975, to a total of from 17 to 20 millions.

(The change in the proportional composition of our population, by age groups, is illustrated in the chart.)

The authors were reasonably certain of some of the repercussions from the change in population:

1. Employers will have to depend increasingly on workers past 40, and less on younger ones.

2. Suppliers of goods and services used mostly by young adults will see little change in the number of potential customers. But businesses supplying older persons will see a rapidly growing market.

Probable Housing Effect

3. With an increase in middle-aged families and older persons without children, there may be an increase in the demand for smaller apartments, and a decrease in demands for detached houses. There will also be an expansion in old people's institutions.

4. Hospitals will need to enlarge facilities for chronic diseases more than their maternity and children's wards. Similarly, there will be relatively less need for obstetricians and pediatricians, and more for specialists in heart diseases and other ailments of later life.

In the realm of more theoretical economics and sociology, the authors' conclusions were more tentative. On the assumption of a less rapidly increasing, and ultimately static population, they suggested that:

1. There will be less of a drain on our natural resources.

2. Less of the productive capacity will have to be used on new facilities for additional people, such as streets, public utilities, new houses. But this means more of the production can be used to raise the level of living of the then existing population.

3. Business cycles may be less severe; but the population growth that used to be counted on to revive business from a depression will no longer be present.

4. Unless you believe that the greatest people is the one with the fastest growing population, a slowing up in the rate of growth may be a good thing. It will mean a better balance between people and natural resources; more economic stability; higher standards of living; and a lessening of the likelihood of deterioration of the quality of the population.

The argument on this last point is that parents least able to give their children the best environment and training usually had the most children. In the future, those parents will not have such disproportionately large families compared to parents better able to care for their children. In other words, the trend to smaller families among upper income groups will spread to those at lower income levels.

The volume will be sold for 45 cents a copy by the Superintendent of Documents.

Third Party Is Denounced By CIO-PAC

By the United Press

The CIO Political Action Committee yesterday denounced Henry Wallace's third party as an "impractical scheme" which only "contributed confusion" to the 1948 presidential campaign.

It announced a three-point political program which it said was built around the concept that "the people must have a solid organization loyal to our American political heritage and devoted to the fulfilment of the hopes and aspirations of the American people."

Could Be on Ticket If He Liked, Says Farley

New York, March 14 (AP).—James A. Farley said today he was sure he could secure a place on the Democratic national ticket if he desired.

The former Postmaster General made his statement in a radio (NBC) interview. Questioned about his political aspirations, Farley said:

"Frankly, I'm not a candidate for any office. I think I might be elected to some position better than than a dog catcher. As a matter of fact, there isn't any doubt in my mind that if I really was interested in something now I could really get it. If I was interested in getting a place on the national ticket I could get it."

Asked "what place?" Farley replied: "Well, it wouldn't be the first place."

Comes Out for Taft

Waterville, Me., March 14 (AP).—United States Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.) announced today he is supporting Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, for the Republican Presidential nomination.

Brewster's announcement—made informally during a Taft press conference—marked the first time he has come out openly in the presidential race.

Anchor From Pentagon Site Mystifies Seafaring Men Here

The Washington Post

WHAT TO DO—Andrew E. Bayliss, identification officer of the Arlington County Police Department, appears somewhat puzzled as he examines historic old anchor unearthed in excavation work on the Pentagon grounds. Bayliss believes it is a relic of a foreign craft which plied the Potomac years ago

A tired-looking scrap of iron, exhumed near the new Pentagon Building in 1941, is causing an Arlington policeman some puzzled moments.

Not because it's in the way, or anything. Andrew E. Bayliss, of Arlington's finest, keeps it propped in the front yard of his home at 1140 N. Illinois st., Arlington.

It's just that since Bayliss gave workmen $2 for the scrap iron and hauled it to his home, he's found that it is an anchor. And Bayliss has spent eight years in the Navy and never saw one like it. A stream of curious Navy and Coast Guard friends are equally puzzled.

Two features of the anchor all agree are unique: (1) it has anti-fouling bars on both flukes, and (2) no weight or manufacturer's marking usually found on American anchors.

Bayliss wishes he could find someone to verify his own best guess on this silent hunk of history. That guess is that it belonged to a sailing vessel of more than 150 feet, probably from a foreign country.

Bayliss figures the ship lost her anchor in a lagoon beneath what is now the Pentagon parking area. For the anchor, when Bayliss found it and chipped it into present anchor shape, was fully rigged, its stock held in place by the pin. Right now, though, it's just a 175-pound mystery.

Renewed GOP Demand For Ike Seen by Capper

By The Associated Press

A renewed demand for drafting General Eisenhower as Republican nominee for President is rather expected by Senator Capper (R., Kans.), he said yesterday.

"I am not making any predictions," Capper said in a broadcast, "but I would not be at all surprised if there is a renewed demand to 'Draft Gen. Ike Eisenhower' by the time the Republican convention meets next June, the way things are going. And I don't mind telling tell you that I am still for General Ike if he will accept the nomination."

Capper also said if he were in the White House he would seriously consider bringing Gen. Douglas MacArthur back from Japan to head the Economic Cooperation Administration. That is the agency which would handle the European Recovery Program under the Senate plan.

Vandenberg May Not Get Keynote Role

By The Associated Press

Mounting talk of Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) as a dark-horse presidential nominee may remove him from the ranks of possible Republican convention keynoters.

Leaders said yesterday that House Speaker Joe Martin (R., Mass.) may be chosen permanent chairman of the June convention in Philadelphia. Martin is a dark-horse possibility, but has not attracted as much notice as Vandenberg.

With Martin as permanent chairman, Vandenberg would be the natural choice as keynoter, since the Michigan Senator heads the other branch of Congress as its presiding officer.

But friends of some avowed candidates for the nomination admitted privately that they would be just as well satisfied if Vandenberg doesn't go before the convention with a forceful speech like those he has been making in the Senate in the last few months. They admit to a fear that the Michigan Senator might make the delegates forget about their candidates and start whooping it up for Vandenberg.

The keynoter will be chosen by the GOP convention arrangements committee in Philadelphia April 18. National Chairman Carroll Reece, who is trying to keep to neutral ground between the candidates, is a member of the committee.

Reece, meanwhile, brought out a new slogan for the Republican campaign. He said it is a case of "Republicanism against Pendergastism."

In a letter to party officials, he said it is the "plain duty" of the party to tell the country about Mr. Truman's connection with the Kansas City Pendergast organization.

He said that the news Mr. Truman is willing to accept the Democratic nomination "hit the Nation during the past week with all of the terrific impact of a poached egg dropped on a feather bed."

So, Reece said it is up to the Republicans "to familiarize the Nation with some little-known phases of his career, and, particularly, with his connections with the Pendergast machine in Kansas City."

Jews in 17 to 45 Age Bracket Forced to Remain in Palestine

Jerusalem, March 14 (AP).—A Jewish Agency spokesman said today that force is being used, if necessary, to prevent Jews between the ages of 17 and 45 from leaving strife-torn Palestine.

Haganah, the Jewish militia, has put guards in all travel agency offices to watch for Jews in the age group who try to book seats. The spokesman added:

"We consider the Jews in Palestine are at war. No Jew without a good excuse could expect to be permitted to shirk his duty in wartime. If there are those who wish to leave the country permanently and become citizens of some other country, they are not stopped."

Reliable sources said several young American Jews have been prevented by Haganah from leaving Palestine. Some have complained to the United States consulate. A consular source said an official objection had been lodged with the Jewish Agency.

Haganah sources in Tel Aviv said 10 Arabs were killed and many fortified houses were blown up in a five-hour battle in the Jaffa-Tel Aviv borderland area. Snipers killed two Arab women in Haifa.

The Tel Aviv sources said six Jews were killed in the Negev in South Palestine when a Jewish convoy broke through an Arab road barrier near the Arab village of Faluja. Haganah said the Arabs also suffered casualties.

Jewish Agency Reports Arab 'Invading Forces'

Lake Success, N. Y., March 14 (U.P.).—The Jewish Agency for Palestine claimed today that five or six thousand Arabs "invading forces" are now in Palestine.

In a memorandum submitted to the Palestine Commission and to the Security Council of the United Nations, the agency charged Great Britain with "an unexpected dereliction of duty in allowing the violation of Palestine's frontiers," and said "growing uncertainty of the implementation of the General Assembly's resolution has emboldened and hardened Arab intransigence."

Aid Is Main Topic Of Italian Leaders

Politicians Debate Recovery Program As Nation Prepares to Vote April 18

Rome, March 14 (AP).—The Marshall Plan was the leading issue in political talks today looking toward the April 18 election, which will give an indication whether Italy's 27,000,000 voters look westward to the United States or eastward to Russia.

Party leaders, touring the provinces from Sicily to the Alps, drummed away for and against the European recovery measures now before Congress.

Interior Minister Mario Scelba last night told a crowd at Modena that "America will give aid to Italy to reinforce our democratic regime and combat communism."

Scelba is the government's military boss whose "get-tough" campaign with Communists late last year broke the back of leftist labor disorders.

Scelba promised his troops and carabinieri would keep strict order at th epolls and "guarantee the right to vote."

Communists speakers centered most of their attacks against the Marshall Plan. Communist Vice Secretary Luigi Longo, speaking at the naval base of Taranto, said the plan would react against the interests of the Italian people.

Anti-Communist Socialist Leader Giuseppe Saragat said at Vercelli: "Just as we fought Fascism, we must now combat the danger of a new war."

Guglielmo Giannini, leader of the rightist "common man" movement, said at Padova: "The situation in Europe is terrible. It is the fruit of the foolish formula of 'unconditional surrender' established by Roosevelt and Churchill."

Premier Alcide de Gasperi sent a message to United States Ambassador James C. Dunn, in connection with a memorial service today at Nettuno's American Soldier Cemetery, declaring: "We will not desert the cause of liberty and peace for which they made the supreme sacrifice."

Soviet Ready to Talk Trade With Italy

Moscow, March 14 (AP).—Tass said today the Soviet Union had informed Italy the Russians were prepared to enter into negotiations for a trade pact, with talks on Italian reparations taking place at the same time.

Tass said the discussions on reparations would be governed by the "definitions, character and schedule" provided in the peace treaty.

(The treaty provides for payment of $100,000,000 iin reparations by Italy over a period of seven years dating from the time the treaty went into effect, which was last Sept. 15.)

Wealthy Italians Preparing for Flight

Rome, March 14 (U.P.).—Italy's wealthy are preparing for hasty flight in the event the Communists win out in the April 18 general elections, a United Press survey of the five biggest cities showed today.

The survey was made at Turin, Milan, Genoa, ome Rand Naples, which have a total of six million of Italy's 45 million population.

It showed:

(1) Passport applications are 13 times above normal in Milan, 10 times above normal in Rome and have increased to a lesser extent in the other cities polled; (2) industrial production and commercial activity calling for new investment are at a tsandstill; (3) stock prices are down; (4) prices for gold, jewels and other easily transportable valuables have increased considerably in the last two months.

The immediate reason for the latter three developments, the report showed, was reluctance on the part of businessmen and industrialists to invest in anything but the "surest" thing.

The April 18 electoral battle can be summed up as an all-out contest between Communists and non-Communists for control of the new Parliament and the government.

The consensus now is that the Communist front will poll a certain 35 to 40 per cent vote and possibly 45 to 50 per cent.

Reds Black Out Chinese Cities

Shanghai, March 14 (AP).—Chinese Communist capture of Kirin and the nearby power center of Hsiaofengmen has struck a paralyzing blow to government resistance in Manchuria.

The government officially acknowledged last night that both points had been abandoned.

Thus in one stroke, the Communists have blacked out most Manchurian cities remaining in government hands.

Hsiaofengmen, touted as the world's third largest hydroelectric dam, generated electricity for Changchun, the Manchurian capital 75 miles to the northwest and for Kirin, Szepingkai and a vast stretch of surrounding territory. It even furnished part of the power for Mukden, 200 miles to the southwest. Mukden previously has lost much of its nearby power to Communist attack.

The government communique admitting the loss sad both Kirin and Hsiaofengmen were left intact.

Built by the Japanese as the electrical heart of their Manchurian empore, the Hsiaofengmen dam had been strengthened in recent months under direction of American engineers.

Spencer Moosa, Associated Press correspondent in Peiping, said the latest Manchurian dispatches reported five Communist divisions massed 15 miles southwest of Changchun and moving towards the isolated capital. Street fighting was reported still raging in Szepingkai, 70 miles southwest of Changchun, but government sources in Nanking admitted no hope remained of saving it.

Eyes Are Moist as 1000 Honor Masaryk in All Souls' Church

Nearly 1000 persons yesterday paid tribute here to the memory of Jan Garrigue Masaryk.

They were told by speakers that the Czechoslovakian foreign minister, whose suicide in Prague was announced Wednesday—two weeks after the Communists took over his country—died because action speaks louder than words.

There were many with moist eyes in the audience, which included a number of the diplomatic corps, at the memorial service in All Souls' Unitarian Church, 16th and Harvard sts. nw.

Speakers included Dr. Juraj Slavik, who resigned as Czechoslovakian ambassador Wednesday; Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.), and the Rev. A. Powell Davies, D.D., pastor of the church, who recently returned from Czechoslovakia.

Dr. Winfred Overholser, moderator of the Unitarian Churches of America, gave memorial readings, and the Rev. Frederick May Eliot, D.D., president of the American Unitarian Association, lead the litany of remembrance.

Recalling the time he had last seen Masaryk, Dr. Slavik said:

"When I last came to his hotel in New York, Jan had on his table the "Kralice" Bible, the Sixteenth Century classical translation of the sacred book.

"He carried this family Bible with him and it was his favorite reading.

"Jan Masaryk was a deeply religious man. It is one of the reasons that his suicide was not accepted at first as possible.

"But for me, there is no doubt. He was faced by hopelessness, by despair, by an impossibility to do anything else in the tragic situation.

"He wanted, as he told one of his close friends, to do something to help the nation. He could do nothing else."

Senator Morse said, "Although we meet in sadness, it teaches us a lesson.

"The hour again has come when we must activate democracy, make clear in the councils of the world that we are a united people determined to keep uppermost in the morals of the world the spiritual values of democracy for which Jan Masaryk so greatly lived."

Dr. Davies said that "Jan Masaryk's death was his final message to the Czechoslovak people. It told them that captivity was now complete.

"It wasn't a message to them alone. Perhaps it wasn't even intended for them chiefly. They have no power, or almost none, to remedy their situation.

"The death of Jan Masaryk was also intended as a signal to the West . . . Once before he had warned the West. He had tried to make it plain that events in Czechoslovakia might be a crucial indication.

Dr. Jan Papanek, Czechoslovakian representative to the United Nations, was unable to be present because of illness, it was announced. In a telegram he said that "Czechoslovakia has lost a statesman who interpreted her democratic spirit, and her people a beloved son and brother, the United Nations a devoted servant, and the world an understanding citizen."

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt in a telegram expressed "appreciation of his qualities and my regret at his death."

Czech, Finn Moves by Russia Spur Swede Campaign on Reds

Stockholm, March 14 (AP).—Events in Finland and Czechoslovakia have stirred up a storm against the Communists in Sweden.

The Social Democrats, dominant political party, have set April 1-25 for a campaign against the Communists, to be waged in speeches, debates, newspaper articles and pamphlets.

Premier Tage Erlander, lining up with his colleagues in Norway and Denmark, keynoted the campaign with the declaration:

"We shall fight the Communists by democratic methods and spiritual means."

Resolutions by the Social Democratic, Liberal and Conservative youth organizations protested against "subversive activities" of the Communists.

Ture Nerman, Social Democratic senator, said at a Stockholm meeting:

"The train is going west. The only natural course for Scandinavia is to join the west with Bevin's Great Britain as the leading power."

Norway Official Denies Russia Seeks a Treaty

New York, March 15 (U.P.).—Finn Moe, permanent Norwegian delegate to the United Nations, said today "there is no foundation" to the report that Norway has received a Soviet request for a treaty similar to the one being negotiated with Finland.

and what they recommend for national defense," he said. "They may ask for universal training, and they may ask for other steps."

Gurney did not say what the "other steps" might be. Former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes appealed Saturday night for immediate reenactment of Selective Service, a larger air force, and UMT to meet a world crisis he said may come "about four or five weeks from now."

Vorys said the House GOP decision to make foreign aid a single package stemmed in part from the emphasis that has been placed on the "military security considerations" of helping countries abroad.

"The House is bound to debate the need for military aid to go along with economic aid," he said. "We feel we can handle the whole subject faster and better by having one bill, one debate, and one vote."

Democratic members of the committee sharply challenged this approach. They said it was agreed upon without consulting them.

Danube Parley Date Finds Powers Unready

By The Associated Press

The three major western powers and Russia face an agreed deadline today apparently unready to come to grips with a knotty issue which was due to be reopened at this time.

This is international control of the Danube, central Europe's great traffic waterway.

The Big Four powers agreed in 1946 at the insistence of the United States to hold an international conference to set up a control regime within six months after the first World War II peace treaties came into force. This deadline comes today, with no definite statement in advance whether the agreement will lapse or be put aside.

The split between Russia and the west over Europe's future has so widened that some American officials are convinced no useful purpose would be served in trying to reach a Danube settlement at this time.

U. S. Action To Check Reds Anticipated

By The Associated Press

The American Government's first major move to check Russia since the fall of Czechoslovakia is expected this week. It may be a promise of military support for a western bloc in Europe.

The idea of a direct warning from President Truman to Generalissimo Stalin that further Communist expansion means a clash with American power is believed to have been considered here. But some of the President's diplomatic advisers, at least, believe that the time has passed for words to stop Russia and the time for action is here.

Three Main Points Cited

Exactly what line American action might take has been a subject of Washington conferences for the past 10 days.

Secretary of State Marshall is expected to produce for President Truman the first line of action to meet what diplomatic officials consider the threatening new situation in eastern Europe. The problem, as Marshall's advisers see it, covers these three main points:

1. The western nations in Europe must be reassured that the United States will not let them down even if supporting them means war with Russia.

2. The Russians must be brought to realize clearly that with the consolidation of the Communist hold on Czechoslovakia and their demands on Finland they complete their hold over the only part of Europe or the Middle East which the United States is willing to see them take without a struggle.

3. The United States, if it is to take such a strong and unprecedented stand, must be prepared to back its position to the limit with all the political and military strength it can muster.

Officials said the most obvious way for the United States simultaneously to warn Russia and to reassure the western powers would be: for the American Government, possibly in a presidental statement or message to the five nations, to declare its support for the mutal defense undertaking and express United States willingness to back those and Allied nations any time their freedom is threatened.

This kind of commitment could later be formalized if the western European countries proposed a military pact with the United States and the American Government agreed to negotiate such a pact and submit it to the Senate for ratification. A hot Senate fight would be likely.

Officials said that the European situation has now reached the point at which the Russians must be confronted "with a situation and not with an argument." As one high authority put it, "we must act quickly to create a situation in Europe which will confront the Russians with an absolutely firm resistance to any power they can bring against it and thereby cause them to stop in their ambition."

120 Guerillas Die in Attack On Greek Town

Athens, March 14 (U.P.).—Military headquarters at Kozani reported to the war ministry tonight that between 120 and 150 guerillas were killed in an attack on a village near the Albanian border.

The Greek army report said a rebel band, estimated to be 700 strong, raided the village of Vlatsi, about 30 miles from the Albanian border, and some 15 miles northwest of field headquarters at Kozani.

Greek army losses were set at 13.

The war ministry said that about 100 guerillas entered the town of Klementi, near Corinth today. They burned down the police station, looted houses and killed one of the three policemen that comprised the town's defense, the ministry said.

Meanwhile Athens police reported that they had arrested 40 alleged leftists yesterday. A number of other suspects were detained briefly and then released.

Press Reports Kidnaping Of 1732 Greek Children

Athens, March 14 (AP). — Dispatches from Salonika said today Communist-led guerillas had abducted 1732 children from northern Greece.

A high American official said this latest tactic of Markos Vafiades, the guerilla leader, seems designed to overburden the Greek economy with refugees.

The official, who could not be quoted by name, said the kidnapings spurred the flight of families to urban centers. American funds are already supporting 500,000 refugees from guerilla-threatened areas who have sought the protection of larger cities.

U. S. Favors Czech Probe of placing items on the agenda, Soviet Delegate Andrei Gromyko probably will lose the first round of his fight.

The Russian delegate, according to the best guess here, then will challenge the Council's right to tamper with Czechoslovakia's internal affairs and will deny that Russia has played any part whatsoever in the recent political events in Prague.

From there on it, it was believed, the Big Five veto would come into play and the Security Council would be blocked from doing anything but talk about the Czech situation.

It was believed that in the talking about the situation, the United States hoped to accomplish its objective—to marshal world opinion against the spread of Communist power and arouse opposition to further expansion, particularly in France, Italy and the Scandinavian countries.

Loopholes for Gromyko

There were few, if any, responsible observers who foresaw the possibility of any decisive Council action along the lines proposed by Chilean delegate Hernan Santa Cruz in his formal complaint. He proposed a Security Council "investigation" of the Communist coup in Prague and Russia's supposed part in it.

The U. N. Charter provides that if a big power is party to a dispute brought before the Security Council, the power must give up its veto and abstain from voting on proposed solutions for that dispute. It was almost certain, however, that Gromyko would be able to take advantage of half a dozen parliamentary loopholes and assure in advance, by the power of veto, that Moscow does not lose its right to block action with a single vote.

Soviet Grain Yield Tops U. S. Record

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Russia harvested almost 400 million bushels more bread grain last year than the United States, in spite of this country's all-time record wheat crop.

Russia's tremendous harvest of 1795 million bushels of wheat and rye however, was far below its prewar average; while the United States harvest of 1391 million bushels of the two grains was more than 60 per cent greater than its average for 1935-39.

Simultaneously with release of the the survey of world yields of wheat and rye by the Office of Foreign Agricultural Relations of the Agriculture Department, Secretary Anderson announced this Government's final goals for this year's crops and livestock.

These goals again call for top production, not greatly different from wartime. The final figures are for 354 million acres for food, fiber and livestock feed crops, contrasted with 346 million planted last year.

The revised goals are slightly below the tentative goals set by Anderson November 21. At that time Anderson called for a total acreage of 356 million. This was cut by State Agriculture Councils.

The comparison of the Russian harvest with the United States harvest stuck out like a sore thumb in the OFAR report. Boiled down, the figures show:

The American harvest was 1391 million bushels, of which only 26 million bushels were rye and 1365 million were wheat.

However, in prewar years—1935-39—the United States averaged only 804 million bushels; 45 million of rye and 759 million wheat.

The Russian harvest of 1795 million bushels was 875 million bushels of wheat and 920 million of rye.

However, it was far below the prewar average of 2125 million bushels, or 1240 million bushels of wheat and 885 rye.

The American wheat yield was much higher than in the Soviet. The average yield per acre was 18.4 compared with 11.7 bushels in Russia.

Rye production in the United States averaged 12.8 bushels per acre; the Russian rye 13 bushels.

The per acre yield of wheat indicated the advances in wheat culture and farming methods in this country since 1940.

The per acre average jumped from 13.2 bushels in 1935-39 to 17.2 in 1946 and 18.4 last year.

In Russia the per acre wheat average dropped from 11.9 bushels prewar to 11.7 last year.

There was little change in the per acre yield of rye in either country.

Anderson set the 1948 corn goal at 90,700,000 acres. The earlier suggestion had been 92,120,000 acres. Last year the corn acreage dropped to 86,424,000 acres largely because of spring floods.

The cut in corn accounted for nearly all the cut made from the tentative goals set last fall.

Livestock goals remained virtually unchanged. The goal for sows to farrow for the spring crop was increased from 7,936,000 to 7,984,000.

The Government hopes for 1 per cent more milk this year than last. However, the goals call for only 91 per cent as many eggs; 92 per cent hens and pullets; 88 per cent as many turkeys and only 93 per cent as many chickens to eat as a year ago.

The number of spring pigs, if the goal is reached, still will be only 92 for each 100 this year; cattle for slaughter will be only 89 per cent. A 3 per cent increase in sheep is sought.

Onions Run Wild On Chicago Mart

Onions went wild on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange—the Nation's largest onion market—last week.

The March future closed at $5.70 to $5.67 for a 50-pound sack. A year ago the price was $1.60.

The onion prices are bringing tears to the eyes of shorts, who sold for a drop. Shorts have contracted to deliver 387 cars by April 1—and there aren't that many available.

Behind the whole "squeeze" is this fact: the late summer crop last year was only 27 million sacks against 39 million in 1946.

The name "Chicago" is Indian for "the smell of wild onions."

Red Drive In Austria Predicted

Vienna, Austria, March 14 (AP).—Vice Chancellor Adolf Schaerf said today the Communists are planning to launch a huge propaganda campaign soon in an attempt to make Austria go the way of Czechoslovakia.

Schaerf, chairman of the Austrian Socialist Party, said in an interview he had been informed the campaign will be waged with posters inviting Austrians to let the Communists lead them toward an "end of reaction, prosperity for the working class and an end of the black market."

The campaign will be heard, he said, despite the fact that communism has suffered a "terrific setback" in Austria.

Schaerf said Communists had fomented strikes by 20,000 workers during the last two weeks as a demonstration of "muscle flexing to scare the government."

The government has replied by putting down the strikes in a legal manner and removing non-elected Communists from important federation posts, he said. Communists legally elected to office within the federation were not interfered with, he emphasized.

pending on United States dollars.

But Russia's tightening grip on the European countries outside the Marshall Plan, and the threat of Italian Communist gains in the Italian parliamentary election April 18, lent an atmosphere of urgency to plans for a closer union of non-Communist countries.

Tomorrow's conference is the second full-dress meeting of Marshall Plan countries. The first was held here last September.

British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and others will attend the plenary sessions, which are expected to last only two days. But after that, the conference will divide into committees or working parties, which will meet in private to draw up a general report of progress made since September in economic cooperation, and to arrange for a permanent headquarters.

French Foreign Minister Georges Bidault is to call the conference to order at 3 p. m. tomorrow.

Bevin is expected to make a speech of major importance tomorrow, in part of which he will describe the part to be played in Marshall Plan cooperation by the 50-year economic and military aid treaty that Great Britain, France, Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg are to sign in Brussels Wednesday.

In addition to those five countries, the participating nations are Austria, Denmark, Eire, Greece, Iceland, Italy, Norway, Portugal, Sweden, Switzerland and Turkey.

Reds Reject China Plane Firing Protest

Moscow, March 14 (AP).—The Soviet Union has rejected a Chinese protest claiming "Soviet planes fired on a Chinese passenger plane" last Tuesday south of Port Arthur, Tass reported today.

Tass said the Soviet Embassy in China had informed the Chinese government in an official note that the plane had violated the Port Arthur base area, and had been signaled by two Russian craft to follow them and land.

The Soviet note asserted the Chinese plane had failed to obey the instructions, continuing on its course, whereupon the Russian planes fired "warning" shots which, the note claimed, were "not aimed at the plane."

The plane refused to land, the note continued, and kept on its course. The Soviet government said it considered the Chinese note to be without basis.

The Chinese transport, one of the planes owned by Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault's commercial airline, was carrying 42 refugees being evacuated from Communist-encircled Mukden, Manchuria to Tsingtao, China. Capt. Robert Buol, of Stockton, Calif., the pilot, said two P-39 fighter planes marked with the Red Star of Russia made five passes at the airliner over the Gulf of Chihli, firing their machineguns, but apparently not trying to hit the transport. Buol said he was not within 60-miles of the Russian-occupied Port Arthur-Dairen peninsula.

Premier Klement Gottwald charged at the outset of his march to power that the National Socialists were planning a putsch to overthrow the government.

The party has since purged itself of old leaders and changed its name to the Czech Socialist Party, but left wing parties make no secret of their distrust of the party's rank and file.

Former Deputy Premier Petr Zenkl, the old party leader, has not been heard from.

Krajina, a former botany professor, was a spy during the German occupation, transmitting from here to Britain and Russia information on German plans to invade the Balkans and Low Countries.

Meanwhile the Communist newspaper Rude Pravo said 125,591 members have been added to the Communist Party in the first five days of "Gottwald Week." The Communists have set a goal of two million new members.

The newspaper Mlada Fronta reported that Blazej Vilim, who was displaced as secretary general of the Social Democratic Party when leftwingers seized control during the crisis, had fled across the German border.

Thousands of persons today visited the grave of Jan Masaryk, nonparty foreign minister in the Communist-dominated government who plunged to his death Wednesday from his apartment.

Finns Debate Plan For Moscow Parley

Helsinki, March 14 (U.P.).—The Finnish cabinet met for two hours today with President Juho K. Paasikivi and reliable sources said a plan was outlined for the forthcoming treaty negotiations with Russia.

The line to be followed during negotiations, which are to begin in Moscow March 27, will be submitted to the foreign committee of Parliament for approval, these sources said. The committee is to meet tomorrow.

Miller Calls Tuck Bill Blow At Liberty

Charlottesville, Va., March 14 (AP).—Francis Pickens Miller today blasted the "machine-controlled" majority of the General Assembly for what he termed as striking "twice at our liberties."

Miller

The former delegate from Fairfax County and vice chairman of the Committee for Democrary in Virginia credited an "outraged public opinion" with preventing Governor Tuck "from accomplishing all of the original purposes of his bill to bolt the Democratic Party."

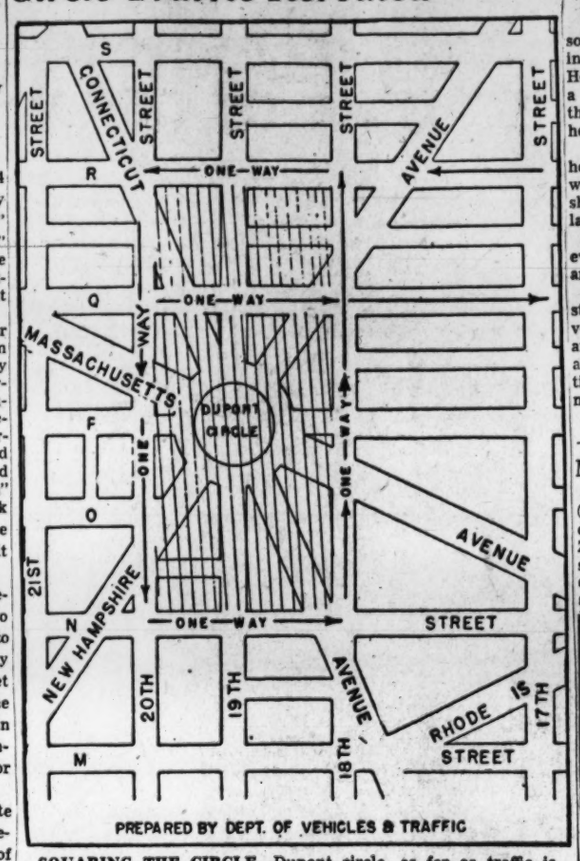
Referring to Crockett's (Delegate Paul Crockett) resolution to return the State government to Williamsburg, Miller said it "may have been proposed as a joke, yet it is an accurate reflection of the minds of men who would have been quite at home at Williamsburg under the most reactionary Governor of the colonial period."

A House proposal to investigate the Richmond newspapers was described by Miller as "a method of intimidation . . . employed for years by the Byrd machine."

Miller's statement declared "Every Virginian who loves his liberties can thank God that the Constitution of Virginia provides that no session of the General Assembly shall continue longer than 60 days. For within 60 days the machine-controlled majority of the assembly just adjourned struck twice at our liberties.

"They attempted to destroy Section 6 of our Bill of Rights, which provides that all elections ought to be free, and in their closing session they attempted to nullify Section 12 of our Bill of Rights, which guarantees freedom of the press."

Circle Traffic Rerouted



SQUARING THE CIRCLE—Dupont circle, as far as traffic is concerned, becomes a rectangle today. Sides of the rectangle will be 18th, R, 20th and N sts., with traffic following around it counterclockwise just as it formerly moved about the circle. Q st. will provide a west-to-east shortcut across the northern end of the rectangle. Approximately a dozen blocks in the Dupont circle area will be blocked off for at least a year for construction of an underpass under the circle. Capital Transit buses will travel on adjacent streets with some going along the new rectangular route

Arlington Delegates Report Major Victory in Assembly

Richmond, Va., March 14 (Spl.). The Arlington delegation returned to home country today with a major victory on local legislation passed by the General Assembly.

In the opinion of Senator Charles R. Fenwick, the bills which the delegation succeeded in passing have given Arlington all the powers a city has except annexation—and without costing Arlington the money its citizens had expected to lose in taxes through incorporation.

Governor Tuck took over the weekend, signed 34 bills approved by the Assembly, 14 of which originated in the House of Delegates.

Bills already signed into law or awaiting the signature of Governor Tuck which are expected to have strongest effect on the northern Virginia area include these measures affecting incorporation of Arlington:

Authorizing the County Board to impose business and professional licenses; permitting the County Board to require auto licenses; giving roads funds to Arlington if it incorporates; granting additional powers to local governing bodies to issue bonds for public schools either with or without Federal grants; authorizing Arlington School Boad to issue bonds for an athletic field and stadium.

Other bills of special interest to Arlington are those providing for associate and substitute trial justices and increasing justice's salary to $6000 annually; increasing county board member salaries from $1200 to $1800 a year each; increasing pay of electoral officials; validating the Arlington school bond issue of last May; providing a referendum to move the date of the school board election from November to May; permitting establishment of a war memorial stadium in Arlington and establishing a police trial board in Arlington.

Senator Andrew W. Clark cited his bills establishing a county pension and retirement system of the Fairfax police trial board.

In Alexandria, Delegate Armistead L. Boothe pointed to bills allowing a referendum on electing a council at large, and bills amending the Alexandria charter giving the city manager additional appointive powers.

Delegate Robert J. McCandlish, jr., of Fairfax, said his most important local measures involved tightening annexation laws, changing election laws and a bill doubling the acreage of land which Fairfax County may own.

House of Lords Faces Slash

London, March 14 (AP).—Political sources reported today a tentative interparty agreement to trim the House of Lords to 300 members—a move which would throw more than 500 bluebloods out of their inherited lawmaking jobs.

Most who would be cast out, however, are those dubbed "backwoodsmen" because they seldom show to debate or vote on new laws.

Government spokesmen refuse even to discuss these reports, which are loaded with political dynamite.

The cabinet has taken an open stand only on trimming the peers' veto powers from two years to one and it is sandwiched uncomfortably between Conservative opposition and the demands of Labor members of Parliament.

Many of the government's supporters call for drastic reform, or even abolition of the hereditary House.

The makeup of the House of Lords has long been under fire from progressive quarters and many Labor Party leaders contend that a hereditary chamber of lawmakers runs counter to democratic principles.

Negative Housing Plans

The plight of low-income families seeking housing was brought into sharp focus recently by the annual report of the National Capital Housing Authority. No housing available to slum dwellers has been built in Washington since 1940. During the interval many of the District's 44,000 substandard dwellings have further deteriorated and are utterly unfit for human occupancy. In addition, thousands of low-income families in Washington face the necessity of moving out of temporary war housing scheduled for demolition. A situation that was already tragic before the war thus threatens to be much worse in the years ahead.

On the assumption that future sites for low-rental housing projects would be provided through the Redevelopment Land Agency, Congress deprived the NCHA of authority to acquire any new site. More recently the House denied the Land Agency any appropriation whatever, although the Senate Appropriations Committee has now voted to restore a small part of the sum needed. Even so, the work of clearing out the District's hidden alleys and providing homes for families that are overcrowded and living under unspeakable conditions remains completely stymied. The only excuse that seems to be offered for this negative policy is that scarce building materials are needed by private operators who are building houses to sell. We recognize that the demand for housing is acute in all economic brackets. But that is certainly no excuse for complete cessation of building for the families whose need for housing is the greatest.

Two years ago the NCHA proposed that it be implemented to build 5500 low-rental dwellings during the following three years. In his current report John Ihlder, the executive director, renews that recommendation. We thought his request was reasonable in 1946, and it is certainly more pressing now that further needs have accumulated and war housing is being eliminated. While fully recognizing the scope of the demands that are being made upon Congress, it seems to us that the social and economic cost of further delay ought to compel consideration of this problem at the present session.

Tax Cuts

By scaling down the income-tax reductions voted by the House, the Senate Finance Committee hopes to win enough votes to insure passage of a tax-reduction program over a possible veto. However, objections to tax reduction at this time are not removed by the simple expedient of reducing the amount of the proposed cut by about 1.7 billion dollars. The major argument is the matter of timing. The Senate bill as well as the bill passed by the House is open to objection on this score. The timing is bad for two reasons, which we emphasized when commenting on the House bill: (1) we are still in the midst of a fight against inflation, and (2) we do not yet know the cost of ERP and other foreign-aid programs.

Since passage of the House bill nothing has occurred to weaken the cogency of these arguments. On the contrary, the events of recent weeks have underlined the importance of pursuing a cautious policy of wait-and-see. In our opinion, the recent drop in food prices provides no new arguments in favor of slashing taxes. For there is as yet no evidence that it will be followed by a general and permanent lowering of prices and living costs. Moreover, even if prices in general were to drop substantially, Government revenues would likewise fall and the surpluses available for tax-reduction purposes would accordingly shrink.

But the most cogent argument for deferring any sweeping tax cut is the fact that we do not know how much the Government may be called upon to spend to implement our foreign policy. Every day comes word of new crises, political and economic, that force us to revise estimates of the scope and probable cost of efforts to assist world recovery and arrest the spread of communism.

In the present state of world affairs, it would be shortsighted to try to adjust our foreign-aid program to allow for tax cuts of the proportions contemplated. Instead, it is essential in the national interest to make liberal allowance for unforeseen emergency demands that might absorb overnight the budgetary surpluses that tax-reduction advocates so confidently anticipate. The least that could be done would be to postpone further consideration of the bill until the latter part of the present session, when the demands upon the Treasury should be somewhat clearer than they are today.

Eyes On The House

Senate action on the European Recovery Program was completed in a heartening display of statesmanship. The after-midnight vote gave an appropriate sense of urgency to what the Senate did, and the immense majority for the bill left no doubt as to the determination of the American Government to uphold the hand of the democratic countries of Europe in their struggle against police-state encroachments. That ringing 69-to-17 vote will be recognized everywhere in Europe as a powerful stroke for freedom and a blow to aggressive communism.

We have not the slightest doubt that the tragic events of the last two weeks in Czechoslovakia and Finland and the rising threat of communism in Italy contributed to the size of the majority favoring ERP and to the burst of speed that the Senate showed at the finishing line. The tragedy of the situation is that this recognition of realities came so late. For the sake of maximum effectivenesse ERP should have been put into operation some months ago. Delay and complacency on this side of the Atlantic have given the trouble-makers of Moscow a golden opportunitay to spread confusion and to cultivate a feeling of hopelessness. We cannot help thinking that the impending gloom would be much less dense than it is if the Senate had been ready to respond to the Moscow challenge last January.

The eyes of the Nation will now be focused on the House. It is said that the goal is to have the bill on the President's desk well in advance of the Italian election on April 18. That seems to us to be inexcusably slow motion. Why cannot the House hold night sessions, if necessary, and clear this vital legislation within a few days? The idea that the House must put its own imprint upon the measure for the sake of its prestige seems petty in the face of a world crisis. Senator Vandenberg's statesmanship in piloting the measure through the Senate has consisted largely in resisting changes. He accurately sensed that the full recovery program, as suggested by Secretary Marshall, was essential to our security and to meet the demands of the American people to bolster up freedom in Europe. That discernment led to his impressive victory over Senator Taft, whose effort to trim down the first year's authorization for ERP to four billion dollars was emphatically rejected. Mr. Taft's effort to put his imprint on the bill has been a severe blow to his prestige, and we suspect that the same will be true of any House leaders who obstruct or delay the inevitable enactment of the ERP bill.

The chief threat in the House comes from the one-package advocates. Since all prospect of stopping the bill has vanished, the effort to drag into the debate and the legislation itself the issues of aid to China, Greece and Turkey is likely to have strong support from the opposition. But the effect of this strategy is merely to divert attention from the main point at issue—the voting of immediate aid to the nations already under the Communist gun in Europe. The House could make a lasting impression upon the country by overriding this obstructive device accepted by its own leaders and passing the Senate bill.

This is a time for pulling together rather than apart. Aside from the material aid to be provided through this bill, it can be made a vehicle for demonstration of a united and implacable American will in contradiction of the Moscow propaganda about our supposedly weak and vacillating democracy. Can the House rise to this measure of statesmanship? Certainly its claim to a more prominent role in the field of foreign affairs would be immeasurably strengthened if it should succeed in doing so.

Realistic Approach

Although General Clay declares that no instructions have been issued to stop the deconcentration of economic power monopolies in western Germany, new orders have been issued that will, according to reports, put a stop to further attempts to change the corporate set-up of the heavy industries. In future deconcentration activities will be confined to a few companies having monopolistic control of consumer goods. Similarly, decartellization—that is, the dissolution of agreements among independent concerns—appears to be on the way out.

This change of emphasis, if not of policy, provides fresh evidence that our occupying authorities are adopting a more realistic policy toward Germany. Changes in the economic structure are now being judged with reference to their effect on the German economy, instead of their theoretical desirability. This does not imply that the occupying authorities are disposed to tolerate practices on the part of cartels and monopolies that would hamper production or raise prices unduly. But it does imply a willingness to forgo, or at any rate postpone indefinitely, a break-up of existing industrial organizations that would involve costly adjustments and slow the pace of recovery.

Before the war German coal, steel, and other products supplied western Europe, directly or indirectly, with capital goods of the kind now desperately needed to raise the level of production in those areas. And Germany in turn supplied markets for great quantities of raw materials and other goods exported from neighboring countries. Hence it is no exaggeration to say that the chances of success of the Marshall Plan depend in large measure on the extent and speed of German recovery. Western Europe cannot afford to wait indefinitely for that recovery to be achieved, if it is to resist successfully the political disturbances that are the inevitable accompaniment of economic distress. Hence it is of first importance for our occupying authorities to concentrate their efforts on increasing German productivity, even though attainment of their production goals may necessitate postponement or abandonment of desired reforms.

Mason's Crow

Obviously someone sold Commissioner Guy Mason a bill of goods when the Commissioner the other day called for the resignation of Dr. Brian Blades, chief surgeon at Gallinger Hospital. Commissioner Mason deserves commendation for the honest way in which he apologized publicly to Dr. Blades after learning the whole story. That, however, does not excuse his original indiscretion in blasting Dr. Blades as well as several other members of the Gallinger staff for an alleged irregularity before investigating the facts personally. On the face of it, Mr. Mason's sideswipe appeared to be a reply in kind to the criticism of Gallinger administration voiced the other day by Dr. Blades, who also is the head of the George Washington University medical staff, and Dr. Robert J. Coffey, who holds a similar position at Georgetown University Hospital. This criticism itself was open to objection because of the manner in which it was released.

It is not necessary here to go into the merits of the feud between Drs. Blades and Coffey on the one hand and the Health Department on the other. The all-too-prevalent pastime of dragging Gallinger over the coals in public for everything from a poorly cooked meal to a major building defect is, however, a singularly ineffective means of remedying anything. Conditions at Gallinger, to be sure, are not what they ought to be. But what is needed is fewer pronunciamentos and more cooperative efforts calmly to get at the root of the difficulties and then to obtain funds for their correction. Certainly the net effect of indiscriminate attacks can only be to sap public confidence in the municipal hospital.

Return Of The DC-6

Ailing airline revenues should receive a shot in the arm from the restoration of DC-6 transport planes to passenger service. After one fatal crash and one near-catastrophe last fall, the airlines voluntarily grounded 97 DC-6s then in operation, pending extensive modifications and elimination of safety hazards. This move was costly both in terms of income and service, for several airlines which had counted heavily on the 300-mile-an-hour DC-6 as their postwar workhorse were forced to go back to the slower and less commodious DC-4s and DC-3s, with consequent delays and schedule interruptions. Four major carriers now have announced that they have completed conversions and will have DC-6s back in service this month. That is good news for the traveling public and for airline managements alike, since it promises faster and safer transportation within the pattern of schedule reliability so essential to sound airline expansion. If nothing else, the experience with defects in the DC-6, and before that in the Constellation, emphasizes the good sense—and, in the long run, economy—in the recommendation of the President's Air Policy Commission that all new plane types be thoroughly tested in cargo use before they are placed in passenger service.

Baby Prospects

Our baby crops seem to be following farm production in getting bigger and better. In 1947, the Census Bureau reports, we topped our all-time record with 3,908,000 births. In 1946 we had established a new high. This might lead us to think we would keep on chalking up annually new records in birth rates. But some signs point otherwise. Both marriages and births showed a tendency to decline toward the end of last year. And statisticians remind us that it isn't that families are having so many children as that the war and postwar marriage boom produced more families. The Nation has fewer spinsters and bachelors proportionately than it has had for many a year.

Whether the baby boom continues will depend partly on economic conditions and on housing. More directly it will depend on whether the marriage fervor continues. This likewise is influenced by material factors, but also, according to students of cycles, operates on an 18-year rhythm. They say we have passed the peak and are now on the downturn of such a marriage curve. Whether or not we accept the cycle theory, it seems evident that the degree of zeal toward marriage and parenthood is not altogether regulated by war and economics—as the downturn in marriage and births during the prosperous 1920s demonstrated. There just seem to be periods in which "everybody's doin' it."

SKI JUMPER

He stands a moment, dark against the sky
That holds the blue glint of a spreading wing;
Imperious and proud he seems, so high
Against the winds and all their challenging.
Tense, crowded faces lift from far below
To this one lonely figure poised for flight,
Now soon to leap away along the snow—
Dark form diminished in a blinding light.

Soon, small and fading in the unheeding vast
Of cold and whiteness that have gripped the lands,
He glides to silence, or he flashes past
To sprawl with flailing legs and clutching hands;
But while he stands so, flesh exults to see
Man's shape against the sky in majesty.

"Repression In Greece"

Your March 7 editorial, "Repression in Greece," deplores, and correctly, the arrest of two Socialist newspaper editors for "publishing articles creating dissension among the Greek people." But the viciously antidemocratic character of the Greek government is even more accurately shown when we learn what actions these newspaper editors were protesting. This incident was reported by the New York Herald Tribune's Homer Bigart last week, and an editorial in that newspaper on March 6 had this to say:

"These editors who are Socialists (but anti-Communists) had attacked the government for executing political prisoners who had been in jail since 1944. The 'crimes' they were accused of had been committed against the German Nazi and Italian Fascist occupation forces. Since they had been in jail for more than three years they could obviously have had no part in the recent and current guerilla activities.

"The reasons given for their execution at this time are hardly flattering to the United States. During the period when the British were 'advising' the Greeks, it was felt that the death sentences could not be carried out because of the likelihood of an unfavorable reaction by British public opinion and the British Labor government. Now that the British have been replaced by the Americans, this consideration apparently no longer holds.

". . . the official Greeks are operating on the theory that their 'friends and allies' will condone all their acts. They should be disabused of that notion."

Religion In Schools

My conscience will not permit me to remain silent over the decision rendered by the Supreme Court in connection with the Vashti McCollum suit. That suit was brought for the purpose of prohibiting the teaching of religious classes in the public schools, the reason the mother presented being that inasmuch as she is an atheist herself, and desires her young son brought up an atheist also, she does not wish him humiliated by the necessity of being isolated while other children are attending religious instructions.

This decision, despite the fact that one justice claimed, "There is nothing in the Constitution to draw the line, nor in any other legal source . . .; a matter on which we can find no law but our own prepossessions," would indicate the late President Roosevelt's wisdom in wanting to inject new and younger blood on the Supreme bench. It seems incredible that any red-blooded American, especially if he has reared young sons of his own, could succumb to the whimsical complaint of an atheist objector and refuse permission to perhaps millions of school children in the United States who badly need and desire religious instructions. Such a procedure by our highest tribunal is incomprehensible to intelligent American citizens.

The contention of Mrs. McCollum that her son was subjected to ridicule for failure to attend religious instructions is untenable. Regardless of her contentions and desires, in the face of our terrific crime wave and the alarming juvenile delinquency, it would seem a wise procedure to not only allow religious instructions in the public schools but to encourage it.

Byrd's Revolt

It is surprising that the House Un-American Activities Committee, in its constant search for subversive elements, failed to mark the utterances of Senator Harry F. Byrd and certain Southern Democrats as high-water levels in the rise of treasonable acts against our Government.

The arrogant appeal to riot and racial prejudice instigated by the so-called rebel fringe of the Democratic Party is merely an indication that this party has failed miserably to represent the American people and their Government at home and abroad.

Although it maintains a stranglehold upon the South, the Democratic Party does not in any sense represent the majority of the citizens south of the Potomac. Given a free ballot and a free election it is doubtful whether men like Byrd or Rankin could ever attain office.

"I Shall Return"

As a veteran, I would not vote for General MacArthur because of his inexcusably bad grammar. I don't think we ought to have a President who says "I shall return," when he most assuredly meant "we shall return," about a million of us. Modesty of the quarterback is an American tradition; pomposity from a military man is to be deplored and feared.

"Merger Menace"

I read with great interest your February 26 editorial, "Merger Menace." It is my hope that the members of Congress acquainted themselves with the importance of the editorial and, more important, that the readers of The Washington Post studied the importance of what is taking place in our Nation's economy due to the ever-increasing mergers.

The National Federation of Small Business, which has the largest individual membership of any business organization in the Nation, makes as its principal and main objective in the protection of small business all-out virgorous, immediate program by the Administration for the enforcement of anti-trust laws.

The federation, after a careful study of the Kefauver-O'Mahoney bill, presented the question to its membership for a vote. The members, in turn, overwhelmingly voted in support of the Kefauver-O'Mahoney bill, which would prevent ever-increasing mergers, which would create greater concentration in the hands of a few big industries.

It is beyond the understanding of the members of the federation, after the Judiciary Committee of the House reported this bill out, why there should be delaying actions in pigeonholing the bill in the Rules Committee.

It is our understanding that the Federal Trade Commission, for many years back, has requested that the loopholes in present anti-trust laws be closed by amendments so that the commission could effectively get at this problem.

It resolves itself into this serious situation, particularly affecting independent retailers. Due to the ever-increasing mergers, the retailer is afraid to state his position openly in criticism of his suppliers' unfair practices, because the retailer is afraid that if he only condemns, with the ever-decreasing number of supplies, his source of supply will be eliminated.

Third-Round Increases

In view of increasing interest and conjecture on the size and extent of the approaching "third-round" wage increase pattern, it is wise to nail down several facts which are being bandied about rather loosely both by the press and those in wage negotiations.

For one thing, several recent wage boosts are being labeled incorrectly as third-round increases. For example, the 6.8 per cent raise just awarded CIO's Maritime Union and the 9 cents decided on by the meat packers and AFL's Meat Cutters have been cited in some quarters as illustrations of such third-round increases. And the conclusion has been drawn that settlements this year will be smaller, therefore, than the 18½ cents common in the past two years.

But one key fact is being overlooked in such superficial interpretations: some companies negotiate only once a year, while others adjust wages twice or three times annually. Thus, when 1948 negotiations of the auto, steel and electrical industries—which set the pattern—are settled, their wage will be fixed for the rest of the year. But the above-mentioned maritime and meatpacking increases are slated for further change by summertime, when additional increases will probably be granted on the basis of the heavy-industry settlements. The combined increases, that is, those given now and the supplementary ones in the summer, make up the true third-round adjustment.

On another count several people who review the wage scene are calling attention to the different-sized increases currently being reported, and see in this almost a sign of increasing deviations from pattern. They must be reminded, again, that the factor of semiannual bargaining in some industries makes any one of their increases noncomparable to the increase in an industry which bargains annually.

A striking example is the cotton textile industry in the North. It has had five—not three—major increases since the end of the war. Each of the five has been relatively small, yet in the aggregate they provide 42 cents. This will compare closely with the totals recorded in the higher paying auto and steel industries when their 1948 negotiations are settled.

It should also be pointed out that this "phenomenon" of variations in wage increases has, in fact, been common in every month since the end of the war. It is only in the broad view, and not in individual settlements, that a pattern has been followed in 1946 and 1947.

Basically, only the metals and metal fabrication industries have clung to the 18½ and 11½ cents with little variation. Some lower-paying industries, such as lumber and paper, have provided lesser increases, particularly in lower-wage areas of the country. Higher-wage industries, of which construction and printing are prime examples, have had much larger increases. When added up percentagewise, however, most increases have clustered in the same general area as those arrived at in the auto, steel and electrical industries, and in all likelihood, the same will hold true this year.

Of Kings and Kerns

EARLY IRISH LITERATURE, by Myles Dillon. (The University of Chicago Press, $3.50.)

It is a peculiarity of the heroic literature of Ireland that almost every scholar who undertakes to explain it ends by galloping away on some large and comfortable generalization. Professor Dillon's particular hobby-horse is the similarity which is said to exist between the Old Irish and the Sanskrit and between ancient Celtic institutions and social usages and those of Aryan India. From this he argues that the heroic literature represents a primitive Indo-European literary tradition, older than that of Homer, and in the Iliad or ancient college of poets, whose training is said to have required a dozen years, he sees the equivalent of the Indian Brahmins. Indeed, he believes that until the sixteenth century, Ireland, or at any rate that part of Ireland beyond the English pale, remained more Indian than European in its culture, cut off as it was from the mainstreams of Roman, Mediaeval and Renaissance influence. This might be more impressive if there were any agreement among the archaeologists and anthropologists about who the primordial Indo-Europeans were, what they looked like and where they came from and what were their customs. About all that seems certain is that Western Europe was at one time occupied by a small and swarthy people who did not speak any of the Indo-European languages and that they were presently submerged by waves of invaders from the East who did speak these languages, and that one of the earliest waves was comprised of people called by the Greeks Keltoi, and described by ancient writers as being generally fair-haired, white skinned and grey-eyed. At some pre-historic time, probably about fifth or fourth century before Christ, a tribe or maybe several tribes of Celts invaded Ireland, and after subjugating the indigenous inhabitants, set up an aristocracy or ruling caste. Legend says they were the sons of a chieftain named Miledh, or in Latin, Milesius, and remoter descendants of another chief called Gaedel. Legend also says they came by way of Spain; but the archaeologists think it was more probably from Gaul or Brittany.

These Milesian Gaels were on the whole a rather barbarous crew, and doubtless much inferior in culture to the conquered race, known in legend as the Fir Bolg, or men of the bags. It is possible, of course, that these Fir Bolg were an earlier set of invaders, for they are spoken of as having been at one time settled near the Aegean. There was also a mysterious people called the Tuatha De Danann, who went underground, as it were, after the conquest and later emerged as the fairies. Anyway, the conquering Gaels had certain resemblances to the Achaoi and Trojans of Homer; they were, for example, skilled in the use of horses and chariots, reckoned their wealth by cattle, slaves and concubines, had relatives in the supernatural world and their otherwise incessant wars were often interrupted for single combats between champions.

These are the people whose doings are described in the oldest group of the heroic legends, known as the Red Branch or Ulidian (Ulster) cycle. The longest and most famous of the legends is the Tain Bo Cuainge, or Cattle-Raid of Cooley, the nearest thing to an epic on the Homeric model. The cast of characters includes the great Ulster hero, Cu Chulainn, who defeats an army almost single handed and the astonishing Queen Medb, or Maeve, of Connacht, who passed into mediaeval legend as Queen Mab of the Fairies, a very perverse lady who, I suspect, could readily make herself at home in our Twentieth Century. She is in some sense a counterpart of Helen, as Cu Chulainn is of Achilles and Perdiad of Hector. Another tale in this group is the tale of Deirdriu, or Dierdre, and the Sons of Usnech, which has become famous over the world in the beautiful dramatic version by the late John Millington Synge. Only slightly less famous than the Red Branch legends are the Fenian or Ossianic legends, from which many modern Anglo-Irish poets, notably Yeats, have borrowed heavily.

A problem raised by any literature of this kind is how far it is to be considered purely fanciful and how far a confused recollection of actual personages and events. A century ago the Tale of Troy was believed almost wholly mythical, but it has now acquired a considerable historicity as the result of the excavation of the Troad and the discoveries at Mycenae and Knossos. In the case of the Red Branch legends the problem is complicated by the fact that they were not committed to writing for nearly a thousand years after the traditional date of the events described. Even so, the early manuscripts were destroyed in the Danish invasions and with the exception of a few fragments from the eleventh century the oldest versions are from the twelfth century and some of the principal sources are as late as the fifteenth century. Thus the question is how faithfully these reflect the ancient tradition. The traditional date of the events of the Fenian cycle is in the reign of Cormac Mac Airt in Third Century A. D., or about 400 years after the events related in the Red Branch legends. The Fianna appear, from various internal evidences, such as Darmaid's "curly black hair," to have been recruited from the subject race, and their history to have originated as mere folklore of the scattered and oppressed Fir Bolg. But the Fenian legends were afterward elaborated by the bardic poets, an hereditary class, which came to the fore after the Tenth Century A. D., supplanting the Filid. For it was at about this time, after the fires of the Danish terror, that conquerors and conquered became fused into a single people.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Military Phase

AFTER WHAT has happened in Czechoslovakia and Finland, the conflict with the Soviet Union can no longer be treated as a cold war waged by propaganda, infiltration, influence, and indirect economic and military pressure. The seizure of power in Czechoslovakia and the incorporation of Finland within the Soviet military sphere must be regarded, it seems to me, as strategical actions, planned by military men, in anticipation of war.

Lippmann

For Czechoslovakia and Finland were already safely within the Russian diplomatic orbit. But from the Soviet point of view they were not securely within the Russian military system. In the conduct of war the Kremlin could not count upon them completely. The Czechs, though in the main sympathetic to Russia, are democratic and western by tradition and in their economic connections. The Finns are not only a democratic people with a western culture, but they are profoundly and instinctively anti-Russian. Thus these two countries are vulnerable and incalculable elements.

YET BOTH are of critical military importance. Finland is the key to the Baltic Sea and Scandinavia, and to all the northern approaches to Russia. Czechoslovakia, which contains the famous "Bohemian Quadrilateral," dominates the Danube Valley, lies on the flank of Austria and of Poland, and athwart the roads to the Adriatic and to southern Germany.

Finland and Czechoslovakia have always been, and still are, two of the three positions of the highest strategical importance to Russia. The third is Turkey. All three must be held securely to defend Russian territory and all three are necessary to the military expansion of the Russian empire.

THE SEIZURE of power in order to suppress the democratic liberty and national independence of the Czechs must be taken to mean that in the minds of the rulers of Russia military considerations now have priority. The intervention of Stalin himself in the demands upon Finland may be regarded as evidence that the Kremlin no longer thinks that the issues of the great conflict can be settled by the cold war.

From the general ideological and diplomatic conflict Stalin has always held himself in some degree personally aloof, perhaps because he is too much the realist to believe that the great issue of power can be decided apart from military power. The measures which he has taken in Prague and Helsinki are not ideological and diplomatic. They are military measures of the kind with which Stalin has always identified himself, and they were undertaken not for the satisfaction of expanding communism but in order to fortify and increase the military power of the Russian state.

The gravity of this development is unmistakable. It can only be treated as signifying that Stalin also believes what Mr. Churchill predicted a few weeks ago, what General de Gaulle has been saying for some time, that events are moving toward a climax, and that a military showdown in the field of power is coming.

THIS DOES not mean that war is imminent or unavoidable. But it does mean that the evolution and outcome of events will now be determined by the military considerations which would really count if the showdown ended in war. That is to say, from now on the issue is whether the balance of military power can be made to favor the Soviet Union or the western nations. If it turns decisively against the one or the other, the stronger coalition will offer the weaker the choice between concession and resistance. If the balance remains even and indecisive, a negotiated settlement by compromise could bring about a truce and a modus vivendi.

In reality, therefore, the struggle is now a race for military advantage — for strategical positions, for allies, and for the development of potential into actual military power. The seizure of Czechoslovakia is the occupation of a great fortified base in the center of Europe: potentially it was already part of the Russian military system; but it will now become an actual part of it. Thus the game is no longer being played with tokens, with influence, with gestures, with ideas, with paper guaranties, and with potential power. It will have to be played with real power, with weapons that have been manufactured, with reserves that have been trained and can be mobilized, with alliances that are serious, and on ground that is held firmly and securely.

FOR WHEN the showdown comes, as it will in the fairly near future, the men who will decide what the showdown shows, what the real balance of power is, what would be the risks and the prospects if it came to war, will not be the ideologists, nor the politicians, nor the diplomatists, but the military authorities in Moscow, in London, in Paris and in Washington.

U. S. Employe Held By Czechs as Spy

Prague, March 14 (U.P.).—A United States Embassy official said today that a Slovak employe of the newly opened American Consulate in Bratislava had been held incommunicado since his arrest two weeks, as a "German spy."

All requests to see the employe, Andrej E. Spiro, 25, have been rejected by police headquarters at Bratislava, the official said.

Argentine Envoy Flies Here for Farewell

Buenos Aires, Argentine, March 14 (U.P.).—Dr. Oscar Ivanessevich, former Argentine ambassador to the United States, left for Washington by plane today "to say farewell to good friends in America."

Ivanessevich, new minister of education, said he did not know who would replace him as ambassador to Washington.

McGrath Assails 'Soak Tenant' Rent Law of Republicans

By The Associated Press

Democratic National Chairman J. Howard McGrath yesterday assailed what he called "the Republican save-the-landlord, soak-the-tenant rent control law."

Moreover, he declared GOP members of the House Banking Committee are trying to enfeeble rent controls further. He referred to plans for stripping Federal officials of major authority, and turning over to local boards the power to raise rents or lift controls completely.

Sees Inflationary Trend

In a formal statement, McGrath declared:

"Republican efforts to weaken rent control will add to the already inflationary trend in rents made possible by the weak Republican mock rent control law already in effect."

He said there have been "widespread illegal rent increases."

The House opens debate today on a bill to continue rent controls for another year, but with local rent boards—nominated by the Governors of the various States—given full authority to increase rents or remove ceilings entirely within their jurisdictions.

Bill Amended by Group

The House Banking Committee approved the bill Friday. The amendment giving full authority to local boards was put into it on a 12 to 8 vote with virtually a party-line split, Republicans supporting it and Democrats opposing.

Such an amendment was defeated in the Senate. That body already has passed a bill to continue controls, in less modified form, to May 1, 1949. The House Committee, after revising the control set-up, set the expiration date for April 1, 1949. Without continuing legislation rent controls would die March 31.

Matter Of Fact

The Mystery

THE GROSS INCOMPETENCE of the handling of the Condon case by the Committee on Un-American Activity (which has led the New York Herald Tribune correctly to describe the committee's chairman as "our society's greatest single gift to Communist infiltration") has already attracted much attention. Yet another aspect of the case, in its way at least as serious, has been almost entirely overlooked. That is the mystery which surrounds the publication by the Thomas Committee of part of the famous letter from the Federal Bureau of Investigation to the Department of Commerce on the subject of Dr. Edward U. Condon's alleged shortcomings. The mystery is simply this: How did Representative J. Parnell Thomas' sleuths get their version of the FBI letter?

Mr. Robert Stripling, chief investigator for the Thomas Committee, refuses to answer this question. But it is quite obvious, as Mr. Stripling agrees, that the Thomas version of the FBI letter could only have come from the confidential files of either the FBI or of the Commerce Department. On that point, spokesmen for both the FBI and the Commerce Department also agree. Yet—and here is the mystery—the Commerce Department officially and heatedly denies that it is responsible for divulging part of the contents of the famous letter to the Thomas investigators. And so does the FBI. The spokesman for the FBI states that it is illegal for the FBI to divulge such information, unless publicly ordered to do so by the Attorney General. And the Commerce Department asserts further that the Thomas Committee has demanded the letter on several occasions in the past, and was each time refused.

THE IMPLICATIONS are perfectly obvious. Since the FBI or the Commerce Department were the only possible sources for the letter, one or the other, in disclaiming responsibility, is mistaken. The error is no doubt unconscious. The version of the FBI letter made public by the Thomas Committee is incomplete. And it varies in a number of particulars from the original letter. This indicates that a Thomas Committee sleuth was allowed to read a part of the letter hastily, or it was read to him, and his notes were inaccurate. At any rate, assuming that both the FBI and Commerce disclaimers are perfectly sincere, this must mean that some person with access to the confidential files of one organization or the other has divulged part of the contents illegally and without official sanction to a Thomas investigator.

Presumably Representative Thomas or Mr. Robert Stripling knows who the person who has acted illegally is. He would seem a far fitter object for congressional attention than Dr. Condon, or than Mr. Hamilton Robinson, the State Department's leading Republican, who has been hauled up for a congressional grilling on the ground that he has a second cousin who may have leftist tendencies.

There is an element of fantasy in the whole situation. For it does not only mean that the measures taken to protect confidential material in either the Commerce Department or the FBI are ludicrously inadequate. It also means that the legislative branch of the Government is now engaged in spying on the executive branch, even to the extent of obtaining secret information through underground methods.

THERE HAVE BEEN, moreover, other parallel episodes. The ineffable Represetnative Clare Hoffman of Mischigan discovered recently that his name was listed in a confidential lead file of the Civil Service Commission, and made a tremendous row about it. Hoffman had, of course, no direct access to the files. However, certain investigative agencies, including the FBI and the Army security branch, did have such direct access, a practice now ended. Again, this summer 10 State Department employes were discharged, some of them certainly unjustly, as potentially disloyal. Some person gave their names to the press, thus compromising their reputations and perhaps ruining their careers. Only the State Department, the Civil Service Commission and the FBI had access to these names.

These episodes lead to the conclusion that individuals in the executive branch, with access to confidential files closely affecting the reputations of Government employes, are using this information either to curry favor with men like Hoffman and Thomas or for other reasons. It is almost impossible to exaggerate the seriousness of this sort of thing. It is already difficult to persuade competent men to risk their reputation in Government. Since the Condon affair, some are now talking seriously of resigning. Moreover, the very real necessity for proper security measures to deal with pro-Communists in the Government is obscured and distorted, to the delight of the Communists. The most interesting revelation which Representative Thomas and his chief investigator can now make would not concern the alleged indiscretion of Dr. Condon. It would concern rather how the Thomas Committee came into possession of the FBI letter.

ITU Injunction Plea by U. S. Filed: March 18 Deadline

Indianapolis, March 13 (U.P.).—The Government's petition for a temporary injunction against the International Typographical Union was taken under advisement by Federal Judge Luther M. Swygert today.

Counsel for the National Labor Relations Board asked a restraining order preventing the AFL union from imposing "no contract" policies and closed shop conditions on newspaper publishers. Gerhard Van Arkel, counsel for the ITU, told the court there was no evidence the union's officers ever had imposed conditions of employment or had asked for illegal agreements.

Both sides asked for time to file more briefs. Judge Swygert set March 18 as the deadline, indicating he would not hand down a decision until after March 23.

Veto-Proof Vote On Tax-Cut Bill Seen This Week

By the United Press

Senate Republican leaders yesterday prepared to ram their $4,700,000,000 tax-cut bill through the Senate by a big enough vote to make President Truman think twice before he vetoes it.

The bill will be brought to the floor Wednesday and some GOP spokesmen believe it will be passed and sent back to the House before the week is out.

There are increasing signs Republican strategists have succeeded in their primary aim—to make the tax cut so enticing that enough Democrats will vote with them to override a veto. At least four Democrats and one Republican who voted to sustain Mr. Truman's two vetoes last year said they are ready to go against him this time.

Scooter Hits Auto; 2 Boys Are Injured

One Critically Hurt In Crash at 14th And Constitution

Two teen-age boys riding a motorscooter were injured when they crashed into an automobile at 14th st. and Constitution ave. nw. yesterday.

Earlier crashes killed one man and injured another in Charles County, Md., and injured two others in Greater Washington.

In critical condition at Emergency Hospital after the scooter accident is Wallace B. Graves, 16, of 2940 Newark st. nw. He received a fractured right leg, multiple cuts and bruises and possible internal injuries.

Police said Wallace was driving east on Constitution ave. in heavy Sunday traffic when he crashed into a car driven by Edward P. Meyers, 23, of 6616 4th st. nw. Meyers was traveling west on Constitution ave., and was about to make a left turn into 14th st. The motorscooter shattered the front right side window of the car and tore part of the running board loose.

Graves' companion, riding on a rear seat, was William Bird, 15, of 5325 Baltimore ave., Prince Georges County, Md. He is in fair condition at Emergency Hospital with a fractured nose and multiple cuts.

Both boys were first given first aid at the scene, while sightseers and motorists gathered in curiosity.

The Maryland traffic fatality was identified as Richard Smith, 29, of Indian Head. His neck was broken when his car overturned and caught fire on Route 301 near Bel Alton. Maryland police said he was riding in the rear seat of a car operated by Winston Morris Alexander, 28, also of Indian Head.

The car struck a soft shoulder, turned over several times and burst into flames, but no one was burned, according to police. Smith was removed to the Hunt & Ryan funeral home in Waldorf, where he was pronounced dead by Dr. Edward J. Edelen, of La Plata, acting medical examiner. Dr. Edelen issued a certificate of accidental death.

Alexander was admitted to the Naval Gunpowder Factory Dispensary in Indian Head with a broken ankle.

Frederick Gessner, 15, of 4904 Monroe st., Newton Village, Md., was seriously injured Sunday when he was struck by a hit-and-run truck driver on a bridge in the 5100 block of River rd.

William R. Sherwood, 22, of 4845 W st. nw., received possible internal injuries and cuts and bruises when the car he was driving struck a lamp post and then a tree on Massachusetts ave. at Observatory Circle nw. early yesterday. His condition was described as good at Emergency Hospital.

In February

Area Traffic Deaths Jump From 8 to 15

February's traffic deaths in Greater Washington jumped to 15, from January's 8, as accident and injury figures also increased.

The total for the same area for February of last year was 21 fatalities.

Accidents jumped 157 over the previous month and there was an increase of 85 in the number of injuries. Compared with the same month last year the record shows an increase of 501 in the number of accidents and 140 in the number of injuries.

Police attributed some of the increase this year to the month's weather, which caused hazardous driving conditions. The figures, as compiled from records, show:

Meyers to Face Holtzoff Today For Sentencing

By the United Press

Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers is scheduled to be sentenced today for persuading the "dummy president" of his wartime aviation firm to lie about his $135,000 in "kickback" profits.

The onetime Air Force procurement officer faces a possible maximum penalty of 30 years in prison —10 years on each count of his conviction for subornation of perjury. Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff has indicated that Meyers, now free on bond, will be committed to jail as soon as sentence is passed.

The retired general's attorneys are expected to seek an immediate trial for Meyers on perjury charges growing out of the Government's claim that he, like Lamarre, lied to the Senate investigators. If granted, the move would automatically stay execution of the impending sentence.

Statehood Urged For Hawaii Now

By the United Press

Roy E. James, retiring chief of the Interior Department's Pacific branch, yesterday urged that Hawaii be admitted to the union as the Forty-ninth State without further delay.

He said it also "is high time that a democratic form of government is provided" for the people of other Pacific islands under the United States flag.

James left his Government post yesterday to run for Congress on the Republican ticket in Pennsylvania's twentieth district.

'Like Father' Theory Given Action Test

John Connors is a Police Department experiment testing the "like father, like son" theory.

Maj. Robert J. Barrett, superintendent of police, took him from a scout car several weeks ago and put him on the Detective Bureau automobile squad. His job is to recover stolen cars and arrest those who steal them. His father, Lieut. Joseph Connors, did the same job for 40 years.

Connors

"It stands to reason," Barrett explained, "that the son of a policeman picks up valuable information toward good law enforcement from his father."

Barrett said he wants to encourage the sons of District policemen to join the force. He put Connors on the automobile squad because of his father's excellent record there.

Young Connors backs up Major Barrett's theory.

"Dad's work and my own inclination sort of drove me toward thinking about automobiles. When I was a kid I used to try to see how many different cars I could identify on the streets."

Lieut. "Joe" Connors, who died in 1946, was a policeman even before there were automobiles. Later he arrested many speeding motorists while riding a bicycle. Still later, when car stealing became a major racket, Joe's experience was put to work when he directed detectives in their efforts to curb the crimes.

John now is being tutored in the technique by one of his father's pupils, Lieut. Jacob Wolf. If he makes good, promotion is in store for him.

John joined the force in 1940 after three years at Catholic University. He served alternately as a foot patrolman and scout car man until Barrett decided upon the experiment.

He is married, has three children and lives at 917 Quincy st. nw.

Plane Crash Bodies in Inaccessible Area

Anchorage, Alaska, March 14 (AP).—Bodies of 30 persons in the wreckage of an airliner which crashed into the face of a rock cliff and then tumbled 2500 feet down the steep slopes of Mount Sanford may never be recovered.

Authorities said today rescue parties would be up against great odds in trying to reach the scene on the glacier-spotted 16,208-foot mountain.

The chartered Northwest Airline plane, which vanished Friday night on a flight from Shanghai to St. Paul, was sighted yesterday at the 8500-foot level of the glacier-laden mountain 130 miles northeast of here.

The plane carried a crew of six and 24 seamen flying from Shanghai to New York. The seamen were members of the crew of the tanker Sunset, of the Overseas Tankship Corporation, which they had delivered to the Chinese government.

Jim Gale, civilian expert with the Air Force 10th Rescue Squadron said, "it isn't impossible to get to the wreckage, but there is little hope of reaching it."

He said the last half mile of the climb would be especially hazardous. The mountain has active glaciers on three sides and is pocked with deep chevasses.

"I'm afraid that if a group went in," he said, "they might start slides, bringing down tons of ice on them."

Copper River Indians have always been afraid to go into the mountains of that area because of the hazards.

R. J. Wells of Anchorage radio station KENI flew over the wreck today and described "solid ice blocks so high it was impossible to estimate their height."

Navigator on Plane Line Official Says

Kansas City, March 14 (AP).—A statement by an union official today that there may have been no navigator aboard the DC-4 airliner which crashed in Alaska was denied by an executive of Northwest Airlines.

Mil Senior, vice president of the American Communications Association (CIO), said that Wayne Worsley, listed as navigator of the plane, may have been a passenger, and not on duty as a crew member.

At St. Paul, K. R. Ferguson, Northwest Airlines vice president, said Worsley was on duty as a navigator.

"In fact," said Ferguson, "there were four navigation-qualified persons aboard the plane. These were the two pilots, the co-pilot and navigator Worsley."

Navigator Worsley was joint chairman of a navigator-flight-radio officers' union committee meeting in St. Paul, Minn., several weeks ago. "This was to have been his last flight before joint strike action was to be used in a final attempt to force safety measures suggested by the union," Senior announced.

NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY

A Brief Review of the 103rd Annual Statement to its Policyholders

Assets . . . The assets, held for the protection of the Company's life insurance and annuity contracts and to meet other obligations, totalled $4,234,184,598 at the end of 1947. Bonds and stocks are valued in conformity with the laws of the several States and as prescribed by the National Association of Insurance Commissioners.

Liabilities . . . The Company's insurance and annuity reserves and other liabilities aggregated $4,003,065,874 at the end of 1947. Surplus funds held for general contingencies totalled $231,118,724.

Reserves . . . At the close of 1947 the Company reached a major objective in its program for strengthening insurance and annuity reserves. All of its life insurance reserves are now held on an interest basis of either 2½ per cent or 2 per cent. All of its annuity reserves are on a 2 per cent basis. The program of reserve strengthening, which was undertaken to protect the interests of policyholders, has given recognition to the effect upon the Company's net earning rate of exceedingly low yields on high-grade investments. Policyholders can take renewed assurance from the knowledge that the Company has an overall reserve basis as strong as, if not stronger than, that of any other life insurance company in the country.

Mortality Experience . . . The Company's mortality experience in 1947 was favorably low. In November of 1947 the Company adopted for its new series of policies a mortality table based on more recent mortality experience and therefore, in the years to come, the margin between "expected mortality" and "actual mortality" experience should not be so great as in the past.

Expenses . . . The Company, in common with practically all individuals and businesses throughout the country, quite understandably has been affected by rising costs of materials and wages. Continued efforts are being made to improve efficiency and effect economies without impairing the essential services rendered by the Company.

Interest Earnings . . . While the rate of interest earned by the Company in 1947 exceeded the rate required to maintain reserves because, of the Company's program of reserve strengthening, the rates of return available on new investments of high quality continued low throughout the better part of the year. However, in the closing months of 1947 there was an encouraging upturn in interest rates on new investments which it is hoped will continue.

Dividends . . . The provision for 1948 dividends to policyholders is $37,151,312, as compared with $41,730,229 for 1947. The amount available for dividends was affected by the low yields from prime investments and increased expenses due to higher costs of materials and wages, as well as by the Company's program of strengthening reserves mentioned above.

Termination Dividends . . . The Company has declared termination dividends payable in 1948 on life insurance policies in certain categories. Such dividends, which are included in the provision for 1948 dividends to policyholders, become payable as the policies in these categories terminate in 1948 by death, maturity or surrender for cash after having been in force at least twenty years.

Surrender Allowances . . . For the year 1948 the Company has adopted a plan for allowance of amounts in addition to contractual cash values under life insurance policies issued before June 1, 1944 which during 1948 are surrendered for cash. This plan has been made possible because of the Company's having completed the major steps in its long-range program of strengthening insurance reserves which has been in progress for several years.

New Series of Policies . . . On November 17, 1947 the Company introduced a new series of policies with cash and other non-forfeiture values based on the Commissioners 1941 Standard Ordinary Table of Mortality and interest at 2 per cent. In the Company's series of policies issued from June 1, 1944 to November 17, 1947, such values were based on the American Experience Table of Mortality and interest at 2½ per cent.

Life Insurance In Force . . . At the end of 1947 the Company's life insurance in force exceeded nine billion dollars, which was the largest volume of protection in force in the Company during its entire history. Policyholders have $9,063,604,614 of life insurance protection under 3,683,297 policies. This was $520,296,199 greater than at the close of the previous year.

Sales . . . Sales of new life insurance during 1947 totalled $857,384,000. In the amounts of sales and life insurance in force, Family Income policies paid for in 1947 are reported on a higher basis than in previous years. This change has been adopted to conform with the customary practice among many other companies. On a corresponding basis, sales of new life insurance in 1947 were approximately 2½ per cent less than the sales in 1946.

Payments to Policyholders and Beneficiaries . . . During 1947 the Company's total payments to policyholders and beneficiaries aggregated $196,798,797. Of this amount, living policyholders received $115,716,396 and the beneficiaries of 19,804 policyholders who died received $81,082,401.

A Nationwide Organization . . . The Company does business in each of the 48 States, the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii and the Dominion of Canada. While national in scope, the New York Life is very largely local in its operations in providing services to its policyholders through 138 Branch Offices in principal business centers, as well as through its sales organization of over 5,600 agents located throughout the United States and Canada.

Lodge Honors GPO Masons With Party

More than 200 Masonic members of the staff of the Government Printing Office turned out Saturday for the first get-acquainted party staged in their honor by King Solomon Lodge, No. 31, FAAM, at Masonic Temple, 801 13th st. nw.

The highlight of the party was the visit of Dean Hill Stanley, grand master of District of Columbia Masons.

Stanley Mills

Stanley, in a short talk, stressed the importance of attending lodge regularly to obtain the full benefits of Masonic brotherhood.

Roger Q. Mills, worshipful master of the host lodge, extended a welcome to the visiting GPO members, urging those whose mother lodge is elsewhere to avail themselves of the facilities of King Solomon, the only daylight lodge in this area.

Mills, who also is general chairman of the Masonic Night of Thrills program, which will be presented in Griffith Stadium June 16, was pledged the working cooperation of the visiting delegation.

Entertainment was provided by a Masonic quartet, and Technicolor movies of many of the Nation's famous beauty spots were shown. A buffet luncheon followed the meeting.

Auto Liability Insurance Rates Boosted

An immediate increase in automobile liability insurance rates in the District and five States was announced yesterday by the National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters.

In the District, bodily injury rates are now up 8.6 per cent and property damage rates 8.9 per cent for private cars. There is no change in bodily injury rates for commercial cars, but property damage rates are up 18.6 per cent.

The five States include West Virginia, where bodily injury rates for commercial cars are up 8.5 per cent. Other States to have revised rates are California, Idaho, Rhode Island and Missouri.

M. McArdle, president of the LeRoy Mark Insurance Co. here, gave the following reasons for the increase:

"Losses last year were heavier than in any other of my 28 years in the insurance business. Repair bills have more than doubled since before the war, and juries are returning increased awards in damage suits because of increased medical costs."

The Underwriters Bureau stated that last year there were 61,500 more drivers under 25 years of age involved in death or injury accidents than in 1946.

Johns Opposes Temporary School Building Proposal

Brooke Johns, president of the Montgomery County Commissioners, yesterday expressed opposition to the plan calling for temporary wooden school buildings.

The economy measure was advocated last week by Commissioner Wesley I. Sauter after school officials had called the current five-million-dollar school construction program "inadequate."

Johns said frame buildings are not fireproof, maintenance costs are too high, and that "it is questionable whether or not it is cheaper to build with frame or with certain types of masonry."

Milk and beefsteak from the same cow?

America can have sound, lasting prosperity . . . if everyone wants it enough.

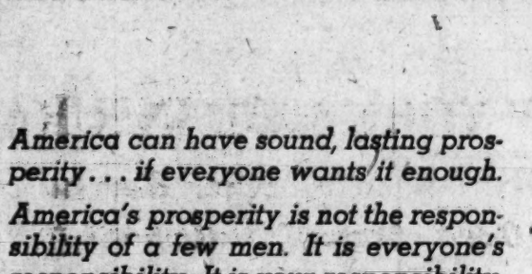
America's prosperity is not the responsibility of a few men. It is everyone's responsibility. It is your responsibility.

WHY HAVE WE ENJOYED POST-WAR FULL EMPLOYMENT?

Americans have 60 million jobs. The predicted "bust," with eight million unemployed, did not occur.

Why? Because American industry risked enormous money outlays to pay for the plants and machinery that created more jobs.

Last year alone, according to the United States Secretary of Commerce, business spent 26½ billion dollars for expansion. Here is where the money came from:



Westinghouse's share of this post-war expansion program is 132 million dollars. That money, too, came from previous and current profits, bank loans, bonds and preferred stock; none of it from the sale of common stock, the only truly venture capital.

50 BILLION DOLLARS MORE— WHERE WILL THAT COME FROM?

To maintain present employment and make the jobs needed by 600,000 new workers annually, it has been estimated that 50 billion dollars more should be spent for industrial modernization and expansion.

But doubts of industry's ability to proceed on such a scale threaten jobs and future prosperity.

The prices industry pays for materials, labor and plant have risen faster than the prices it gets for goods it sells. In 1938, Westinghouse built fine plants for $4 a square foot; now the cost is at least twice as great.

Today's taxes make it impossible for any company to save enough earnings to pay for expansion.

Partly because of taxes, partly because present profit rates do not justify risk of possible losses, people will not or cannot put up the new money needed to start new businesses and expand old ones. Yet new money must be had; industry cannot continue to pay for expansion with borrowed money.

It is as true today as ever: we can take our choice of milk or steak, but we can't get both from the same cow.

WHAT CAN BE DONE ABOUT PRICES?

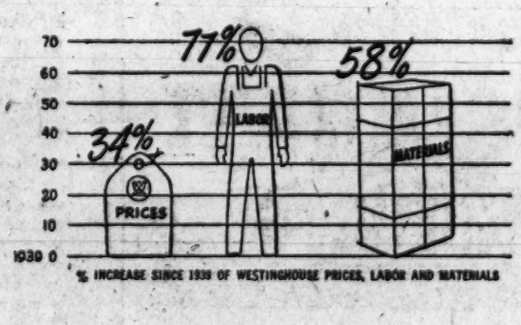
First, hold prices in check. Drastic reductions now would be as disastrous to workers as to owners. But prices must come down as soon as safely possible—and management must help to bring them down.

Westinghouse always sells its products at prices which not only meet competitive prices but also, where favorable cost situations exist, are below competitive prices for comparable quality of goods. Recently, Westinghouse has reduced prices of refrigerators and small motors. Other reductions will follow when costs permit.

WHAT CAN BE DONE ABOUT WAGES?

Westinghouse believes in high wages.

Last year Westinghouse paid its 102,065 employes $342,530,755. (Of this, $296,898,636 was chargeable to goods sold in 1947; $45,632,119 to goods in process and inventory). That was 25 million dollars more than in 1945, when the Company had 1,300 more employes. It was more than 18 times as much as Westinghouse paid its stockholders.



Everyone must recognize that labor cost is the main factor in price-setting, since over 85% of the selling price of all industrial production goes to pay wages and salaries (counting the wage-and-salary costs included in the materials and supplies, transportation, fuel and power, and everything else industry buys).

Those who believe that wages and salaries can be substantially increased without causing a further increase in prices ignore the simple fact that one cow can't provide both milk and steak.

PROFITS LOOK BIG. WHY CAN'T THEY PAY FOR NECESSARY NEW INDUSTRY?

Profits paid for almost 60% of last year's business expansion. Those profits were mostly saved from previous years. Now they are spent. Business cannot continue to draw on profits on any such scale.

To make $48,806,417 last year, Westinghouse had to sell $703,154,334 worth of goods. That was less than 7% profit. Like any other company, the more business Westinghouse does, the more risks it must assume in higher payrolls, greater inventories, more plants and machinery, greater debt.

Many a company today makes hardly enough profit to justify its risks. What it makes could be quickly wiped out by a drop in sales or a sharp price cut.

Before a company can undertake further expansion, it must be sure that profits are high enough to protect its business structure, obtain credit, maintain jobs and sell stock.

WHY CAN'T NEW MONEY BE FOUND TO MAKE MORE JOBS?

Last year, Westinghouse paid dividends of $1.25 per common share. Before that could be paid, 85¢ had to be paid for federal and state income taxes. Then the income tax collector collected again—from the owner of the stock—from 19% to 85%—probably 50% on the average. Here's what happened to $2.10 ($1.25 plus 85¢):

Even if all of America's 8 million stockholders were wealthy, double-taxing of their dividends would not be justified. Actually, the dividends the average stockholder receives are small.

THE AVERAGE STOCKHOLDER OF THIS COMPANY	OWNED THIS MANY SHARES	GOT THIS MUCH IN DIVIDENDS LAST YEAR
AMERICAN TEL. & TEL.	80	$270
GENERAL MOTORS	108	324
U. S. STEEL	52	260
WESTINGHOUSE	200	250

Today, it takes about $8,000 to create a job in manufacturing industry. When the return from going concerns is so low, and the taxes so high, can investors be expected to put up the money for new ventures, where the risk is so much greater, to create jobs at $8,000 apiece?

Many tax changes are desirable, but the elimination of the double tax on dividends would do most to bring new money into industry and thereby increase production and make jobs.

WILL AMERICA REMAIN PROSPEROUS?

Westinghouse, like American industry as a whole, has already expressed its faith in the country's future with its expansion program.

Leveling-off and firming of prices . . . wage stability . . . tax changes . . . the venturing of more new money in business expansion—all are necessary now.

If they can be brought about, there will be more goods for everyone . . . produced at lower cost . . . available at lower prices. There will be more and better jobs. Everyone will enjoy better living.

Yes . . . America can have sound, lasting prosperity—if everyone wants it enough.

It's a 'Million-Dollar' Smile Carrier Flashes at 6 A. M.

Courtesy to Johnn Rowland, 13-year-old carrier boy for The Washington Post, must be almost first nature.

For Johnny, who is in charge of two routes, and must get up at 5:30 a. m., is still credited with having a "million-dollar smile."

In addition, Mrs. Paul B. Fonda of 1311 Fenwick la., Silver Spring, who yesterday nominated Johnny for the title of The Washington Post's most courteous carrier, says he has never been late since he took over the route last July.

Johnny, who lives at 8418 Ramsey ave., Silver Spring, "uses his brains," Mrs. Fonda says. In snowy weather he leaves the paper behind the screen door, and on windy days, under the front door mat.

He is one of many of The Washington Post's 1200 carrier boys nominated in the courtesy contest closing at midnight Thursday. The winner will receive a $50 Government bond.

If you wish to reward good service and courtesy, here is what you can do:

Write your name and address on the adjoining coupon. Then add a sentence or two about your carrier, describing what special act of courtesy or service on his part prompts you to nominate him. He can be identified from your address, so be sure to print it clearly and completely. Then mail or bring the filled-out coupon to The Washington Post, 1337 E st. nw., Washington, D. C.

Carrier Boy Courtesy Coupon

Circulation Director, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C.

I wish to nominate for the award being offered the most courteous carrier the boy who delivers The Washington Post to the address below. I commend him for courteous and careful service for these reasons:

3 High School Students Killed in Plane Crash

Roxboro, N. C., March 14 (AP).—A small plane crashed and burned near here today, taking three high school students to fiery deaths. The plane banked into a turn at about 500 feet, went into a slow spin and crashed on the old South Boston, Va.-Roxboro highway four miles north of Roxboro.

The dead: Jack Whitt, 18, sports star who was to have reported to the Durham Bulls baseball squad March 22; Eleanor Hall, 17, and the pilot, Luther Edward Whitt, 18, Jack's cousin. All were from Roxboro.

Council Plans Suit On Subversive Listing

By the United Press

Richard Morford, executive director of the National Council of American-Soviet Friendship, said yesterday his organization will file suit in the Federal courts to get its name removed from Attorney General Tom Clark's list of alleged subversive groups.

Morford arrived to stand trial today on contempt of Congress charges. He was cited for refusing to give the House UnAmerican Activities Committee the financial records and correspondence of the council.

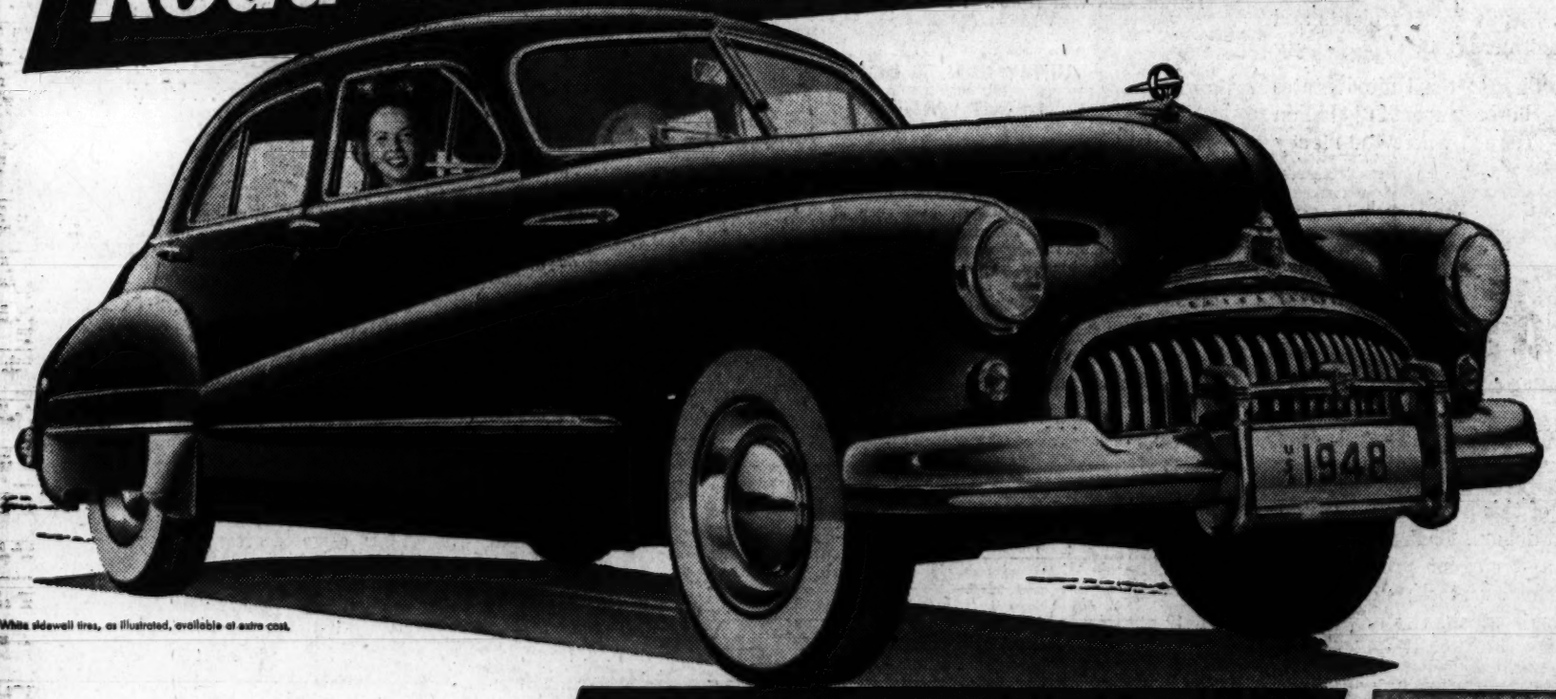
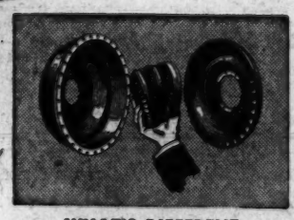
Road Master for a new reason



White sidewall tires, as illustrated, available at extra cost.

—Dynaflow Drive



WHAT'S DIFFERENT ABOUT DYNAFLOW DRIVE*?

To an efficient new pump (left above), Buick engineers have added a true turbine (right) and an ingenious new supercharging assembly (in hand) which produce a torque-boosting action in starting and accelerating. The result is the first device on any American passenger car which employs liquid to fill the function of both the clutch and the usual low, second and high gears. The clutch pedal is eliminated and a simple control gives you manual selection of power ranges and direction.

*Optional at extra cost on Roadmaster models only.

PUT your mind's eye to measuring the makings of a truly masterful car — and you certainly can't overlook this one, especially this year.

Here you find the distinction of taper-thru styling — the regal comfort of an all-coil-spring ride, now newly shielded against vibration — the Fireball action of a great straight-eight engine that boasts the quietest purr and pulse in all motordom.

Already you have reason to grant that it sets a new measure of motorcar excellence, regardless of price. Now look at something where comparison ends — at Roadmaster's Dynaflow Drive.*

For no automobile drive ever developed makes driving so effortless, yet gives you such near-miracle performance.

Here you not only drive without a clutch pedal and without manual gearshifting —but also without any break in your Roadmaster's gait, as it accelerates between all speeds. That is because no gears ever shift anywhere in the car — not even automatically!

Here the power plant itself does what gears used to do — responding to the touch of your toe on the treadle through all speed ranges — without trace of lag or halt or hesitation.

So though you've already decided there was no surpassing the Roadmaster's super excellence in terms of its 4400 pounds and 18 feet of top styling, luxury and power — just boost your expectations still higher.

See the Roadmaster—try Dynaflow—and you'll find more reason than ever to get your order in—with or without a car to trade.

When better automobiles are built BUICK will build them

BUICK alone has all these features

★ DYNAFLOW DRIVE — smooth, silken flow of power with no gears ever shifting either manually or mechanically. (Optional, Roadmaster Series).

★ TAPER-THRU STYLING — distinctive, tapering car-length fenders set a fashion of stand-out beauty.

★ VIBRA-SHIELDED RIDE — smooth, fatigue-free ride from scientific curbing of vibration build-up.

★ ROAD-RITE BALANCE — from low center of gravity; equalized front-and-rear ride.

★ HI-POISED FIREBALL POWER — valve-in-head straight-eight engines in four power ratings, now cradled to new smoothness.

★ SAFETY-RIDE RIMS — check heel-over on turns; better car control, peak mileage and lower tire pressures.

★ SOUND-SORBER TOP LINING — insulated for new "conversation tone" quiet. (Super and Roadmaster Models)

★ DUOMATIC SPARK ADVANCE — vacuumatic plus centrifugal action assures exact ignition for peak engine efficiency.

Garssons' Prober Runs for Congress

O'Connell, Committee Investigator, Says He Turned Down Company's $10,000 Job

By V. R. Montanari
Post Reporter

Thomas P. O'Connell, who said he turned down a $10,000 job offered him if he would drop his investigation of the Garsson munitions empire in 1945, is looking for a $15,000 job now with no strings attached.

O'Connell

The former chief investigator for the Senate Special Committee to Investigate the National Defense Program yesterday announced himself as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Representative from the Maryland Sixth District.

O'Connell, who spent 13 years as an investigator for three congressional committees, apparently hasn't forgotten his offer from Benjamin C. Fields, the Garsson henchman who went to jail last week for contempt of the House.

For the former investigator advocates legislation designed to keep Congressmen above any suspcion of considering bribes. One of the planks in the platform of the 43-year-old candidate from Caney pl., Forest Glen, Md. is the enactment of a law making it mandatory for a member of Congress to report to the Department of Justice any offer of a bribe.

"If men are going to offer bribes to legislators," he explained yesterday, "I want a law akin to the New York State boxing law, whereby a boxer must report any bribes, even if he doesn't accept them, and whereby he loses his license to box if he doesn't report them."

Another measure he advocates would revise the hearing procedure of Congressional committees to allow a witness to crossexamine those appearing against him.

Graduate of Georgetown

O'Connell, a graduate of the Georgetown University School of Foreign Service, has been in the Washington area since August, 1930, and worked for the House Coinage, Weights and Measures Committee and the Mines and Mining Committee prior to his national defense investigations.

Since he left the Senate committee, he has been on a tour of the ocuntry, he said yesterday, lecturing on graft in the Government. He had plenty of material, he noted, laughing.

After his Georgetown schooling and his work on Capitol Hill, he feels qualified to replace J. Glenn Beall, Sixth District Republican incumbent, who is a candidate for reelection. One other Democrat, Dawson Horine of Myersville, Frederick County, has announced for nomination. Horine ran second to Democratic nominee Arch McDonald two years ago.

Arms Pact With Italy Urged To Halt Soviet Aggression

New York, March 14 (U.P.).—Declaring that present world conditions closely parallel those just before World War II, an organization known as Common Cause, Inc., today proposed a 10-point program to halt Soviet aggression, including a military treaty guaranteeing Italy's independence.

Common Cause called for enactment of the Marshall Plan legislation before April 18, date of the Italian elections, but said the European aid plan was not enough. It called for a blunt preparedness-for-war program, including universal military training, great strengthening of the Air Force and treaties with nations of western Europe.

The guarantees to such nations as Italy, and others exposed to immediate Communist domination, should include protection against aggressors from within as well as without, Common Cause said.

Among the directors of the organization are Sumner Welles, former Undersecretary of State; Mrs. Natalie Wales Paine, founder and president of "Bundles for Britain"; Arthur Bliss Lane, former Ambassador to Poland; Dr. George S. Counts, historian and professor at Columbia University; Dr. Harry J. Carman, dean of Columbia; Episcopalian Bishop Austin Pardue of Pittsburgh, and Maj. George Fielding Eliot, military analyst and publicist.

"The blackout of freedom in Czechoslovakia has removed the last shadow of doubt that the free world faces the same danger now that it faced when Czechoslovakia fell 10 years ago," the statement said.

"Today our weakness and our apparent disunity tempt Stalin as they once tempted Hitler and Tojo. Now as then, the aggressor counts on the paralysis of America by party divisions in an election year. If he strikes once more before we act it will be too late for any American action except war."

Hospital Head Still Sought In Arlington

Arlington Hospital officials have received no applications for the position of administrator, Karl H. York resigned Friday to accept a similar post in Racine, Wisc.

York

Gilbert L. Hall, board chairman, said last night that no applications have arrived, and at present nobody is being considered for the vacancy.

York, who came to Arlington in 1944 from the Columbia Hospital in Milwaukee, Wisc., is due to leave May 1 for his new position a tthe 100-bed St. Luke's Hospital in Racine. Hall said he hoped a successor would be named before then.

The administrator, who has turned in what the board chairman called "an outstanding job," was instrumental in establishing a teaching program for resident staff members and in getting American Medical Association approval of residencies in medicine and surgery at the hospital.

During York's administration, the hospital's patient load jumped from 10,190 in 1945 to 16,079 last year.

York is a member of the American College of Hospital Administrators, and was the 1947 co-winner of the Modern Hospital Award and Medal for a series of articles he helped write on hospital personnel problems. He lives at 118 E. Greenway blvd., Falls Church, Va.

One on the Aisle—

Saturday Night Is 'Oscar' Night

By Richard L. Coe

THAT MUFFLED SOUND of drums from the West presages Saturday night's unveiling of the Academy Award winners—better known by that contemptuous yet venerated nickname, "The Oscars."

The Academy officially is the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, of which there are 1933 members who vote on nominations made by 12 guilds of the organization. It's a complex system of nominations and votings which has been varied through the years to the complete satisfaction of no one; its greatest success lies in keeping secret until the last moment the names of the winners.

Rather timidly, the Academy presumes to pass judgment on "motion pictures from throughout the world." These must have been shown for a period of no less than a week in the metropolitan area of Los Angeles during the awards year, which extends from January 1 to December 31. This year—1947—450 films were declared eligible.

But since the Academy's members are figures of the Hollywood film colony and human nature is what it is, it's foolish to expect anything but Hollywood product will be chosen as "the best." Last year's special award to Laurence Olivier for "Henry V" and nine different Oscars—including that for the "best picture"—to "The Best Years of Our Lives" is telling evidence of how truly international the choice can be.

Of the five nominations this year for the top honor, Washington has seen four, "Great Expectations," "The Bishop's Wife," "Crossfire" and "Miracle on Thirty-fourth street." The fifth, "Gentleman's Agreement," will open at the Palace Thursday, March 25.

The Unlikelies

This reporter hasn't seen "Gentleman's Agreement," either, but it looks as though the Twentieth Century-Fox people will have a field day in their ad writing for the Palace opening next week. The boys are being awfully innocent about the whole thing and their shying away from premature boasting is touching.

Still, the chances are more than in their favor. "Great Expectations," being a British film, one suspects, in view of past performances, is in the nominations list only to prove to the guileless that Hollywood is global-minded.

For "Crossfire" to receive the award would throw Hollywood into embarrassment. Its virtues and weaknesses aside, "Crossfire" was directed by Edward Dmytryk, produced by Adrian Scott and written by John Paxton, the first two of whom were fired by their studio—RKO—after the House Un-American Activities storm. For the studio to be honored by the work of artists it has disowned would amount to an irony Hollywood could hardly permit.

"The Bishop's Wife" was a pleasant picture, certainly, but scarcely of Academy Award level. Samuel Goldwyn's unceasing battle against double feature programs resulted in spinning out this fantasy to an absurd length simply for the sake of making certain it wouldn't become double bill material.

Acting Nominations

About "Miracle on 34th Street" one has little to complain, though for it to outrank even such varied films as, say, "The Bachelor and the Bobby-Soxer" and "A Double Life," could only happen on scales tempered to scientific demands.

So, sight unseen, this reporter expects Saturday's top honor will go to "Gentleman's Agreement."

Of the other honors on the list, several spring from "Gentleman's Agreement."

Gregory Peck and John Garfield, of that one, and Ronald Colman (for "A Double Life"), William Powell ("Life With Father"), and Michael Redgrave ("Mourning Becomes Electra") are the five nominated for male acting honors.

The ladies awards will go to either Joan Crawford (for "Possessed"), Susan Hayward ("Smash-Up"), Dorothy McGuire ("Gentleman's Agreement"), Rosalind Russell ("Mourning Becomes Electra") or Loretta Young ("The Farmer's Daughter").

Because "Mourning Becomes Electra" hasn't been here, either, this department hesitates to make a choice, except to ponder why, if this is a truly international matter, there are no representatives of the British, French and Italian films in these 10 "top-acting" candidates.

Two Script Awards

A sop is thrown to Italy in the "best original screenplay" nominations. These are: "Shoe Shine," "Monsieur Verdoux," "A Double Life," "Body and Soul" and "The Bachelor and the Bobby-Soxer."

Screenplays adapted from books are a special classification and include: "Boomerang," "Crossfire," "Gentleman's Agreement," "Miracle on 34th Street" and "Great Expectations." Two of those 10 will get something. It would be good to think Charlie Chaplin would get one for his provocative melange of thought and whimsey in "Monsieur Verdoux," but would the Academy's voters dare to honor a mavarick?

Yes, playing "Oscar" is a great game and you can find some more on the rules by Mystery Writer Raymond Chandler in the current Atlantic. Chandler calls his piece "Oscar Night in Hollywood" and it's provocative reading.

SAVE THE UNITED NATIONS

The fate of the United Nations is at stake in the Palestine crisis. The issue is not how we can reverse a UN decision, but how we can implement it.

Sumner Welles, former Under Secretary of State, says:

"It is hard to arouse a democracy to impending danger when the clouds on the horizon still seem no larger than a man's hand....

"This government has repeatedly announced that the United Nations is the foundation of American foreign policy. Yet because of the failure of the United States to adopt a consistent and courageous policy on Palestine, the United Nations is today faced with the gravest dilemma in its history....

"The decision to partition Palestine was taken after full investigation and debate. It was in strict accordance with the provisions of the Charter. The United States was in great part responsible. This country played a leading role throughout the events that led up to that decision....

"For lack of any United Nations police force, the members of the Palestine Commission have now been told by the British that they will be assassinated if they set foot in Palestine. Major hostilities between Jews and Arabs are imminent.

"If the United Nations is, in fact, the foundation of American policy, the United States must support the United Nations, not only when that is convenient and easy, but quite as much so when such support implies effort, sacrifice and risk....

"If the United Nations fails, the one hope humanity today possesses for the rule of law rather than the rule of force, for the freedom and progress of mankind, and for the establishment of a peaceful world order will vanish with it."

.....excerpts from column by Sumner Welles in the NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE of Tuesday, February 17, 1948

A PROGRAM TO SAVE THE UNITED NATIONS AND SETTLE THE PALESTINE CRISIS

Digest of Resolution Unanimously Adopted by Representatives of the following Organizations at Emergency Meeting called by the American Association for the United Nations—Waldorf-Astoria, New York City, February 26, 1948.

"The United States Government should take the following steps:

1. Urge affirmative and immediate action by the Security Council of the United Nations, to implement the November 29th resolution of the General Assembly calling for the Partition of Palestine into Jewish and Arab States and the establishment of an International Regime for Jerusalem under the Trusteeship Council. This is necessary because the present situation in Palestine constitutes a threat to the peace of the world.

2. Ask the Security Council to invoke the non-military sanctions provided in the United Nations Charter.

3. Urge the immediate establishment of an international police force to go to Palestine to cope with any breach of the peace as provided for under Articles 39 and 42 of the Charter.

4. In addition the United States should:

a. Recognize the Provisional Government of the Jewish State of partitioned Palestine as of April 1st, in accordance with the resolution of the General Assembly.

b. Modify the arms embargo so as to permit immediate acquisition by the Jewish Agency of military equipment and its shipment in the custody of representatives of the United Nations to Palestine, for use by the Jewish militia."

Nats Blow Up in 8th, A's Win on Clark's Boot, 5-2

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

WEST PALM BEACH, FLA., March 14.—Our stint for today is necessarily all sweetness and light because we are writing about the nicest old gentleman—Connie Mack, who is 85 years old and everybody's friend and, goodness gracious, is polite all the time.

POVICH

He wasn't even annoyed this evening in the lobby of the Athletics' hotel when an obnoxious drunk with a cast on his leg broke into Mr. Mack's after-dinner conference with his coaches and bellowed irreverently, "Hi ya, Connie, old boy, old boy."

Mr. Mack and his 85 years got out of his chair quickly and he stuck out his hand and said sweetly, "I'm glad to see you. It was nice of you to come over and say 'hello'."

"Ya know, I like you, Connie," said the intruder, and "just because I think you're a swell guy, I want you to autograph this cast on my leg. Who's got a pen?"

Mr. Mack produced the pen himself, and patiently marked out "Connie Mack" on the white of the plaster cast, the while the rude fellow patted him on the shoulder, yelling, "attaboy."

"This is an honor," he told Mr. Mack. "A big honor because I'm 50 years old and just because you gave me my autograph, I'm going out tonight and get drunk."

"Oh, don't do that," said Mr. Mack. "Why don't you just take one drink, if you have to, and call it a night. Getting drunk won't do you any good. That's not the nice way to be."

"Okay, Connie, I'll tell you what. Just on account of you, I'm gonna make you a promise. Just on account of you, I've decided not to get drunk—tonight. Some other night, but not tonight. Okay, Connie, old boy, old boy?" He got a cheer goodby.

THAT'S THE WAY Mr. Mack is, never mad at anybody, always careful not to hurt anybody's feelings. Like when he was talking about the 1948 ball club of his old friend Clark Griffith, earlier in the afternoon.

He wouldn't exactly agree that it wasn't much of a ball club, but at half a glance the old gentleman could see in the Washington team more than a faint image of his own hopeless clubs of past years. The worst he would say was, "Yes, it's a mighty young team Griff has, don't you think? You know, I think it's a mite too young, yes I do."

He did say, though, that he liked the Washington pitching. "When I had my bad ball teams, my kids were too young, but my pitching was weak, too. Goodness; but Washington has fine pitching—Wynn and Masterson and Haefner and Hudson, and I like Scarborough, too." In a sort of a whisper, he added, "You don't look too bad when you have pitching, you know. It's awfully important to have good pitching."

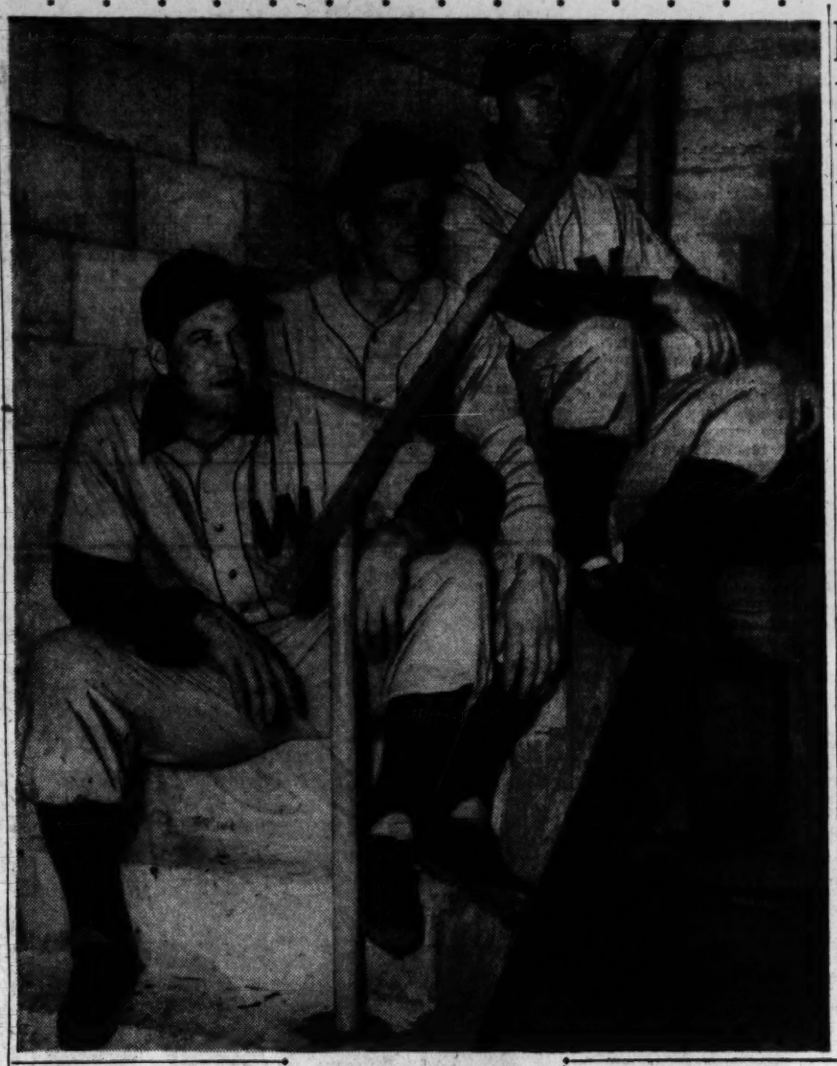
Mack's particular pet on the Washington club, he says, is Gil Coan. "Heavens, what a fine ball player he is going to be," he said. "I don't see how he can miss being a wonderful player. Even when they said he didn't make good these last two years, I couldn't understand it. I think Griff is very fortunate to have such a young fellow who can run like the wind and hit the ball, too. I think he's going to be a wonderful hitter this year."

GRACIOUS, NO, he didn't think his Athletics had much of a chance to win the pennant this season but they could be a good ball team, he said. "But Boston and the Yankees have such splendid teams," he said. "That Boston team could even beat the Yankees by outhitting them. I like Cleveland, too. They are three wonderful teams in our league."

It was suggested that Joe McCarthy was making a mistake in moving Johnny Pesky from shortstop to play third base, and Mr. Mack rather half agreed. "You know," he said, "I can't quite understand that move, because Pesky is such a wonderful shortstop. I do believe I would put Vernon Stephens on third base instead of at short, but Joe McCarthy is a wonderful manager and he knows more about his own situation than I do, and let's wait and see how it works out."

He said he was sorry to see the Yankees get Southpaw Ed Lopat from the White Sox. "That makes the Yankees an awful tough club with better pitching," he said, "and they were hard enough to lick when their pitching wasn't so good. It's a wonderful break for the Yankees, though, isn't it? Gracious, I do believe that Lopat is the second best left-hander in the league behind Hal Newhouser, and there were times when he looked tougher to beat than Newhouser."

He wasn't interested in signing free agent Buck Newsom, he said. "Buck hasn't called me," he said, "and I'm surprised about that. Heavens, we always got along well. We don't need much more pitching, we're not weak there, but I thought Newsom would get in touch with me just the same. He's a nice person and I hope he's not angry with me for anything," he said, just as if anybody could be.



But Griffs Find Mound Hopeful in Young Cuban

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

West Palm Beach, Fla., March 14.—The Nats lost a ball game to the Athletics today, but perhaps it wasn't a total loss. They uncovered a pitcher of considerable skill, they hope, in 19-year-old Ramon Garcia, a non-English speaking Cuban right-hander with stuff on the ball, plus control.

The 5-to-2 beating the Nats did take was no fault of young Garcia's. He was in there in the first five innings, gave the Athletics no runs, surrendered only one hit, a cheap single, walked only one man and appeared eager to pitch all day.

As late as the eighth inning it was a 1-1 game, with 2000 natives and tourists in the stands watching a tight battle until Joe Kuhel's junior varsity tossed the contest away.

Clark Boots One Again

The winning run scored on a boot by Rookie Shortstop Jim Clark, exactly as an error by Clark cost the Nats the opening contest of the three-game series, but by that time Washington was in foul shape anyway with Pitcher Vernon Curtis in deep trouble.

The A's got the tying run in the sixth inning without getting a hit off rookie Bill Toenes, up from Chattanooga. But Toenes was wild, walked three men and wild-pitched the run home. He escaped damage despite two walks in the seventh and then Curtis got a "going over."

Four Philadelphia runs scored in the eighth. Chapman and Majeski rapped Curtis for singles and he filled the bases with one by walking Majeski.

Stafford Lashes Triple

What might have been a double-play grounder by Suder skipped through Clark's glove into center field for two bases, and two runs scored. Another walk refilled the bases and Marchildon got a run home with a long fly. McCosky singled home the fourth.

Only two balls were hit out of the infield against Garcia in the first three innings, and the Nats raked Russ Christopher for a 1-0 lead in the fourth. Coan beat out a drag bunt, Vernon singled to left and the run scored while McBride was grounding into a double play.

The Nats got their second run in the ninth after Rookie Outfielder Dean Stafford lashed a triple into right-center off Marchildon. He scored on Christman's infield out, and the Nats pulled up three runs short.

IF YOUNG GARCIA ever gets to the majors, the customers will see an oddity . . . He bats cross-handed . . . Connie Mack is confounding the press box strategists with his manipulation of pitchers, Phil Marchildon and Lou Brissie have pitched two days in a row in exhibition games this week. Sherry Robertson, with four hits in his last six times at bat, is making a determined bid to hold the right field job against the threat of Rookie Larry Drake . . . Bill McGowan, who operates an umpires school at Palm Beach took in all three of the Nats-A's games here, and learned nothing about umpiring from the American League pair who worked the contests. Gil Coan who has been taking private drag-bunting lessons from Coach Clyde Milan, laid down and beat out a neat one in the fourth inning today . . . The Nats moved back to Orlando after the game and have an open date tomorrow before climbing into their bus again for a game with the Reds at Tampa on Tuesday.

Yanks Win Again On DiMag's Homer

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 14 (AP).—Joe Di Maggio belted a three-run homer into Tampa Bay in the tenth inning today to pace the champion New York Yankees to a 5-2 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

It was DiMag's first hit of the year and he couldn't have picked a better spot.

The Red Sox had scored two runs in their top of the tenth to take the lead. With two out Tommy Henrich belted a two-run triple to tie the score.

Boston Manager Joe McCarthy, former pilot of the Yanks, inserted his third pitcher of the inning after Henrich's blow. He called on Hampton Coleman and the rookie walked Johnny Lindell. Di Maggio then blasted the ball over the left field bleachers and a canvas barrier beyond, the ball bouncing into Tampa Bay.

It was the Yanks' sixth straight grapefruit league win

Rookie Halts Tigers

Clearwater, Fla., March 14 (AP).—Curt Simmons made his spring pitching debut an auspicious one today handcuffing the Detroit Tigers for four innings and turning out the winning pitcher in the Philadelphia Phillies' 9-1 victory.

The Egypt, Pa., rookie struck out three Tigers and gave up one hit and one walk in his four-inning tour. Dutch Leonard finished up and gave up one run.

Al Flair, rookie first baseman, led a 12-hit Phils' assault, clubbing Stubby Overmire for a two-run home run in the second inning and driving in a third run with a single in the third. It was the Phils' first exhibition victory.

Yank Reserves Win

Bradenton, Fla., March 14 (U.P.).—Collecting only six hits, three of them scratches, the Boston Braves bowed to the New York Yankees Reserves, 7 to 1, today.

The New Yorkers, after scoring single runs in each of the first three innings off Vern Bickford, subsided until the ninth when they pushed four more counters across while Ray Hardee and Johnny Fetzer were pitching. A pinch hit double by Bobby Brown of World Series fame produced the last two runs.

Giants Hit Four Homers

Phoenix, Ariz., March 14 (AP).—The New York Giants said it with home runs today, smashing our four to defeat the Chicago White Sox, 5 to 4, in an exhibition game.

The home-run hitters were Jack Lohrke, Sid Gordon, Bobby Thomson and Buddy Blattner. In addition, Blattner rammed a tripple.

Harbert Wins Jacksonville Golf With 284

Jacksonville, Fla., March 14 (AP).—Long-driving Chick Harbert of Detroit, knowing he needed pars on the last four holes, shot them today to win the Jacksonville Invitational Golf Tournament.

He fired an even par 36, 36—72 for a 72-hole total of 284, and first prize money of $2000.

Skip Alexander of Mid Pines, N. C., deadlocked with Harbert at the start of today's final 18, went one over par with 73 for a 285 total.

Vic Ghezzi of Kansas City, Kans., who started today's round two strokes behind the leaders, was one under par with 71 and tied Alexander with 285 for second place.

Otto Greiner of Baltimore, four strikes behind at the start of today's play, scored a two-under-par 70 and grabbed fourth place with 286.

Pete Cooper of Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla., also had a 70 on the final 18 and finished with 288, good for fifth.

Four players were tied at 290 for the next prize: Clayton Heafner of Charlotte, N. C., Dave Douglas of Wilmington, Del.; Ky Laffoon of St. Andrews, Ill., and Marty Furgol of Brooklyn.

Low amateur honors were copped by Herb Smith of Orlando, Fla., with 304.

The Catchers

These three will handle the Nat's backstopping chores for the 1948 season. Top to bottom, Al Evans, 1947 regular; Rookie Len Okrie, from Nashville, and Rookie Ken McCreight, up from Charlotte. All three are right-handed hitters.

Dodgers Beat Montreal, 7-1

San Cristobal, D. R., March 14 (AP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers took advantage of six bases on balls and two enemy errors to whip Montreal, 7 to 1, today for their fifth straight spring exhibition victory.

Carl Furillo homered in the fourth for the Dodgers with Al Gionfriddo on base to go ahead 2-0, and Brooklyn added one in the seventh and four in the eighth.

Blackwell Beats Cards

Tampa, Fla., March 14 (U.P.).—Spindly Ewell Blackwell, generally regarded as the major leagues' foremost pitcher in 1947, made his 1948 debut today for Cincinnati as the Reds eked out a 3 to 2 exhibition game victory before the St. Louis Cardinals before 4578.

Babe Ruth was among the spectators who watched Right-hander Blackwell yield three hits in the three innings he worked. The Cardinals tied the score at 2-2 in the top of the ninth when Enos (Country) Slaughter homered off Harry Gumbert with two out.

The Reds, however, won the contest in the last half of the frame when Virgil Stallcup singled and scampered home on Frankie Baumholtz's double.

Bogley Opposes 3d-Seeded Player

New York, March 14.—Chances of gaining the quarterfinal round of the forty-fifth National Indoor Tennis Championships appeared slim for Gil Bogley, Washington D.C. schoolboy star, as pairings for tomorrow's round were announced.

Bogley was scheduled to meet Ed McGrath, third-seeded United States player, while top-seeded Billy Talbert faces Montreal's Henri Rochon and second-seeded Irvin Dorfman tangles with Marvin Kent.

3 Footprints Renew Hope in Jockey Search

Miami, Fla., March 14 (AP).—Three footprints found on a tiny island at the mouth of the Lostman's River, about 20 miles southeast of Everglades City, today gave renewed hope in the search for Jockey Al Snider and two fishing companions missing since March 5.

Sheriff Thorp said the tracks were discovered on the beach of the island by one of the searching pilots.

He said bloodhounds were being sought to run down the clue.

Thorp said the pilot, who was not identified, reported the footprints were small, and could have been made by Snider.

Meanwhile, more than 40 aircraft and nearly 30 small boats continued to comb a 1200-square mile area among the thousands of desolate, mangrove-covered islands.

The search, all but given up after a week of fruitless effort, was renewed yesterday when two fisherman found the trio's 16-foot plywood skiff beached on another tiny island.

The boat was in an upright position and in good condition except both the oars and motor were missing, indicating it had been used recently.

Snider, one of the Nation's leading jockeys, who had recently replaced Doug Dodson as the No. 1 rider for Calumet Farm, was accompanied by Tobe Trotter, a Miami horse trainer, and Don Frazier, a Canadian manufacturer.

Barber-Hamilton Pin Duo Wins

Elizabeth (Toots) Barber, No. 1 feminine duckpinner in the country, and her teammate, Nova Hamilton, both from Baltimore, yesterday won the annual St. Patrick's Mixed Doubles Tournament at the Silver Spring Bowling Center, ringing up a 10-game total of 2646 to win $150.

Second place went to Marion Line and Dan Cuthbert, also of Baltimore, with 2507, while third were Audrey Mullaney and Tony Petro of Baltimore, with 2475.

Bing Moen and Lindsay Stott, local pair, captured the special high-game prize with a 287. Stott fired a 183—high for the night.

NAIB's Most Valuable

Kansas City, March 14 (AP).—Duane Klueh of Indiana State (Terre Haute) was voted the most valuable player in the National Intercollegiate Basketball Tournament Saturday night.

Promoters Resume Battle Tonight With 2 Fight Shows

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

If you're in the mood to see a fight tonight it won't be difficult.

For bargain-seeking customers, Matchmaker Gabe Menendez has arranged another one of his "all-star" shows which spotlights four local boys in four eight rounders at Turner's Arena.

Over at Uline Arena, Promoter Goldie Ahearn strikes another blow for Liberty (Athletic Club) with Sonny Boy West, a lightweight trying to make good in his home town, pitted against Charlie "Cabey" Lewis in the featured 10.

This is the second time in three weeks that the rival promoters have led with their financial chins and judging by the results of their first competitive joust they want more of the same kind of "punishment."

Little Turner's Arena enjoyed its biggest house of the year on February 23 (over $2800) while Uline's voiced no protest with a $7300 house the same evening.

Cooper Featured On Turner Card

Turner's Arena leads with its ace, Featherweight Jimmy Cooper of Washington, against Senor Jose Cardenas and it's not likely that 18-year-old Jimmy will be trumped.

Cardenas' record includes wins over Juan Pelaez, Pedro Flores, Two-Gun Gonzalez and Orlando Fernandez. Fernandez later beat him. Cooper, unbeaten in eight pro outings, cuffed Fernandez about rather easily here several weeks ago and on the basis of this is favored to dispose of Good-Neighbor Cardenas.

Other eight-rounders offered are:

Herbie (Biff) Jones, Washington southpaw, vs. Featherweight Jimmy Parlin of Philadelphia.

Red Gaddis, 18-year-old local featherweight, vs. Bobby Polowitzer of Hartford, Conn.

Charlie (Sugar) Bunn, local scrapper with 13 victories on an unbeaten record, 10 by knockouts, vs. McCoy Jones, a lightweight from Philadelphia.

Cooper is the Arena's hot article and the Cardenas tiff is another build-up fight for Jimmy, who is expected to be Turner's No. 1 outdoor attraction this summer.

Opening the show at 8:45 will be a four between Gaylord Edwards and King David.

Sonny Boy West Is Uline Headliner

With Middleweight Smuggy Hursey out of the picture, his stablemate, Sonny Boy West, carries on for the Mel Stevenson camp at Uline tonight.

The Washington lightweight built up a tremendous following in Baltimore and his 10-rounder against Charlie "Cabey" Lewis is his first headline attraction in Washington.

Washington saw little of West last summer. At that time he was a gangling, clowning featherweight. Since then, however, he's campaigned with terrific success, avenging the only defeat in his 27 pro fights and winning rather handily over everyone who's faced him.

He'll be meeting no novice in Lewis, a Cuban product who's met the best in his division. Lewis, who has dropped three straight decisions this year—the most recent being Tuesday to Jimmy Carter, is a standup fighter who likes to mix it. If West is half the fighter he's touted to be, he should get over the Lewis hump tonight.

On the supporting card Al Wright and Cyclone Roy Williams, middleweights, are paired in 10-rounders.

Joe Gannon, local middleweight, comes back to the local picture against Julian Keene in a six while Johnny Arduini, Washington bantamweight, engages Joe Bell of Philadelphia, in a five-rounder.

St. Anthony's Wins Crown

St. Anthony's edged St. Paul's, 34-32, to win the final game of the Priory School basketball tournament yesterday in the Priory gym.

Holding a 19-16 lead at halftime, St. Anthony's managed to hold its margin to the end. Jack Bohne, St. Anthony center, paced the scorers of both teams with 14 points.

In a meeting held after the title game, officials of seven schools tentatively arranged to form a new basketball league.

The schools in the proposed league are Priory, St. Anthony's, St. Mary's of Annapolis; St. Paul's; De Matha Catholic High School of Hyattsville; St. John's of Frederick; and St. Mary's of Hagerstown. An eighth team, St. Joseph's of Martinsburg, W. Va., may be added to the league.

Final arrangements for the formation of the league will take place at a meeting at Priory next October.

Lehigh Retains Wrestling Title

Bethlehem, Pa., March 14 (AP).—Lehigh University rolled up 25 points to retain its Eastern Intercollegiate Wrestling Association championship here last night. Franklin and Marshall was second with 18 points. Navy was third with 16.

Capt. John Fletcher of the Navy and Capt. Stanley Thevenet of the Army were the only wrestlers to defend their individual titles successfully.

Texas A & M Victor In Border Olympics

Laredo, Tex., March 14 (AP).—Placing in 12 out of 16 events, Texas A. and M. College won the university class championship of the sixteenth annual Border Olympics here Saturday. The Aggies scored 61½ points to 47 7/12 for the University of Texas.

Mountaineer Has Nats' Camp Buzzing

Just Guy Named Joe Till He Toes Slab

WEST PALM BEACH, FLA., March 14.—A tall kid with the unromantic name of Joe Jones is whipping up a flurry of interest among the Nats' bosses who are wondering what kind of a pitcher they have stumbled onto.

They don't know what to make, as yet, of Master Jones, or where his faults lie, if any. He stamped himself apart from the common herd of rookie pitchers the first time he took the mound in the Washington camp.

He showed Manager Joe Kuhel an unorthodox side-arm pitch, a hybrid righthanded delivery that sometimes develops as pure underhand. All they knew about him at that point was that he had come up from the Nats' Orlando club of the Class D Florida State League with an unexciting record of 13 wins and 14 losses.

John Ganzel, the Nats' Orlando chieftain, apparently knew something about the lad though, because he advised the Washington Club to keep close tab on young Jones.

To give him a head start on the training season, they invited him to the club's Florida baseball school as an "instructor," a thinly disguised device to bootleg a bit of conditioning for Jones and circumvent the March 1 starting date.

He's an impressive looking 6-foot 4-inch physical specimen, but otherwise he's no beauty. He looks like a Tennessee mountaineer, and that's no coincidence, because he is; comes from Dandridge, near Knoxville, where his dad is a county road official.

Kuhel's interest in him mounted the other day when, in his debut on the mound against the Athletics here, it came to a tough spot with two on and Rudy York up.

He snaked a side-arm curve ball past York for a third strike and then a bit later with the bases full he bamboozled Eddie Joost with another of the same.

Until he tired and was taken out of the box, he was something to see. If he sticks with the Nats, Griffith Stadium fans will get a belt out of his funny looking delivery—if the opposition doesn't belt it too often.

Kuhel has one hunch about the fellow: "He's going to be murder against right-handed hitters," says the Nats' manager. "The way he mixes 'em up is rough for right-handers. We're going to take a long look at him. Right now he's signed to a Chattanooga contract, but we can move him up with no trouble."

If the Nat Bosses are wondering about Jones' control, he isn't. "I don't have to worry about control any more, I'm in the groove now. All I want to do now is whip that fast ball a little faster" he says.

He used to have control trouble he says, when he started pitching for Orlando. It wasn't until 15 months ago that he even thought of playing baseball as a living. He wrote to Joe Engel asking for a tryout in Engel's baseball school, and they told him to report because they liked the size he put on the application—6 feet 4.

"I thought I was a first baseman, but they said I couldn't hit enough and advised me to try pitching. Engel said I hit like a pitcher, anyway. In my first start for Orlando, I walked, 12 men, but after that I improved.

"In my second game I only walked 10, but I hit four batters. From June on, though, I could put that ball where I wanted it. Tell these people to stop worrying about my control, and you'll be doing me a favor."

Four Kentucky Derby Candidates May See Action at Bowie

Saggy, Hefty, Fritz Maisel Facing Tests

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Like a bunch of kids on Christmas Eve, horse players hereabouts are chafing at the bit as they count the hours until their favorite sports dish will be served.

Can't be long now, either. Two weeks from today (Monday, March 29), Bowie starts the bangtails rolling in Maryland and six weeks away (May 1) is the Kentucky Derby. Two weeks after the Louisville Classic (May 15) comes the Preakness.

Turf fans in the Washington area are likely to get a sneak preview of some of the Derby candidates during the 12 days of the Bowie season.

At least four of the 3-year-olds slated for the Blue Glass trip are scheduled to see action at the Prince Georges County course.

Maryland mutuel enthusiasts may see Saggy, owned by Mrs. Helen Sagner of Baltimore, perform in the $10,000 added Rowe Memorial opening day.

Saggy made his debut in Maryland last year and his six victories in seven starts included a world record performance in the Aberdeen Stakes at Havre de Grace.

Saggy at Tops Now

Trainer L. E. Ogle has the son of Swing and Sway at tops now, as his victory in last Saturday's $10,000 Tropical feature proves. He wants to keep the colt on edge and is likely to ship him to Bowie this week.

Saggy wasn't up to competing with Citation when the Calumet ace and Winter Book Derby favorite won the Flamingo, but the Marylander definitely proved he can go a route last week.

Washington's lone Derby representative is Big Dial, with Ernest E. Hart of the Capital listed as owner and trainer.

Big Dial is the colt who was cut down at the first turn in a stake at Laurel and was in a three-way photo at the finish, the race being won by the Bomar Stable's Piet. This colt, by the way, also is in the Derby.

Big Dial has been carefully brought back to the races and showed stretch-closing ability early in the Hialeah meeting, although he was beaten off behind Saggy and the others last Saturday at Tropical. Perhaps he does not like a hard-surfaced track. Big Dial may see action at Bowie.

The No. 1 "Maryland, My Maryland" Derby candidate is Alen T. Clarke's Fritz Maisel, bred on the Clarke Farm at Clarksville, Md. Clarke, a former ball player, named the colt for the former Giants third sacker, now a fire chief in Baltimore.

The rugged son of Little Beans has been coming along fine in his training and Calrke's plans call for trial outings at Bowie where the speedy fellow won the $10,000 Bowie Breeders' Stake last fall.

Jockey Carson Kirk, of Silver Spring, Md., may have a Derby mount aboard Hefty, owned by the High Ground Stable, and a youngster who found himself at Bowie's meeting last November. Hefty, a three-time winner of the season, whipped Fritz Maisel, among, in the $10,000 Endurance.

Loser Weeper Prospect

Another Derby hope with Bowie racing under his belt is Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Loser Weeper. This one is a sturdy fellow who appeared to have distance quality last autumn and could improve enough to warrant the Kentucky ride.

It's almost a laugh at this time to write about Derby candidates with a horse of the caliber of Calumet's Citation around. The Warren Wright 3-year-old appears to have a lock and key on the 'Run for the Roses" at this time.

Miller, Stecker Top Bowling Prize List

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

Jack Miller and Helen M. Stecker officially were announced winners of the second annual Police Boys Club benefit bowling tournament yesterday when Scorekeepers Julie Singer and Hap Newman drew up the prize list for the week-long affair.

By finishing first among 5494 entries, Miller won $100 and Miss Stecker captured the $50 top award for women.

Rolling a spectacular 419-87—506 at Chevy Chase Ice Palace the opening night, Miller finished five pins ahead of Ralph Mercurio, who scored 414-87- 501 on the next to last night at Greenway. Miss Stecker's 376-69—445 came on the final night at Lafayette.

Third among the men was Anthony Pournaras, whose 453-33—486 was only one of his accomplishments. He also took the first prize for high scratch set.

Runner-up in the women's handicap division was Mildred Richerson, with a 309-117—426, while Frankie Wilson and Virginia Siegel tied for third with 424.

Miss Wilson also won the high scratch game and set awards for women, with 160 and 406. High game among the men was Abe Gilman's brilliant 182 chalked up at Penn.

Altogether there were 43 prizes for men and 32 for women.

Total receipts were $2747, with $824 going into the prize fund and $1923 to the Police Boys Club and donations by bowlers raised the total to $1955.

Checks for the individual winners will be mailed in the near future to the bowling alleys where the bowlers entered.

All-Stars Game Closes High Season

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

The All-Star game next Saturday afternoon at Uline Arena ends the 1948 schoolboy basketball season in Washington.

Sponsored by the Big Brothers Club, the game is part of a fund-raising program for the projected Georgetown Branch Boys Club, Wisconsin ave. and 34th st. nw.

Of the 20 boys making up the All-High and All-Prep squads, 11 got their athletic starts at one of the local boys clubs.

The two teams are rated even up. Four regulars from the Metropolitan Washington champion St. John's team are on the Prep squad, Jack George, Tom Fannon, Billy Martins and Vince Durkin. Martins, Durkin, Jack Spicer and Clem Conlin of Gonzaga and Tommy Dean of Sidwell Friends are former boys club members.

On the High team, Jim Pantos, Hal Sponsler and Bob Johnson of Central, John Brown of Eastern, Wayne Brizendine of Western and Jack Whitcomb of Wilson are boys club alumni.

During the week, the Maryland State boys and girls' high tournament reaches its climax. Four girls teams and three boys teams from nearby Maryland battle for the West Shore championships in the Class A through D divisions.

State Title Game Friday

Friday the West Shore champs play the East Shore champs for the boys championship; on Saturday the girls finals take place.

The four area girls teams in the running for West Shore honors area: Class A—Bethesda-Chevy Chase, Class B—Greenbelt, Class C—Richard Montgomery of Rockville, and Class D—Gwynn Park. Gwynn Park boasts a 27-game winning streak.

The three boys teams still in the running are: Class A—Bethesda-Chevy Chase, Class B—Greenbelt, and Class D—Damascus. Damascus has the best record, 18-2.

McKenley Sets Record

Hamilton, Ontario, March 14 (AP). Herb McKenley of the Shore Athletic Club set a Canadian record of 32.2 seconds last night in winning the 300-yard dash at the Highland Games track meet.

Kentucky May Land 3 Court Teams in Olympic Trials

NIAB Title Qualifies Louisville

By Murray Rose.

New York, March 14 (AP).—Kentucky took over as the Nation's leading basketball State today.

From now on the youngsters 'n the Blue Grass country probably will desert the horses and barns for the leather balls and the hardwood floors.

Here's why:

The University of Louisville last night won the NIAB tourney in Kansas City by downing Indiana State of Terre Haute, 82-70, and became the first quintet to qualify for the eight-team Olympic tryouts in New York, March 27, 29 and 31.

Western Kentucky State is in the semifinals of the National Invitation Tourney in Madison Square Garden and stands a good chance of winning the meet and a berth in the Olympic field.

The University of Kentucky opens its bid for the NCAA title in the Garden Thursday night against Columbia. The two finalists in the NCAA dribble derby automatically enter the Olympic tourney. Kentucky is rated a strong favorite to cop the NCAA diadem.

Thus Kentucky may wind up with three teams in the Olympic tryouts. The best of the tryout field will include the top three teams in the Denver AAU tourney which got under way today and the national YMCA tournament champion.

Western Kentucky, which eliminated LaSalle, and St. Louis U., which mowed down Bowling Green, will clash tomorrow night in the second semifinal of the N. I. T.

The first tilt will match New York U., and DePaul, who won their quarter-final tilts last night.

Dick Kor, an unheralded sub who had been used so sparingly that he had only scored three baskets all year, pitched in a one-hander with six seconds left to give NYU a 45-43 triumph over Texas.

DePaul's Demons ran North Carolina State's Southern Conference champions into the ground in the second half to post a 75-64 triumph. North Carolina State was minus the services of Dick Dickey, the Wolfpack's top scorer. The redheaded Dickey, stricken with the mumps over a week ago, sat dejectdly on the bench in his regular clothes.

The N. I. T. meet will finish Wednesday night and the following evening the Eastern NCAA Cagers will take the Garden Court for the start of their tourney.

Kentucky's Southeastern Kings will tangle with Columbia's Ivy League champs at 8 p. m. Then Holy Cross' defending NCAA titlists will face Michigan's Big Nine Kingpins.

The Eastern finals will be staged Saturday. On Tuesday, March 23, the Eastern NCAA finalist will meet the Western winner for the over-all championship.

Meanwhile two of the western NCAA berths were filled during the week, and the last pair will be decided tomorrow. The western NCAA eliminations will be held in Kansas City March 19 and 20.

Wyoming was awarded the District Seven position over Utah. Baylor earned the right to represent District Six the hard way. The Texans won a play-off with Arizona's border conference champions, two games straight. Baylor, winner of the Southwest Conference pennant, whipped Arizona, 65-59, Friday, and 64-54 last night. Both games were played at Dallas.

Washington and California, battling for the Pacific Coast Conference crown as well as the District Eight post in the NCAA, were deadlocked at one game each in the best-of-three series at Berkeley, Calif. They will decide it tomorrow.

California won the opener, 64-51, Friday, and Washington evened the count Saturday, 64-57.

Oklahoma A. and M. and Kansas State will settle the duel for the District Five slot tomorrow night in one game at Kansas City. The Aggies are the Missouri Valley champions and Kansas State is the Big Seven champion.

Merrick Girls Club Starts Tourney Today

The Merrick Girls Club basketball tournament starts tomorrow with three first-round games and two more opening-round contests slated for Tuesday. Defending Champion FBI and cofavorite Sholl's Cafeteria drew first-round byes. The schedule:

Monday—6:30 p. m.—Eastern A. C. vs. Holy Trinity, 7:30 p. m.—Webb Aircraft vs. Rockville, 8:30 p. m.—Garvin's Grill vs. Kitrars. Tuesday—7:30 p. m.—Wm Saunders W vs. O'Donnell's, 8:30 p. m.—Lyles Florist vs. Chevy Chase.

Boston First

Caps Play Last 4 Games In Five Days

The Washington Capitols are probably wondering how the Basketball Association of America status quo could change so much in the last 12 months.

Last year's Cap team breezed into the playoffs without straining. While this season's edition will have to pull an almost superhuman stunt even to get into the series.

Facing the unpleasant task of playing their final four games in five days this week is bad enough.

To hake things worse, the Caps will have to win every game to keep their hopes alive.

The Caps trail Baltimore's third place Bullets by two full games. The Caps have four games to play, while the Bullets have only two remaining.

After invading Boston tomorrow night and playing host to Providence here Wednesday, the Caps meet the Bullets in Baltimore Thursday in what could be the clincher for the Baltimoreans.

If the Bullets beat the Caps and win their meeting with Providence Friday, the Caps can win their other three games and it won't do them any good.

But if the Caps win all four games this week and the Bullets lose both of their remaining contests, the Caps will get the coveted third place spot in the playoffs.

One other big "if" presents itself. If the Caps beat Boston, Providence and the Bullets and then beat New York here Saturday, and the Bullets lose to the Caps but beat Providence, the Caps and Bullets will be tied for third place. That will involve a playoff to see which gets into the playoffs.

D. C. Comets Bow At Richmond, 61-45

Richmond, Va., March 14 (AP).—The Richmond Barons closed out their home basketball campaign today with a 61-45 victory over the Clifton Comets of Washington. Two thousand fans witnessed the game.

This was the second time the Comets have lost during a 31-game schedule. The Barons administered both lickings.

In this game, the Comets had the services of new players fresh from the college ranks. They were Andy Kostecka of Georgetown University, and Bill Brown of the University of Maryland. Kostecka contributed 17 points to lead the scoring for both clubs and Brown made seven.

The two teams will meet again Wednesday night in Washington.

G. U.'s Mitchell Nears Record

Freshman Bill Mitchell of Georgetown University, was back at the Hilltop yesterday trying to explain a slip of the foot which spoiled his time in the finals after he'd cracked a world record in a semifinal heat of the South Atlantic A. A. U. track meet Saturday night in Baltimore.

Running in the 70-yard high hurdles, the foreign service student hung up a brilliant :08.4 to beat the accepted record time by one tenth of a second. His effort has been equalled by three collegiate hurdlers this year, though none of the times are official yet.

In Saturday's final, however, Mitchell got off to a slow start and needed :08.8 to cover the distance, beating out North Carolina's former ace, Floyd Simmons, for first place.

In the Mason-Dixon mile relay Catholic University's team of Jim Zuppa, Don Groffie, Rod Jackson and Bob Black nosed out Johns Hopkins in 3:30.6.

Also featured was the open 75-yard dash triumph of Joe Cianciabella, Manhattan College, and Browning Ross' National Invitation Mile victory for Villanova. Ross did the mile in 4:17.9.

Teen-Age Tourney Opens Tonight

Fifteen teams will compete in the District of Columbia playoffs of the second annual National Teen-age Basketball Tournament, which opens at Coolidge gym tonight at 6 o'clock.

The winner will compete with champion teams from 15 States in the nationals.

Hoya Ice Team Plays N. Y. AC Tomorrow Night

Georgetown University's ice hockey line-up will face the New York A. C. tomorrow at 8:30 p. m. at the Uline Arena.

Three of the four Cassidy brothers will start against the New York club, which boasts wins over Army, Yale and Williams. John Cassidy will be at center and Pat and Tom will start at the wings.

The Hoyas, with a record of four wins and two losses, are scheduled to compete in the National AAU Championships at Buffalo Thursday.

Uline Basketball Twin Bill Set

The New York Renaissance, leading Negro professional basketball team, meets the Dayton (Ohio) Mets in the feature game of a double-header at Uline Arena Thursday night.

In the Mets, the Renaissance will face a strong club that has beaten every team in the National Basketball League.

In the opener of the double bill, the Kokomo (Ind.) Clowns battle the Cleveland Rams.

Sugar Radio Booters Beat Marlboro, 1-0

Sugar Radio took the lead in the playoffs for the District soccer championship, beating Marlboro, 1-0, yesterday at Marlboro.

Buddy Simmonds scored the game's only goal on a free kick after 30 minutes. The two play next Sunday at Rosedale playground.

A Thank-You Memo From C&O To New York Central

The C&O, largest owners of the Central, have publicly made three recommendations for improving the Central's service. All three have been acted on or promised!

Memo From The C&O To The New York Central
Memo No. 2 From The C&O To The New York Central
Memo No. 3 From The C&O To The New York Central
Why should travelers have to stand in line or send to the station for sleeping-car tickets? The C&O invites you to adopt our new "Centralized Reservation Bureau."

To The New York Central:

The C&O has come to be known, in press and public, as the gadfly of the railroads. We have never denied that soft impeachment.

But today the "gadfly" is happy.

As the largest stockholders of the Central (though as yet not permitted by the ICC to be represented on your Board) we have made public three recommendations for improving the Central's service. After our own fashion, we made these suggestions in advertisements. They are reproduced on the right.

Be it said to the Central's credit that all three of the recommendations have been acted on or promised.

Through Trains Are Coming!

On December 15th the C&O addressed an advertisement to the Central proposing through trains for coast-to-coast travelers instead of merely through sleeping cars. Why should passengers have to waste all those hours stalling around between trains in Chicago? Why can't they go right through on a crack train that gives de luxe service from coast to coast? There is clearly enough demand for it, because the present so-called "through sleeping cars" are the most profitable sleepers in the country.

On January 7th the New York Central's President, in an interview with the New York Times, promised that through trains would in time be provided.

Commuter Tickets By Mail!

On January 21st the C&O again addressed the Central, pleading the case of the long-neglected commuter. Among other things, we recommended that commutation tickets be sent out by mail every month to save the commuter the nuisance of standing in a ticket line. We said he could pay for them by check as simply as he pays for electricity and telephone service.

During the week of February 23rd the Central distributed a leaflet to all its commuters offering to send tickets by mail if checks were received in advance. We learn from the leaflet, that this regulation had, curiously, been on the Central's books a long time. But apparently few commuters had ever heard of it.

And Now, Goodbye Ticket Lines!

Most important of the recommendations was one for a Centralized Reservation Bureau that would eliminate all need of standing in line for sleeping-car and reserved-coach tickets.

As early as Oct. 10th, during an "Information Please" broadcast, we described in some detail our own reservation bureau, at Huntington, West Virginia, and told how the passenger, anywhere along our line, needs only to phone a local number to be immediately put through to this bureau. His space is assigned to him at once over the phone, and, if he has a C&O credit card, his tickets will be delivered to him on the train!

We invited the Central, who have far more passenger business than we have, to adopt this system.

This "Memo to the Central" appeared in the press on February 12th. The New York Central now has equipment on order, for a test of this service.

Hats Off to Progress!

The C&O is in dead earnest about the many reforms that are needed before our railroads can become as modern as they should be—and as concerned over the comfort and convenience of their passengers. Much yet is required before this industry can open up the new era in rail travel, and rail prosperity, that we know is waiting to be won.

So the C&O will continue its campaign for progress.

But, again, as the largest stockholders of the Central, we salute these important improvements. We believe the public will salute them, too.

Internal Revenue Reports Humor in Many Tax Returns

STORY: Now that this is tax-paying time, you might get a bang out of this Internal Revenue story:

Revenue sends refund checks to about 30 million of the 50 million taxpayers. Not so long ago it inadvertently made a mistake and sent two refund checks to a taxpayer.

The bureau called in one of its ace investigators to get into the matter. Grimly, he began to quiz and cross-examine the taxpayer, who readily admitted that the checks arrived only two weeks apart. But the man insisted that he had no part in having the two checks written. The investigator, of course, told him that he should have returned the second one instead of cashing it, too.

"Now what did you think when you got two checks?" the flatfoot demanded.

"Why, I thought it was mighty nice of you-all," was the taxpayer's nonchalant reply.

There seem to be some few people who have fun making out their returns. For example:

The man who listed as a dependent, "Toby, my tapeworm;"

A mean old husband who blandly filed a claim for "depreciation" on his wife "because she's all worn out and can't get my breakfast anymore;"

The blunt husband who was asked if his wife had any income of her own. His written answer: "No, she's a liability;"

An Iowa girl who came to a question on the tax form asking if she were married, and she wrote, "No, darn it," and,

The fellow who wrote in the space the taxpayer is warned not to write in, "I'll write here if I want to."

Taxpayers have other problems, too. Last year a young man attached this explanation to his return:

"I am filing my kid's mother as a dependent since her support, along with my kid's, is my responsibility. The housing shortage has postponed our marriage for 14 months."

A young Southern boy had a similar problem. He was being questioned by a collector and the conversation went like this:

"Are you married?"

"No sir, but I have a 3-year-old boy as a dependent."

"There must be close relationship to sustain the dependency claim. Does that close relationship exist in this case?"

"All ah knows is that if I don't have $7.50 every week down thah, de law comes out and gits me."

POLICY: Each of the 1,500,000 Federal workers who are covered by the Civil Service retirement system is to be given a "policy" which will explain his stake in the system. Distribution of the policies will start this week.

RULINGS: And talking about retirement, a number of important rulings have been made on the Langer-Chavez-Stevenson Act. Among them are:

1. The present problem of the retired employe. What if he forgoes an increased pension, names his wife his beneficiary and she dies before he does? In that case, the husband's pension would not be increased 25 per cent, or $300, whichever is smaller. The employe would have taken a chance and lost.

2. The L-C-S law carries a provision which limits an annuity to 80 per cent of the highest average salary for five years. But this won't prevent an employe from purchasing an additional annuity by making voluntary deposits in the system—purchases which would give him a pension of more than 80 per cent.

3. An employe who is laid off after 25 years of service is entitled to an immediate annuity to be discounted by one fourth of 1 per cent for each full month he's under 60. This provision is retroactive to July 1, 1947. What about persons covered under this section who were laid off between July 1 of last year and March 31? The answer: His annuity will be computed on the plan under the L-C-S law that would give him the greatest benefit.

4. The so-called "tontine" charge is wiped out by the L-C-S law. It's a $1-a-month charge against those who resign. Now, if an employe resigns before April 1—he's docked tontine—but if he ever returns to Federal service he'll be compelled to make a redeposit of his refund, plus tontine, if he wants that period of service to be credited toward his retirement.

5. Also, when a person who leaves Government and draws out his money, and later reenters the service, he must pay interest when he makes his redeposit. Also, interest will be charged through all periods of employment regardless of whether the service period is included in the annuity computation. That ruling will make it tough on some people to make a full and costly redeposit.

Mt. Vernon Citizens To Hear Garden Talks

Talks on gardening and community planning and a showing of garden slides will feature a special meeting of the Mount Vernon (Va.) Citizens Association at 8 o'clock tonight.

Wilbur H. Youngman, garden editor of the Sunday Star, will speak on "Planning Gardens for the New Home." T. J. Stockton, planning engineer for the Fairfax County Zoning Commission, will discuss "Planning Your Community," and Olaf Saugstad, former teacher of art metal work in Washington schools, will show color slides of Virginia gardens.

Dwelling Within Shadow of Capitol Condemned as Insanitary; No Gas or Electricity, Windows Broken, Floor Boards Rotted

26 Dingman Place Held Unfit for Human Habitation But It Brings in $48 a Month

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A Health Department inspector has again recommended that No. 26 Dingman pl. nw. be condemned because of insanitary conditions.

The dwelling lies within the shadow of the Capitol and in the "backyard" of several Congressmen who live in close-by hotels. According to inspectors, it is unfit for human habitation.

No. 26 Dingman place in one of a red-brick row of dwellings, lost in a maze of alleys in the bowels of the block zounded by North Capitol st., E and F sts., and New Jersey ave.

It is typical of Washington's 1800 alley slum dwellings.

No. 26 is a one-family unit containing four small rooms, kitchen and living room on first floor; two bedrooms on the second. The kitchen door is pulled agape and the ceiling of one bedroom is caving in. Three families—10 persons in all—live in the remaining two rooms.

There is no gas or electricity; the occupants use oil lamps at night. There is no hot water; something's wrong with the cold water faucet and it keeps running all the time. Most of the windows are broken, but stuffed with rags or shielded with cardboard during the cold weather. Each of the lived-in rooms is heated by a wood-burning, single-lid, pot-belly stove, used also for cooking.

The three families share the same water closet, located in the rear of the dwelling. Just as often as not, it's clogged and unusable, so that they have to use a neighbor's.

Inside, the plaster is fallen out. Floor boards have been rotted or torn out, exposing the ground-level rooms to the damp earth. The air is dank and rancid. The circular wooden stairway to the upper floor is dark as a mine-shaft, and the hole in the middle stair is large enough for any of the five children living there to fall through. There's an accumulation of dirt, rubbish and filth.

Refuge for Rodents

No. 26 is a refuge—like so many other slum dwellings—for rodents, vermin and disease. The children in it are scrawny, continually getting sick. Three have the measles. One also developed pneumonia and is in critical condition at Gallinger Hospital.

For the shelter and facilities provided by No. 26 Dingman pl. the occupants say they pay a total of $48 a month.

The family of four—two adults, two children—pays $12 a month for the downstairs living room. The two families of six—three adults, three children—pay $36 a month for the two upstairs bedrooms, but can only live in one. At night the upstairs room floor space is entirely covered by a bed, a pallet, trunk and table.

The Health Department inspector was called to No. 26 Dingman pl. by a routine complaint—water closet clogged. However, he found conditions at No. 26 so wretched that he recommended condemnation—a routine action, since Dingman pl. has been marked for condemnation several times before and still survives.

The birth of No. 26 Dingman pl. is obscure. The dwelling is at least 56 years old, because Congress in 1892 banned construction of further housing in Washington's alleys.

Police Pvt. Albert R. Houch, who pounded the Dingman pl. beat for many years, remembers Irish and Italian immigrant families living in the alley dwellings. Negroes have been living there for the past 25 years.

(There was a time, during the prohibition days, that Dingman pl. and its parallel companion blind alley, McCullough st., was a notorious haunt for moonshiners and other sinister gentry, who, it was said, would as soon cut your throat as your purse.

Gives Police Little Trouble

(Today, except for the commonplace Saturday night drinkings, feudings and fightings, Dingman place gives the police little trouble, according to First Precinct Station officers. An insurance agent, encountered in the alley, described the Dingman dwellers as domestics and laborers, and said most were prompt in making their weekly insurance payments.)

In 1914, Congress flatly prohibited the occupancy of alley buildings after July 1, 1918, but the deadline came and went without any attempt at enforcement because of the World War I housing shortage. A second alley dwelling ban was set for 1923, but this was nullified by the courts.

Congress and the District tried a new tack in 1934, setting up the Alley Dwelling Authority to reclaim the alley slums. A low-cost housing program, defense housing, and wartime emergency housing progarms quickly and successively superceded the alley projects, and the third deadline for closing down all alley dwellings, June 30, 1944, was pased and forgotten because of the World War II housing shortage.

The Alley Dwelling Authority (since become the National Capital Housing Authority) did manage to tear down 3500 slum dwellings, but never did get to Dingman pl. No. 27 Dingman pl., immediately adjacent No. 26, was razed several years ago when the structure collapsed. Its removal leaves a gap in the Dingman pl., row of houses, like a single tooth of the lower jaw.

Again Pulls Through

In 1942, the local law for the condemnation of insanitary buildings, all but killed by adverse court decisions, was given added vigor by Congress, and all the homes in Dingman place were referred to the Board for Condemnation of Insanitary Buildings. Dingman place, however, again pulled through.

No. 26 Dingman place was specifically selected for condemnation in October, 1945. The condemnation order cited loose bricks in the rear wall affecting safety of the structure, and permitting moisture (i. e., rain) into the building; improper doors, frames, windows; dangerous chimneys; dilapidated yard water closet; building harboring rodents.

However, the owner of the property agreed to correct the cited conditions, and when the repairs were made, in February, 1946, the condemnation order was rescinded.

Records disclose that Health Department inspectors have made repeated calls to No. 26 Dingman place since 1945 in response to complaints lodged by tenants, neighbors, and police. The complaints included overcrowding, clogged water closet, unclean yard, trash, rats, improper storage of refuse and garbage. Latest recommendation for condemnation was made last week.

Because of the human factors and legal intracies involved in condemnation, District authorities take such drastic action only after much deliberation and procedure.

For example, in the case of No. 26 Dingman place another inspector will be sent out this week to make a new investigation, according to William H. Cary, jr., chief of the bureau of public health engineering.

A second condemnation recommendation will then initiate a referral of the case to the Board for Condemnation of Insanitary Buildings, an autonomous agency made up of the District Health Officer, Inspection Director, and Assistant Engineer Commissioner. This board can take favorable action on a condemnation recommendation only after at least two members of the agency have made a personal inspection of the specified dwelling.

The owner of the property is then notified that he has 10 days to show cause why the structure should not be condemned. Then, if there's no reaction by the proprietor, the board issues an order—one copy of which is tacked on the condemned building—that the premises must be evacuated in 15 days. It becomes the owner's duty to move out the tenants, but the District government may have to do it through court edict. Once the building is cleared of occupants, the owner must clean and barricade it. He may, at his own discretion, raze the structure. mfwyp mh the men and womam

Health officials here recognize that the barricading of a building may keep the humans out but affords excellent harborage for rats.

No Power to Raze

"For practical purposes," explains Health Engineer Cary, "we've no power to tear down the building until it becomes structurally unsafe. Then it becomes a matter for the building inspectors and an entirely different board."

Director of Inspections Robert H. Davis estimates that some 200 dwellings have been padlocked as unsanitary, and some 50 torn down as unsafe, in the past year.

Cary and Davis are particularly reluctant to condemn buildings in these days of housing shortage. "Where will the tenants go?" they ask.

The three families living at No. 26 don't want to leave. They've been living there over two years now, and figure it's better than no shelter at all. It's even better than other slum dwellings in the city. But they feel they ought to get repairs and improved facilities for their $48 a month.

"Forty-eight dollars a month!" expostulated J. Merrill Conner, a real estate operator managing No. 26 Dingman pl. for the owner.

"All my client gets for renting the property is $12.50 a month, and that's all that rental is worth."

Investigation reveals that the person who rents the property through Conner's office—he pays the rent promptly — subleases rooms at No. 26 Dingman pl. to the three families, who say they pay him $48 a month. The absentee tenant who pays the $12.50 a month could not be reached for comment.

Rooms Subleased

Police and firemen in the area say its common practices for tenants to sublease rooms and floor space in the alley dwellings for exorbitant rents because the housing shortage is particularly acute for the Negroes. As many as 20 persons have been found living in one-family dwellings of Dingman pl.

The owner of No. 26 Dingham place, according to the real estate agent, is a middle-aged widow, presently living in Philadelphia. She inherited the property as part of an estate.

"The $12.50 a month she gets in rent," Agent Conner explains, "just about pays for the taxes on th epreperty. My share of it for managing the property, by the way, is five per cent, or 62½ cents a month."

Conner said the owner had once visited the property and had been "shocked" by the living conditions.

"But what is she to do?" asks the real estate agent. "Any money she puts into the property is a dead loss, since it has been condemned again and again, and will be razed by the government sooner or later. And under the rent control law, she can't evict the tenants unless she wants the dwelling for her own occupancy."

Last year, the District launched a new assault on the slums. The program called for the National Capital Park and Planning Commission to develop the overall plan, and the District Redevelopment Land Agency to buy, clear, and redevelop blighted areas.

It was a good idea, but it will cost money. Congress thus far has refused to grant the Redevelopment Land Agency funds on the grounds that the overall plan has not been completed.

The House has refused funds for planning on the grounds that such activity must give way to "matters of vital importance at home and abroad." The Senate Appropriations has okayed $50,000 for further planning, and will probably be sustained by the Senate.

Whether or not any money is forthcoming from Congress this year for District slums is, at the moment, a moot question.

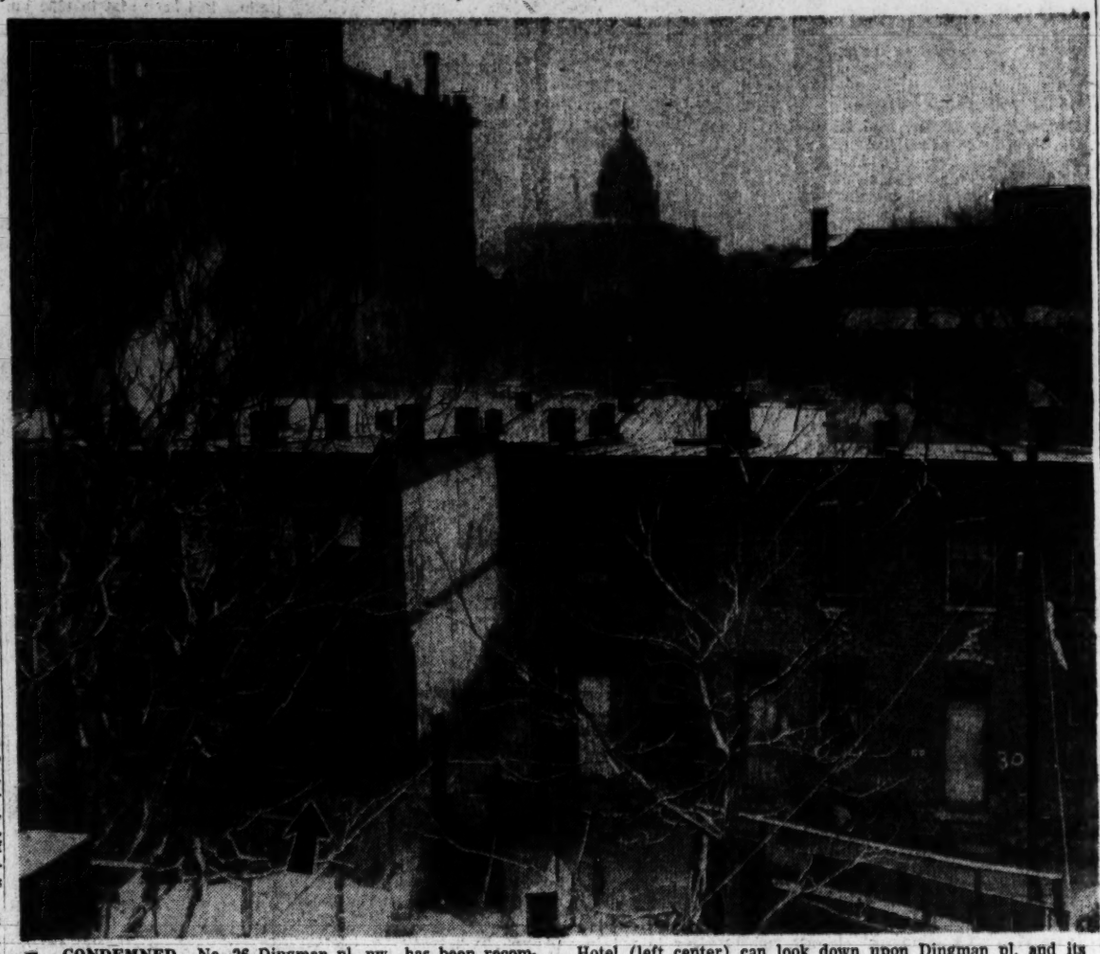
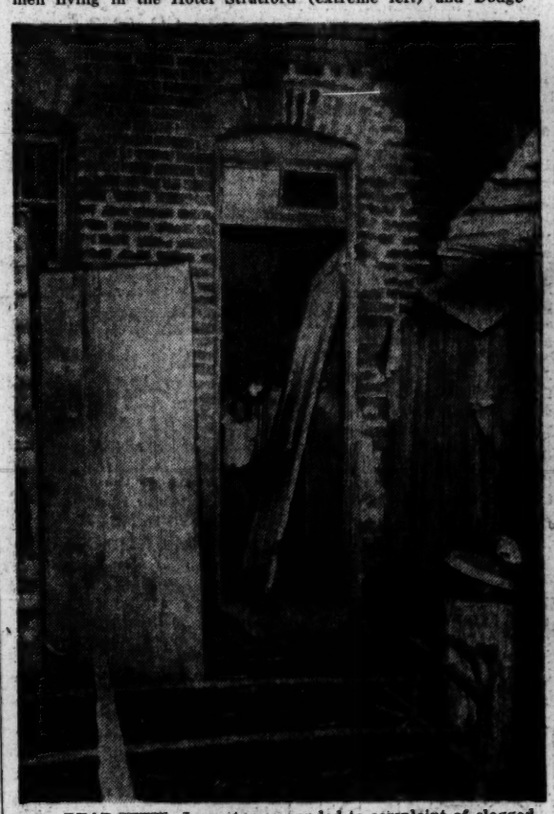
(Sam Stavisky will discuss Washington slums on Bill Gold's broadcast over WINX at noon today.)



1. CONDEMNED. No. 26 Dingman pl. nw., has been recommended for condemnation by a health inspector. Congressmen living in the Hotel Stratford (extreme left) and Dodge Hotel (left center) can look down upon Dingman pl. and its slum alley dwellings, which are hidden from the street



2. REAR VIEW. Inspector responded to complaint of clogged water closet (wooden shed at left). Rear door, leading to kitchen, won't close, lets in rain, snow and rats. Kids play in the yard

3. INSIDE KITCHEN. Three families living in one-family dwelling use this kitchen. They say they pay a total of $48 a month rent. There's no light or hot water

4. HOME FOR SIX. Three adults and three children live in this room on second floor of No. 26 Dingman pl. Child has the measles.

Man Wounds Wife in Bed; Kills Himself With Rifle

Stuart Boyers' NW Home Scene Of Early Sunday Morning Tragedy

Harold Stuart Boyer, 58, a lumber estimator for a Washington hardware firm shot his 60-year-old wife with a .22 caliber pistol and then killed himself with a rifle early yesterday morning at his home 1429 Varnum st. nw.

Mrs. Clara T. Boyer, the wife, suffered a bullet wound in the cheek and blows on the back of the head.

Mrs. Boyer told police that her husband had been talking of committing suicide for several days before the shooting occurred.

It was just before 3 a. m. yesterday, she said, that her husband got out of their bed and went into another room. In a few minutes, Mrs. Boyer told police, he returned, and got back into bed. But then he got out of bed again, she said, and in a moment she felt a "hard clap" at the back of her head.

Wife Shot in Bed

She cried out, "What are you doing?"

She said, her husband replied, "I'm going to take you with me."

Then Mrs. Boyer said she felt the bullet wound, and heard the sound of a shot. Then Boyer left the bedroom.

Mrs. Annette Hurst, War Department secretary, a roomer in the house, told police she was awakened by the sound of a gun shot, and soon heard Mrs. Boyer screaming in the hall.

She said Mrs. Boyer burst into her room, crying, "He hit me," and "He shot me." The two women huddled there, waiting until they said they could hear "no more noise." Then Mrs. Hurst went downstairs and telephoned police.

Mrs. Boyer and Mrs. Hurst searched the house before police arrived, starting in the upstairs bedroom. They finally found Boyer's body at the foot of the basement steps, with a bullet through the right temple, and a .22 caliber rifle by his side. The pistol was found in the Boyers' bedroom.

Certificate of Suicide

District Coroner Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald issued a certificate of suicide. Mrs. Boyer was reported in "good condition" at Garfield Hospital.

Officials at the hardware and lumber firm of Barber & Ross, where Boyer had been employed for 25 years, could not account for his action.

Marshall H. Johnson, a vice president and manager of the hardware department, described Boyer as a "quiet man" and "the last person in the world to do such a thing." "Certainly," he said, "he would have had no financial worries."

Homicide detectives said that Boyer had been in ill health, and it was learned that he had undergone a prostate gland operation at Georgetown University Hospital in January.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Boyer are natives of Baltimore. Boyer received an academic degree at Johns Hopkins University before the couple settled here about 30 years ago. They had no children.

Woman Found Killed Along Pennsy Tracks

The badly mutilated body of an unidentified woman, believed to have been struck by a train, was found along the railroad tracks near the crossing in Lanham, Md., yesterday.

The accident was not discovered until a southbound Pennsylvania Railroad train pulled into Union Station here shortly after 2 a. m. The train engineer, E. J. Lomax of Wilmington, Del., noticed bits of cloth and human flesh on the engine.

Hyattsville police, who investigated the death, found parts of the body scattered along the tracks. Lomax told Prince Georges County Identification Officer Edward Cissel he thought he saw a "black dot" on the tracks near the crossing, but was not aware of striking anything.

The remains were removed to Gasch's funeral home in Hyattsville, where fingerprints were taken and sent to the Federal Bureau of Investigation for possible identification.

The engineer of a northbound freight train later reported he saw a woman staggering along the tracks near Lanham sometime after midnight. A woman answering the same description was also seen on Defense Highway about 11:30 p. m.

Police described the woman as about 39 years old, 5 feet 5 inches tall and weighing 145 pounds. She had reddish-brown hair, gray at the roots, and brown eyes. She was wearing a blue and white print dress, with a flower pattern on a trellis background, a bluish-green coat with a maroon lining, and black shoes.

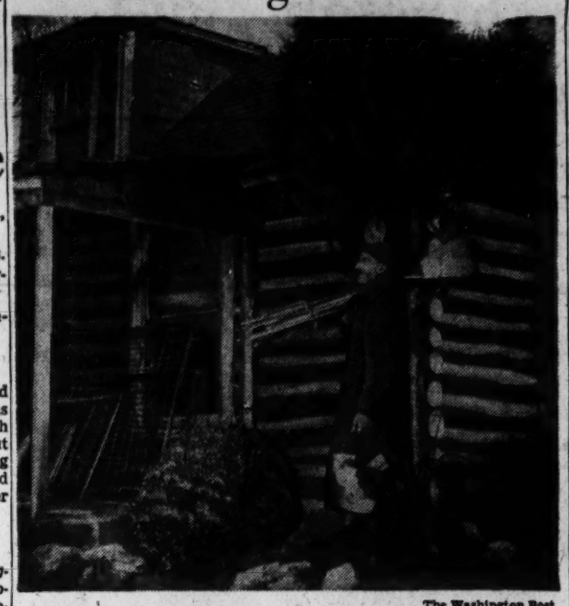
Sachses Getting Settled



The Washington Post

HEAVEN ON EARTH—This was the description Mrs. George Sachs gave of her new log cabin home as she started getting settled in their new quarters yesterday near Braddock rd. in Fairfax County

Log Cabin Is Heaven to Elderly Pair

George Sachs, 67, and his wife Martha, 65, homeless couple who spent last Wednesdya night camping in the woods, were busy yesterday settling their new six-room log cabin near Fairfax, Va.

Sachs, an individualist who has kept his spirits up in spite of a series of disheartening events, described the house as "our own heaven on earth" as he prepared to pu this belongings away. The cabin was provided by Heber C. Henderson, Washington real estate man, after he heard of the Sach's plight.

The new house stands high on a hill, about half a mile from Braddock rd., near Fairfax. Sachs is already making plans to put in a garden and to clear the surrounding woods for fuel.

A truck moving the Sachs' few possessions and the many contributions of new friends was mired in the mud at the foot of the hill for two days, he said. Neighbor children pitched in and helped carry boxes and packages up the long hill. A tractor, dragging a sled-like trailer behind it, was finally able to make it up the hill with the larger things.

"Everything is fine," Sachs declared as he surveyed his home. "All I needed was something to eat and a warm place to stay. I've got plenty to eat now."

"I guess I was almost dead, but I've come to life now. I guess it's just that people are nice all over the world."

Sachs isn't worried about the future any more. He has had offers of odd jobs from farmers in the vicinity, and is planning to be back supporting himself again soon.

Mrs. Sachs spent most of the day inside, enjoying the comfort of a rocking chair beside a warm stove. Her rheumatism has bothered her ever since the two nights in the woods and she got a bad cough during the three months in unheated hen-houses.

Pair Arrested After Chase At Wild Speed

A wild 6-mile police chase of two men in a stolen car ended in capture of the fugitives on the Virginia side of Chain Bridge early Sunday morning.

Police fired five shots at the fugitives, whose speed reached 80 miles an hour at times. The fugitives several times tried to ram the police car, the law officers reported. They were slowed finally when a bullet pierced a tire, but later tried to escape into some woods on foot.

Captured following the chase that began about 4 a. m. on Canal rd. nw., were: George D. Knott, 19, of 430 11th st. se., and Thomas W. O'Brien, 20, of 6000 13th pl. nw.

They were taken by Washington and Arlington County, Va., police when, cold and trembling, they emerged from a Glebe rd. wood, just off Chain Bridge, three hours after the chase began.

In their car police found a .38 revolver, an Army .45 and a pistol of German origin known as a P.38.

Held by Washington police for investigation, they were being questioned about various robberies where weapons of these types have been used. Ballistics tests also were ordered of bullets from the weapons.

Police said the fugitives' car belonged to Jacob Wolf of 2334 13th pl. nw. and had been stolen from an alley in the 600 block of H st. nw. Saturday afternoon.

The chase began when Pvts. John T. Ensor and Reverdy C. Orme in Scout Car 73 driving along Canal rd. saw a car approaching from the opposite direction at a high rate of speed.

Wheeling about, police chased the car west, trying several times to edge the fugitives over to the edge of the road to stop them.

In return, the fugitives tried three times to ram the pursuing car, police said.

25 Colleges Entered In Forensic Contest

Fredericksburg, Va., March 14 (Spl). — Twenty-five colleges and universities already have accepted invitations to participate in the Grand National Forensic Tournament which will be held at Mary Washington College, women's branch of the University of Virginia, March 25-27.

Dr. Warren G. Keith, associate professor of history and faculty sponsor of the Strawberry Leaf, compus organization which stages the annual competition, said invitations had been sent to 1300 junior and senior colleges. Three hundred Fredericksburg residents, chosen by the Rotary Club, will judge the debating, public speaking, reading and other contests.

Madison County Herd Association to Meet

Madison, Va., March 14 (AP).—The Madison County Dairy Herd Improvement Association will hold its annual meeting here Wednesday, officers announced.

The association said its 1947 averages, just compiled, showed five herds averaged more than 400 pounds of butterfat per cow for the year. High herd was listed as that of Mrs. Frank S. Walker of Orange.

Her 42 registered Holsteins and Jerseys averaged 10,920 pounds of milk and 462.1 pounds of butterfat per animal, the association said.

Defendant Pleads Own Case; Court Imposes Fine

Martinsburg, W. Va., March 14 (Spl.).—Douglas R. Vorhees, musical instrument store proprietor, argued his own case in Circuit Court yesterday.

He was arrested in November when trying to intervene as police were questioning witnesses at the police barracks, and charged with "interfering, obstructing and impeding an officer. Vorhees argued he was only asking police to "discuss" the situation.

Judge D. H. Rodgers imposed a $25 fine, plus court costs, and a suspended jail sentence of 30 days.

243 Seek Degrees

Fredericksburg, Va., March 14 (Spl.).—Two hundred and forty-three students are candidates for degrees at Mary Washington College of the University of Virginia here at graduation exercises May 31. The number is 20 more than the 1946 class, one of the largest in the school's history.

New Catholic School To Open in September

Fredericksburg, Va., March 14 (Spl.).—Catholic Church officials announced today that a parochial school with the first four elementary grades will open here in September. It will be housed in Kirkland, an old home on Marye's Heights, part of the Civil War battlefield.

The school will accommodate 100 boys and girls of all denominations the first year, and will be expanded by 1950 to include high school grades. It will be operated by the Daughters of Wisdom.

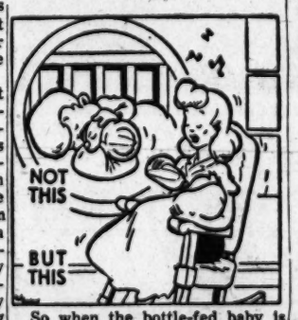
Bottle-Fed Baby Needs Cuddling at Mealtime

THOUGH more and more doctors are believing that most mothers can and should nurse their babies, there are situations where this is not possible.

In such instances an effort should be made to have the feeding experience as much like nursing as possible. A nipple that does not flow too easily so that the normal experience of sucking can take place and the holding of the baby close in one's arms rather than propping the bottle up against a pillow are important—not for sentimental reasons but because they bring to the infant the sort of experience that he needs physically and emotionally. The cuddling and comforting are necessary to his well-being. They actually have a positive effect on his health.



So when the bottle-fed baby is being fed be sure there is plenty of cuddling attached.

Mrs. Summers' Bonnet Sports Sleek Feathers From African Jungle

MRS. BURKS SUMMERS' vulturine guinea fowl which she wears as a hat causes no end of comment. The aqua and black striped feathers are as sleek as satin ribbon and they've been put together by an artist.

MRS. McNAIR

The birds flock in Somali in deepest Africa on the north bank of the Tana River, known as the wild Northern Frontier District, or to sportsmen, simply as the "N. F. D." Burks Summers got his bird in this region where there is a strangle jungle superstition. It is believed that when this particular fowl is the target that the lions come rushing out of the jungle.

As Helen Summers and her hat were sailing regally through the Mayflower lobby the other day she noticed a man give her the eye. In a flash he was beside her. "I beg your pardon," he said in cultured tones, "but would you mind telling me what kind of feathers are on your hat." Ah! A new approach the lady thought.

So—in her most elegant manner, she replied, "Why, no, not at all," and proceeded to give him the history of her feathered friend.

"Well, that's very strange" the conversational one ended, "I have hunted in every part of the world except Africa, and I have reservations in my pocket right now for an expedition there. I'm going to bring home one like that for my wife. Do you mind?."

TRADITION wields a weighty scepter in old New Orleans. Washington runs by protocol. So what happens when the two meet at the Mardi Gras? According to stories coming up from the Crescent City the banners of both cities are still flying.

The encounter took place at the Mystic Ball. The King and Queen of the pre-Lenten festival were watching their subjects on the dance floor from their seats on a gilded throne.

Mrs. Truman and Margaret were there, just having christened the tug, boat, Harry S. Truman. A ruffle of drums and a fanfare summoned the First Lady and her daughter before New Orleans' rulers. Margaret curtisied prettily before them, then moved away.

Mrs. Truman, waiting, perhaps for recognition of her own rank, stood solidly before Their Majesties. The King and Queen fixed a glassy stare and just waited! Members of New Orleans first families held their breath. Not a word was spoken, not a gesture made. How long, this impasse? A thousand onlookers wondered. Seconds which seemed like hours passed and the First Lady turned on her heel and walked off.

AMBASSADOR to a pretty girl at a party: Do you speak Spanish?

Pretty girl: "No, I'm sorry, but I don't."

Ambassador: "Oh, but you should learn! I would be glad to teach you privately."

Pretty Girl: "Thank you, Mr. Ambassador, but anything you could teach privately, I already know."

One reason why the Ambassador of Ecuador and Senora de Dillon are anxious for Spring to come to Washington, is that they can move into their embassy.

After three months here, the envoy from below the Rio Grande is still waiting for the heating plant at the Embassy to be repaired, is still living in a Mayflower suite. "We'll call it our summer home" he says, philosophically.

Minister and Wife Return From Visit

The Minister of New Zealand and Lady Berendsen are expected back in Washington on Friday, March 19. They have already reached the West Coast, having flown there from New Zealand. After the Minister delivers a speech in Los Augeles before the Town Hall Group today, they will proceed to Washington by train.

Walter Nash, the first New Zealand Minister to this country, now Deputy Prime Minister and Minister of Finance, is in town. He will be a guest of the Legation until tomorrow conferring with State Department officials on New Zealand matters. The Minister has been attending the International Conference on Trade in Havana, and is on his return from a trip to Ottawa, Canda.

Sunday afternoon, Mr. Nash was entertained, in the absence of the Minister and Lady Berendsen, by the Charge d'Affaires, J. S. Read and Mrs. Reid, who gave a tea at their home, Haere Mai, in Bethesda. Guests included staff members of the Legation and their wives, the Trade Commission and Joint Staff Mission.

Joan Dulles Engaged to Wed Austrian

Mr. and Mrs. Allen Welsh Dulles of New York have announced the engagement of their daughter Joan, to Fritz Peter Molden, son of Dr. and Mrs. Ernst Molden of Vienna.

Miss Dulles graduated from the Brearley School and from Radcliffe College. She studied at the Tanglewood Music School and served in the Frontier Nursing Service in Kentucky. During the war she worked with the Department of State in Washington and later with the War Department in Vienna. This winter she attended the Radcliffe Graduate School.

She is the great-granddaughter of Gen. John W. Foster, Secretary of State in the Cabinet of President Benjamin Harrison and granddaughter of the late Prof. Henry Alfred Todd of Columbia University and the late Mrs. Todd, and of the late Rev. Dr. Allen Macy Dulles of the Auburn Theological Seminary and the late Mrs. Dulles. She is the niece of Mrs. George Eliot Leighton and John Foster fiDulles and greatniece of Mrs. D'Arcy Paul of Baltimore where she was presented at the Bachelors' Cotillion after having made her debut at the Junior Assembly in New York.

Mr. Molden attended the universities of Vienna and Innsbruck. His father is the publisher and editor of the Viennese newspaper Die Presse. Mrs. Molden is Paula von Preradovic, authoress and granddaughter of the Croatian poet Peter Preradovic.

During the war Mr. Molden worked in the Ausrian Underground and in 1944 became liaison officer between the United States Army and the Austrian Resistance. For these services he was awarded the American Medal of Freedom with the bronze plane. After the war he served as secretary to the Austrian Foreign Minister, Dr. Karl Gruber. At present he is foreign editor of Die Presse.

Lorraine Skinner Engaged to Wed

Mr. and Mrs. James B. Skinner of Arlington have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margaret Lorraine Skinner, to Paul Temple, son of Mrs. Floyd Temple of Terre Haute, Ind.

Miss Skinner attended George Washington University and the University of Miami, where she was a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority. Mr. Temple, former Army ordnance lieutenant, served overseas in the European theater.

The wedding will take place in May.

Juniors' Dance Will Benefit Speech Clinic

Members of the Junior Clinic Speech Foundation, organized in February, will give a dance on Saturday, April 10, at the United Nations Club, from 9 to 12, the proceeds of which will be turned over to the Speech Clinic Foundation.

Miss Mary-Stuart Montague Price is chairman of the newly organized group, and Miss Mary Lee Schaeffer and Miss Patricia Devine are vice chairmen. Corresponding secretary is Miss Drucie Snyder; recording secretary, Mrs. George C. Clarke, jr., and Miss Laura Belle Wyatt is treasurer.

The Washington Academy of Speech was founded two years ago to teach the methods and principles of its director, Richard R. Hutcheson. In the second year of its being a group of Washingtonians formed the Speech Clinic Foundation for the purpose of helping those who couldn't help themselves and to further the work being done in the speech field.

One man who had been unable to make himself understood for 23 years was put in touch with the Speech Clinic Foundation. They, in turn, gave him a scholarship to Mr. Hutcheson's school. Now he is on his way to a job offered him in South America, his speech deficiency corrected. After Mr. Hutcheson has helped patients,, they are then turned over to the George Washington Clinic or Catholic Clinic for further study and re-education.

Miss Myers to Marry Lawrence E. Peters

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Joseph Myers of Washington announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Miss Mary Ellen Myers, to Lawrence Edward Peters. The wedding will take place in early June.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Man in Thirties, Who Studied for Ministry, Is Eternally Harping on Qualities He Seeks In Ideal Wife, Meantime Being a Heartbreaker

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I have a friend. I could hardly call him a suitor, who is in his early thirties. He studied for the ministry and is now employed in philanthropic work and he has great fervor for his work.

But he is eternally harping on the qualities he wants in a wife, and I think he is sadly in need of straightening-out by someone qualified to advise.

He wants to date every personable girl he meets, "to find out what she is like" and he manifests the hope that she will be just the girl God fashioned for him. But in every case he winds up saying that she probably isn't the girl God meant for him, and he believes that God will reveal to him unmistakably whom he should marry.

She must be an accomplished pianiste, must have a thorough knowledge of theology and be able to expound Scriptures as well as he; must be an extrovert like himself, etc.; but as I say, he is still trotting around with every new girl he meets, and still undecided, though he insists he is very anxious to marry.

Says He'll Love When God Decrees

HE HAS another faithful friend (like myself), whom he has been seeing for two years, off and on; and he is not in love with her, he is sure of that. But he is prepared to love the girl God made for him; and he gives me to understand—almost in so many words,—that he is waiting for God to reveal to him whether he should marry her or me, or maybe neither of us.

If some girl loves him very much and wants to marry him, that signifies nothing to him, for so have others, just as ardently, he says. He likes me, but could like some other girl just as well, and he tells me to go out with others, but not to forget him. I tell him he just wants to give us all a whirl, and our conversations usually conclude by my calling him a crackpot.

Can you explain what's wrong with him? I have been told that his mother had ideas similar to his; in fact, that she was a fanatic. Please answer soon. E. L.

Man Is Stymied By Mom-Fixation

DEAR E. L.: Bill is rationalizing the fact that he can't fall in love heterosexually, probably because of infantile emotional blocks associated with a mother-fixation,—a psychological state of affairs fostered by a neurotic "mom."

As for the girl he talks about, designed by Providence to be his mate, who will be forced on his attention by divine revelation, she is a fantasy-figure who doesn't exist outside his imagination and defensive-system.

In all likelihood his "ideal" represents a cross between his mother and some minister's wife he knew in childhood, who served as church organist and Sunday School teacher and somehow made a deep impression on him, maybe by showing partiality to Bill, the good little boy. (Or perhaps his own grandmother was a minister's accomplished wife.)

In any event, regardless of the genesis of his dream-woman, she spells mother-manager to him, a creature omniscient and invincible, to whose efficient personality he is prepared to give dutiful allegiance if and when she puts in an appearance.

Plays the Field For Ego Reasons

AND ALTHOUGH in his heart he doesn't like her and privately hopes never to find her (except in periods of strain when the effort to make like a self-reliant do-gooder is almost too much for him), nevertheless as a talking point she comes in handy, affording pious excuse for playing the field while camouflaging, even from himself, his essentially nonmarrying temperament.

It isn't compatible with his role of earnest young man to build up girls' hopes and let them down in a frankly fickle way, by capturing their serious interest with show of matrimonial intent and then saying "Nay,"—so he dignifies his dalliance by using this line about seeking the ideal femme; and maybe half-believes it himself.

The reason for this two-faced performance is that being intrinsically infantile, he feels proportionate need to conjure overt proof to the contrary, to persuade himself and the world that he is eminently adult-masculine in all respects. Hence he is endlessly busy at Lothario-work in a nice way, deriving ego support from having so many girls sighing and angling for him, as it were.

So much for what ails Bill; and lucky the girls who never get him!

Textile Designs Are on Display At British Airways

A collection of modern textiles, designed by leading contemporary artists is now on display in the offices of British Overseas Airways Corp., 1124 Connecticut ave.

The exihibition, called the Asher Squares, opened March 11 and will be continued through March 29. It is being shown through the courtesy of the American British Art Center in New York, and has already been seen in London, Boston, San Francisco, Montreal and other cities.

Created by such famous artists as Matisse, Moore, Derain and Sutherland, the squares strike a revolutionary note in textile designing. Each square contains a drawing or signature which has been reproduced on silk or cotton, by a British process.

A variety of styles are displayed and the subjects vary from an apparently haphazard sketch to a carefully finished design.

British Overseas Airways Corp. invites the public to visit the exhibition on weekdays from 9 to 4:30 p. m., and Saturdays from 9 a. m. until noon. There is no entrance fee.

Delegation Tours On Peace Mission

A delegation from the Peoples Mandate Committee for Inter-American Peace and Cooperation has gone from Washington on a tour to campaign for United Nations action toward universal disarmament.

Miss Mabel Vernon of Washington, director of the Peoples Mandate Committee, is being accompanied on the tour by Mrs. Robert Hunt Walker of Baltimore, Md., member of the executive council, and Miss Consuelo Reyes Calderon of San Jose, Costa Rica, the committee's secretary for Latin America.

The first stop for the women delegates was New Orleans, La., Saturday where they were guests at a luncheon at International House and took part in a Tulane University radio program. From there they will go to Houston and then to seven Latin American countries.

The tour will end on March 30 at the Ninth Pan American Conference in Bogota, Colombia.

Play Proceeds for Restoration

Edward C. Van Devanter, president of the Alexandria Association, announces that the association is sponsor of the play "S.S. Tenacity" to be put on by the Little Theater, Alexandria, on Wednesday night at 8:30 at the George Washington High School, Mount Vernon ave., Alexandria. The play is by the French contemporary playwright, Charles Vildrac, with translation by Sidney Howard. Proceeds of the play will go to an outstanding historic restoration in time for the bicentennial celebration of the founding of Alexandria.

Tickets may be purchased at Chequire House, 202 King st., or on the night of the performance at the high school auditorium.

Matrix Milestones Dinner Planned by Sorority in April

INVITATIONS have been mailed by the national capital chapter of Theta Sigma Phi for its Matrix Table" dinner to be given Friday, April 9, at the Willard Hotel.

The dinner will highlight the chapter's celebration of Matrix Milestones Week, April 4-10, which commemorates the founding of the national professional fraternity for women in journalism in 1909. All Theta Sigma Phi chapters throughout the Nation are observing this week. The fraternity which now numbers more than 10,000 members, was organized by seven coeds at the University of Washington. As their emblem, the founders chose the Matrix, basic part of the linotype.

General chairman of "Matrix Milestones" programs by the national capital chapter of Theta Sigma Phi is Mrs. Donald C. Thompson, of Alexandria. Co-chairmen of the Matrix Table arrangements are Miss Catherine Redmond and Mrs. Louis E. Gilje. Other chairmen are Bernice Strawn—president of the local chapter; Helen Hamer, Ruby Jester, Mary Bandouveris and Mrs. Donald A. Young of Arlington.

Your Questions On Homemaking

I am planning to store a leatherette folding baby carriage in the basement. It is a damp basement and we have found everything stored there quite molded. Is there any way to prepare a carriage for storage to protect it from dampness and mold? S.S.

Clean the leatherette well before storing by washing with a mild soap and warm water. Rinse and dry very thoroughly. The metal parts should be wiped free of dirt and waxed. If the enamel is broken, either reenamel the metal work, sanding away loose enamel before painting, or apply melted paraffin to the exposed spots to prevent rusting. Now, fold the carriage and wrap in plastic or waterproof cloth (available by the yard where fabrics are sold). Be sure to tie securely so that damp air is excluded. Or, the folded carriage could be placed in a plastic bag such as is used for storing clothes. Place wrapped carriage on shelf away from floor where air will circulate around it.

I would like to refinish a solid maple chest and night tables, that are in good condition, in the Peter Hunt fashion. What kind of paint should be used and since it will be in a child's room, have you any suggestion as to the longest lasting and best finish for them? J. J L.

A good grade of enamel which dries with a hard, shiny finish would be the most durable and best finish for children's furniture. After you have it decorated, and it is thoroughly dry, the application of several thin coats of cream wax, rubbed well between each application, will also increase the wearing qualities of the enamel.

A little pink dye faded into a white cellanese suit, which also has turned slightly yellow after being stored. Will you please tell me how to remove the dye and how to get rid of the yellow tinge? K. P.

Immersing your suit in one of the color removing products available where dye is sold will remove the dye and whiten the suit. Follow the directions which come with the product you buy.

I plan to paint two bookcases made of soft pine and would like a hard dull finish. What should I use? J. J. L.

Smooth the bookcases all over by sandpapering and scraping and then wipe with a soft cloth to remove all dust. Now, apply the first coat of flat-drying wall paint or enamel undercoater. Thin the first coat with one part turpentine to four parts paint to fill the pores. Later coats should be paint as it comes from the can. Allow each coat to dry thoroughly before applying the next. Apply two or three coats. When the undercoat is hard, rub lightly with fine sandpaper to smooth brush marks. For a dull finish, use a flat-drying enamel or a glossy enamel, rubbing the surface when thoroughly dry with finely powdered pumice stone and oil applied with rubbing felt. Place the powdered pumice in a flat receptacle such as a box cover. Using a piece of felt (old felt hats are good for this), dip the felt in sweet oil or light oil, touch it to the pumice, then shake. Rub the painted surface with the pumice that sticks to the felt. Rub all parts of the surface lightly and evenly. To clean the surface after rubbing, go over it with a soft cloth moistened in oil.

I washed a dress with a top of yellow linen and a black-and-yellow striped skirt. The black faded into the yellow linen when I forgot it and let it sit for an hour. Could you recommend something to remove these spots? The black did not fade into the yellow stripes in the skirt. H. J. W.

Probably your only chance of removing this dye stain is by use of a bleach. Always test the effect of the bleach on an inconspicuous part of the blouse to see its effect on the yellow before applying it to the stain. If you work quickly and do not leave the bleach in contact with the stain too long, you might be successful in removing the dye without affecting the yellow. Do this: Stretch the stained portion over a bowl of water, drip a chlorine bleach solution (1 cup bleach to 1 cup water) onto the stain. Let stand only a minute and immerse in the water. This treatment may be repeated if it lightens the stain, but doesn't completely remove it. Rinse very thoroughly.

We will soon celebrate our silver anniversary and would like some advice. My sister has a large home and the celebration will be there from five until seven in the afternoon (Sunday). What should I wear? Should any who assist wear formals? Who should be in the receiving line, since I had a quiet wedding with no attendants? Should I ask the minister and his wife to assist in any way? Both my husband and I belong to several clubs out-of-town and to church organizations here. Some of these people are our best friends and yet we would like to invite them all. How should they be invited? We will have engraved invitations. Would it be proper to have soft music (on records) during the afternoon? Will prepare for about a hundred and wonder if you could give me a good punch recipe for that many? M. N.

You could wear either a floor length dinner dress or an afternoon dress. If you choose a floor length dress, the women who assist should also wear floor length dresses. You and your husband, and your sister and her husband, since the reception is being held in their home, would be in the receiving line. The minister's wife could be invited to preside at the punch bowl or pour tea or coffee. It would be nicest to send an individual invitation to each member of the clubs. However, if there are too many to make this practical, send the invitation to the club via the president or secretary with the request that it be read at the next meeting (if the group is to gather before your party.) Very soft music as a background for the conversation at the party would be lovely.

A recipe for punch follows:

FRUIT JUICE PUNCH

4 quarts strong tea
4 quarts loganberry juice
4 cups lemon juice
8 cups strained orange juice
4 quarts water enough sugar to sweeten
12 bottles gingerale

Mix all ingredients except gingerale and chill 12 hours. Just before serving, add gingerale and pour over a large piece of ice in punch bowl. Approximate yield: 120 punch glassfuls.

MRS. BURNITA SHELTON MATTHEWS, chairman of the Legal Status Committee of the National Association of Women Lawyers and legal counsel of the National Woman's Party, receives congratulations from Representative Charles Devitt following her testimony before the House Judiciary Subcommittee in behalf of the Equal Rights Amendment. Mr. Devitt is a member of the House Judiciary Committee

Nat'l. Assoc. Women Lawyers For Equal Rights Amendment

Mrs. Burnita Shelton Matthews, member of the District of Columbia and Mississippi Bar Associations, and chairman of the Committee on Legal Status of Women of the National Association of Women Lawyers, emphasized yesterday in a statement to the press, the approval of her organization for the adoption of the Equal Rights Amendment as an amendment to the United States Constitution, which would eliminate many existing discriminations against women.

"The National Association of Women Lawyers whom I represent realizes that the women who blaze the trail for the mass of women to follow must not be impeded if women are eventually to obtain their places in the sun. The Equal Rights Amendment would not prevent labor legislation but would require that it apply to workers irrespective of sex. The Association of Women Lawyers is of the opinion that it will benefit women to be free of special restrictions on their employment. Special restrictions applying only to women's employment place women at an economic disadvantage especially in hard times," said Mrs. Matthews.

"Opponents of the Equal Rights Amendment argue that the method of establishing equality under the law should be by specific bills for specific ills, and they indicate that piecemeal legislation would avoid take away. In the third place, specific bills would require an almost endless amount of time. Already work on them has been in progress for about 100 years. In the second place they are insecure. What one legislature gives a later one may take away. In the third place specific ills do not avoid confusion. Each is subject to interpretation, usually in the light of the rule that statutes in derogation of the common law are to be strictly construed.

"These are certain fundamental truths," she declared, "which are believed to be immutable. The principle of the Equal Rights Amendment is one that should appeal to the conscience of American statesmen. At this time justice and freedom have been blotted out in many areas of the world. In this republic, however, the ideal of liberty and equality is still a cherished cornerstone. It is hoped that the gentlemen of the Judiciary Committee will strengthen the justice of this country, by favorably reporting the Equal Rights Amendment, to the end that women may be free to live and work under the general rules governing the rest of society."

Connecticut Ave Fashion Hunt To Award Easter Parade Prizes

The annual Easter parade on Connecticut ave. will be given new emphasis this year with a contest for the best outfits among women, men and teen-agers.

A citizen participation contest, it is being sponsored by the Connecticut Avenue Association, Inc., a group of business and professional men and women in the Northwest area. Starting on March 22, business firms along the avenue and nearby streets will open a window display campaign to spur public interest in the contest.

The "fashion hunt" will begin after church services on Easter Sunday at 12:30 and continue until midafternoon. A committee of fashion experts from newspapers and radio stations will do the judging, awarding prizes for the most elegantly dressed persons, the prettiest hats and the smartest ensembles.

Adding color and fun to the occasion will be the motor cars of 1914 and 1917 vintage in which the judges will ride. They will travel up and down Connecticut ave. from Florida ave. to H st. Radio news commentators will broadcast names of the winners and a general description of the festival.

H. E. Barnes is president of the association sponsoring the Easter parade. Alfred Pasternak is chairman of arrangements for the event.

Entertainment Melody sets the is the keynote! tempo of this favorite meeting place from 5:30 to 1. Enjoy cocktails with dinner or supper dancing in the unique

Paris Hats straight from Paris

Easter near . . . and a bevy of hats flown to us from Paris, where Woodward & Lothrop's representative culled their originals from famous milliners' collections. There, in the French capital, Noemi Lemoine copied them exquisitely for us. Witness "Les Lilas, Genre Paulette" . . . distracting navy straw, Easter-perfect bonnet with white lilacs romanticizing its flattering curves. Hats in this lovely, but limited edition, collection $39.75

Your Baby and Mine

It's Futile To Force Food On Children

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Who can enjoy food just because someone says he must? Any adult should have had enough experience with eating to know that compulsory eating leads to distaste and nausea.

There are mothers who assume they are doing their duty when they force their children to eat; and then wonder why they have no appetite. The idea of making a child eat so many spoonfuls of food, or a generous helping of some particular food before some other food can be eaten, defeats the purpose of eating which is to make it pleasant and promote future appetite.

Desserts Are Problems

The fact that we do not allow a child to eat all of his dessert before the rest of his meal, arises from the sure knowledge that the sweets of a meal are so satisfying as to deprive the eater of an appetite for the rest of the meal. The classic order in which foods are served, fruits or soups first, the hearty foods next and the sweets last, grows out of this knowledge.

Individual mothers may have to be tactful about serving some foods before some others, because they have discovered that otherwise their own children cannot manage a balanced meal. Some children like to fill up on bread and butter, supplemented by large drinks of water. Others will drink all the milk given them and then spurn the solid foods. The dessert-eaters are indifferent to all but the sweet food at a meal. Knowing these things a mother will shift the order of the foods so the child has an opportunity to get some of all the ones served, and not eat a one-sided meal, because he likes one food best.

Permit Free Choice

Other than this—and this is no rule but just a matter of personal experience—children should have the privilege of eating as much or as little of any food as they desire; and not be forced to eat foods toward which they feel some distaste.

The mother who says complacently, "I made my children eat everything served them and now they like everything," does not know the other side of the picture. From personal experience I know I had more food dislikes than likes when I was young. But no one forced me to eat foods which nauseated me, and the result is that today I like everything.

There are enough varieties of food with the same type of nourishment, so that it seems unnecessary, even futile, to make force an accompaniment of eating.

Simple Rules Given For Protecting Child's Vision

Pittsburgh, Pa.—The American Optometric Association declares that adherence to a few simple rules for the care of a child's eyesight "will conserve America's seeing skills and ultimately improve public health, safety, and everyday efficiency."

The association, which sponsors Save Your Vision Week, is dedicating itself to help millions of Americans who are working, studying, and playing without adequate vision.

Parents and teachers should watch their children for any of these signs of a child's visual problems: (1) headaches, (2) squinting, (3) fatigue, (4) irritability, (5) nervousness, (6) aversion to reading, (7) crossed eyes, (8) reddish, watering eyes.

Parents and teachers should provide for, and teach, a child the proper visual care:

1. He should read books with large print; the younger the child the larger the print.
2. When reading, he should sit erect with head bent slightly forward, and with print at least a foot from his eyes. (The same applies to writing or drawing.)
3. Proper lighting is important both at home and in school.
3. Proper lighting is important both at home and in school.
4. Periods of close work should be limited and separated by rest or other activities.
5. He should follow the general rules of health, for proper rest and diet are requisites of efficient vision.
6. He should have a visual analysis annually.

Modern Science Scores Another Great Triumph

Tom Blevins passes along a touching story which indicates that modern science has perfected everything except a smarter breed of humans.

Tom pulled into a filling station and said, "Fill 'er up." The attendant put the gas hose into Tom's tank, started it, and then went around to check the oil.

"Oh," remarked Tom, "I see you have one of those new automatic nozzles that shuts itself off when the tank is full. I read about that in . . ."

"Yeah," replied the attendant, rudely interrupting Tom's commercial. "No chance to slop gas on your car when we're using this thing."

"Fine, fine," said Tom. "I hate to spoil the finish of the car."

By this time the automatic nozzle had shut off the pump. The meter stood at $2.04.

"Might as well make it $2.10 even," mused the attendant as he turned on the juice for one last squirt.

"Yes," sighs Tom sadly as he tells the story, "you guessed it. He made it $2.10 even, and slopped gas all over the back end of the car. Isn't science wonderful?"

MISCELLANY

The local Auto Club recently received a communication from the Pennsylvania Cavemen's Association. Investigation reveals that the Cavemen are organized to promote the scenic wonders of eight caves in central Pennsylvania . . . Hattie E. Brown of 815 26th st. nw. wonders: "Now that the Air Force is no longer a part of the Army, what are we to do with the song which says that 'nothing can stop the Army Air Force'?" . . . Pi Chapter of Alpha Zeta Omega Pharmaceutical Fraternity is holding a big whingding on March 21 (8:30 p. m., 3147 16th st. nw.), with the loot going for welfare purposes . . . And don't forget that American Aid to France, 1302 Connecticut ave. nw., has lists and histories of undernourished French children who need American godparents . . . Our recent mention of Boy Scout Troop 43 brought back many memories to Samuel J. Rosenberg of 516 Decatur st. nw. Sam was a member of the original Troop 43 back in 1913 and wonders whether "any of the other decrepit old cripples also remember it?" . . . Nate Leiderman of 6206 Georgia ave. nw. thinks a murder mystery in a textile factory would make a fine yarn. When I was young we used to have to drop a dime in the penalty box for puns like that.

TREASURER'S REPORT

Streetcar tokens for Children's Hospital have been received from:

Mrs. William J. Kern, 4201 New Hampshire ave. nw.; Mrs. Lester Kinzler, 511 8th st., District Heights, Md. (plus cash); Mrs. G. A. Roush, 4416 N. 17th st., Arlington, Va.; 6-year-old Leslie (Butch) Roland, Silesia, Md.; Mrs. Esther Wechsler, 3538 6th st. nw.; Mrs. George L. Seielstad, 10001 Big Rock rd., Silver Spring, Md. (plus savings stamps); Elizabeth Sharp Riley, 1861 Wyoming ave. nw.

JUST CURIOUS

Some incidental intelligence from Ruth McGregor of 1731 New Hampshire ave. nw. should allay the suspicions harbored recently by guards at the Executive Mansion.

The cops noted a young man walking along the iron fence which surrounds the White House, and wondered what he was up to.

The stranger made a complete circle of the grounds, examining the fence closely all the way back to his starting point. Mission accomplished, he departed without explanation.

Ruth says that he was Norman Specht of 1827 Belmont rd. nw., and that he was curious to know how many iron bars are in that fence.

(P. S.: He found that there are 7386, not counting those in the gates.)

GIVE-AWAYS

"Kitten found in snow. Eats everything, playful, housebroken." (Franklin 2491).

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—Winston Churchill tells this story about Field Marshal Montgomery to illustrate the military mind: When Churchill notified Montgomery of his new Eighth Army Command in Africa, Montgomery said: "A military career has strange climaxes. You get your commission, work to get promoted in rank, and become a general. They you're given a command in wartime, the thing you've trained for all your life, and by brilliant tactical work and strategy you win many battles. Then along comes your enemy commander, who drives you and your men into the sea and you're broken and lose your command" . . . "But you won't be driven into the sea," Montgomery was assured. "You'll have plenty of tanks and planes and men to protect your flanks" . . . "Oh, I wasn't thinking of myself," replied Montgomery. "I was thinking of Rommel."

The Irwin Shaw-Peter Viertel play, "The Survivors," probably will be sold to a major film studio soon for screen adaptation. The authors will receive all the purchase money, because the play ran only one week on Broadway. Producers share in the movie sale only if the play runs a minimum of three weeks . . . Moss Hart, incidentally, told George S. Kaufman about his new son, Christopher. "Chris is 3 weeks old today," said Hart. "Congratulations," said Kaufman. "Now you own the studio rights."

Marshall Fears World Situation

By Drew Pearson

Harassed Secretary of State Marshall recently telephoned South Dakota's Senator Chan Gurney, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, asked him to bring his committee to the State Department for a conference. Gurney did so.

Gurney

Marshall seemed jittery and upset. He told Senators the world was more explosive than at any time since Pearl Harbor. War could break out any time. Though the Russians weren't ready to pick a fight yet; nevertheless the Balkans or Italy might furnish the spark.

The uncontrollable Yugoslavs might decide to boil over their borders into Italy, Marshall said. In fact, anything could happen.

One Senator asked why the United States didn't send an ultimatum to Russia warning against any further advances. Marshall replied that he didn't want to be responsible for bringing the United States into another war. Such an ultimatum, he felt, would mean war.

The Secretary of State was burdened down with the weight of his responsibility, seemed anxious to share his worries with senatorial advisers.

Why Marshall Worries

Here are some of the things that worry Marshall:

1. The Red Army in Russia alone is now 170 divisions strong (about 1,700,000) plus 25 artillery divisions, plus 50 NKVD divisions, the latter used for internal security. Approximate total: 2,450,000 men.

2. Increasing Red Army concentrations have appeared in Germany, including fast-moving armored divisions. It looks as if Russia was massing these troops in Germany with a view either to pushing United States and British forces out of Germany or scaring us out.

3. Especially selected Yugoslav combat troops are near the Italian border.

4. Sweden is in a bad state of jitters over a possible Russian squeeze play against Scandinavia; refuses to have anything to do with the western European bloc.

5. The Russians are reported to have 100,000 guided missiles, similar to the buzz-bombs that terrorized England, only more accurate. These are the missiles that have appeared over Sweden.

6. The Russians have been stockpiling wheat, are now reported to have about three years supply. Meat and butter have been more plentiful since the ruble was devaluated, but not bread. It is still scarce because of the stockpiling.

Time Against Soviet

What all this adds up to is that either the Russians mean serious business or are determined to take all they can in Europe immediately.

Best diplomatic intelligence is that Moscow has decided to take advantage of three important developments:

A. The Italian Elections. These would go against communism without a strong Russian show of force in Europe. A wave of terrorism among Italian voters, however, can switch the vote to a communistic majority.

B. The Marshall Plan. If it starts working successfully, Russia will lose ground in Europe. The time to act, therefore, is now—before the Marshall Plan gets going.

C. The Western European Alliance. Present Soviet big-stick-waving is aimed at both scaring some nations, such as Sweden, from joining the alliance and at embracing as much of Europe as possible before the western bloc can do the embracing.

Finally, Moscow realizes that an election year in the U. S. A. is the psychological time to harass Europe—especially when the United States is under weak leadership. A year from now, the U. S. A. may be under a strong leader and Moscow strategy will be more difficult.

GOP Cross Fire

Two Republicans recently staged a hot running-fire verbal battle over the Administration's alleged proposal to hold back embarrassing news. The two Congressmen—vituperative Clare Hoffman of Michigan and hard-hitting George Bender of Ohio—were supposed to be probing the Truman Administration's alleged plan to withhold news, but Hoffman seemed more interested in investigating his colleague, Mr. Bender.

Trying to keep his critical cracks off-the-record, Hoffman frequently warned the official reporter: "Don't put that down," or "Keep this off the record." Once he snapped: "We don't want to pay to have this sort of thing taken down."

Yet he kept up his hot-tempered comments, exploding them at random no matter who was talking.

When Carlton Skinner, information chief for the Interior Department, was sworn in, Hoffman barked: 'Who called this man?"

"I called him," said Bender.

"Why did you call him?" snorted Hoffman.

"Because," purred Bender, "I wanted him as a witness."

When Hoffman's questioning brought out that Skinner was a Methodist, Bender broke in with: "I called him because he is a Methodist.

"I would do anything to please the chairman," added Bender sweetly, "even sings hymns if necessary."

But Hoffman's nagging finally wearied his colleague from Ohio.

"After four or five years of this sort of thing," he sighed, "you get sort of calloused."

Turning to Nat Finney of the Minneapolis Star-Journal and Tribune, who was testifying and taking Hoffman's abuse, Bender advised: "Don't pay too much attention to him."

Modern Science Scores Another Great Triumph

Tom Blevins passes along a touching story which indicates that modern science has perfected everything except a smarter breed of humans.

Tom pulled into a filling station and said, "Fill 'er up." The attendant put the gas hose into Tom's tank, started it, and then went around to check the oil.

"Oh," remarked Tom, "I see you have one of those new automatic nozzles that shuts itself off when the tank is full. I read about that in . . ."

"Yeah," replied the attendant, rudely interrupting Tom's commercial. "No chance to slop gas on your car when we're using this thing."

"Fine, fine," said Tom. "I hate to spoil the finish of the car."

By this time the automatic nozzle had shut off the pump. The meter stood at $2.04.

"Might as well make it $2.10 even," mused the attendant as he turned on the juice for one last squirt.

"Yes," sighs Tom sadly as he tells the story, "you guessed it. He made it $2.10 even, and slopped gas all over the back end of the car. Isn't science wonderful?"

MISCELLANY

The local Auto Club recently received a communication from the Pennsylvania Cavemen's Association. Investigation reveals that the Cavemen are organized to promote the scenic wonders of eight caves in central Pennsylvania . . . Hattie E. Brown of 815 26th st. nw. wonders: "Now that the Air Force is no longer a part of the Army, what are we to do with the song which says that 'nothing can stop the Army Air Force'?" . . . Pi Chapter of Alpha Zeta Omega Pharmaceutical Fraternity is holding a big whingding on March 21 (8:30 p. m., 3147 16th st. nw.), with the loot going for welfare purposes . . . And don't forget that American Aid to France, 1302 Connecticut ave. nw., has lists and histories of undernourished French children who need American godparents . . . Our recent mention of Boy Scout Troop 43 brought back many memories to Samuel J. Rosenberg of 516 Decatur st. nw. Sam was a member of the original Troop 43 back in 1913 and wonders whether "any of the other decrepit old cripples also remember it?" . . . Nate Leiderman of 6206 Georgia ave. nw. thinks a murder mystery in a textile factory would make a fine yarn. When I was young we used to have to drop a dime in the penalty box for puns like that.

TREASURER'S REPORT

Mrs. William J. Kern, 4201 New Hampshire ave. nw.; Mrs. Lester Kinzler, 511 8th st., District Heights, Md. (plus cash); Mrs. G. A. Roush, 4416 N. 17th st., Arlington, Va.; 6-year-old Leslie (Butch) Roland, Silesia, Md.; Mrs. Esther Wechsler, 3538 6th st. nw.; Mrs. George L. Seielstad, 10001 Big Rock rd., Silver Spring, Md. (plus savings stamps); Elizabeth Sharp Riley, 1861 Wyoming ave. nw.

JUST CURIOUS

Some incidental intelligence from Ruth McGregor of 1731 New Hampshire ave. nw. should allay the suspicions harbored recently by guards at the Executive Mansion.

The cops noted a young man walking along the iron fence which surrounds the White House, and wondered what he was up to.

The stranger made a complete circle of the grounds, examining the fence closely all the way back to his starting point. Mission accomplished, he departed without explanation.

Ruth says that he was Norman Specht of 1827 Belmont rd. nw., and that he was curious to know how many iron bars are in that fence.

(P. S.: He found that there are 7386, not counting those in the gates.)

GIVE-AWAYS

NEW YORK.—Winston Churchill tells this story about Field Marshal Montgomery to illustrate the military mind: When Churchill notified Montgomery of his new Eighth Army Command in Africa, Montgomery said: "A military career has strange climaxes. You get your commission, work to get promoted in rank, and become a general. They you're given a command in wartime, the thing you've trained for all your life, and by brilliant tactical work and strategy you win many battles. Then along comes your enemy commander, who drives you and your men into the sea and you're broken and lose your command" . . . "But you won't be driven into the sea," Montgomery was assured. "You'll have plenty of tanks and planes and men to protect your flanks" . . . "Oh, I wasn't thinking of myself," replied Montgomery. "I was thinking of Rommel."

The Irwin Shaw-Peter Viertel play, "The Survivors," probably will be sold to a major film studio soon for screen adaptation. The authors will receive all the purchase money, because the play ran only one week on Broadway. Producers share in the movie sale only if the play runs a minimum of three weeks . . . Moss Hart, incidentally, told George S. Kaufman about his new son, Christopher. "Chris is 2 weeks old today," said Hart. "Congratulations," said Kaufman. "Now you own the studio rights."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Marshall Fears World Situation

By Drew Pearson

Harassed Secretary of State Marshall recently telephoned South Dakota's Senator Chan Gurney, chairman of the Armed Services Committee, asked him to bring his committee to the State Department for a conference. Gurney did so.

Gurney

Marshall seemed jittery and upset. He told Senators the world was more explosive than at any time since Pearl Harbor. War could break out any time. Though the Russians weren't ready to pick a fight yet; nevertheless the Balkans or Italy might furnish the spark.

The uncontrollable Yugoslavs might decide to boil over their borders into Italy, Marshall said. In fact, anything could happen.

One Senator asked why the United States didn't send an ultimatum to Russia warning against any further advances. Marshall replied that he didn't want to be responsible for bringing the United States into another war. Such an ultimatum, he felt, would mean war.

The Secretary of State was burdened down with the weight of his responsibility, seemed anxious to share his worries with senatorial advisers.

Why Marshall Worries

Here are some of the things that worry Marshall:

1. The Red Army in Russia alone is now 170 divisions strong (about 1,700,000) plus 25 artillery divisions, plus 50 NKVD divisions, the latter used for internal security. Approximate total: 2,450,000 men.

2. Increasing Red Army concentrations have appeared in Germany, including fast-moving armored divisions. It looks as if Russia was massing these troops in Germany with a view either to pushing United States and British forces out of Germany or scaring us out.

3. Especially selected Yugoslav combat troops are near the Italian border.

4. Sweden is in a bad state of jitters over a possible Russian squeeze play against Scandinavia; refuses to have anything to do with the western European bloc.

5. The Russians are reported to have 100,000 guided missiles, similar to the buzz-bombs that terrorized England, only more accurate. These are the missiles that have appeared over Sweden.

6. The Russians have been stockpiling wheat, are now reported to have about three years supply. Meat and butter have been more plentiful since the ruble was devaluated, but not bread. It is still scarce because of the stockpiling.

Time Against Soviet

What all this adds up to is that either the Russians mean serious business or are determined to take all they can in Europe immediately.

Best diplomatic intelligence is that Moscow has decided to take advantage of three important developments:

A. The Italian Elections. These would go against communism without a strong Russian show of force in Europe. A wave of terrorism among Italian voters, however, can switch the vote to a communistic majority.

B. The Marshall Plan. If it starts working successfully, Russia will lose ground in Europe. The time to act, therefore, is now—before the Marshall Plan gets going.

C. The Western European Alliance. Present Soviet big-stick-waving is aimed at both scaring some nations, such as Sweden, from joining the alliance and at embracing as much of Europe as possible before the western bloc can do the embracing.

Finally, Moscow realizes that an election year in the U. S. A. is the psychological time to harass Europe—especially when the United States is under weak leadership. A year from now, the U. S. A. may be under a strong leader and Moscow strategy will be more difficult.

GOP Cross Fire

Two Republicans recently staged a hot running-fire verbal battle over the Administration's alleged proposal to hold back embarrassing news. The two Congressmen—vituperative Clare Hoffman of Michigan and hard-hitting George Bender of Ohio—were supposed to be probing the Truman Administration's alleged plan to withhold news, but Hoffman seemed more interested in investigating his colleague, Mr. Bender.

Trying to keep his critical cracks off-the-record, Hoffman frequently warned the official reporter: "Don't put that down," or "Keep this off the record." Once he snapped: "We don't want to pay to have this sort of thing taken down."

Yet he kept up his hot-tempered comments, exploding them at random no matter who was talking.

When Carlton Skinner, information chief for the Interior Department, was sworn in, Hoffman barked: 'Who called this man?"

"I called him," said Bender.

"Why did you call him?" snorted Hoffman.

"Because," purred Bender, "I wanted him as a witness."

When Hoffman's questioning brought out that Skinner was a Methodist, Bender broke in with: "I called him because he is a Methodist.

"I would do anything to please the chairman," added Bender sweetly, "even sings hymns if necessary."

But Hoffman's nagging finally wearied his colleague from Ohio.

"After four or five years of this sort of thing," he sighed, "you get sort of calloused."

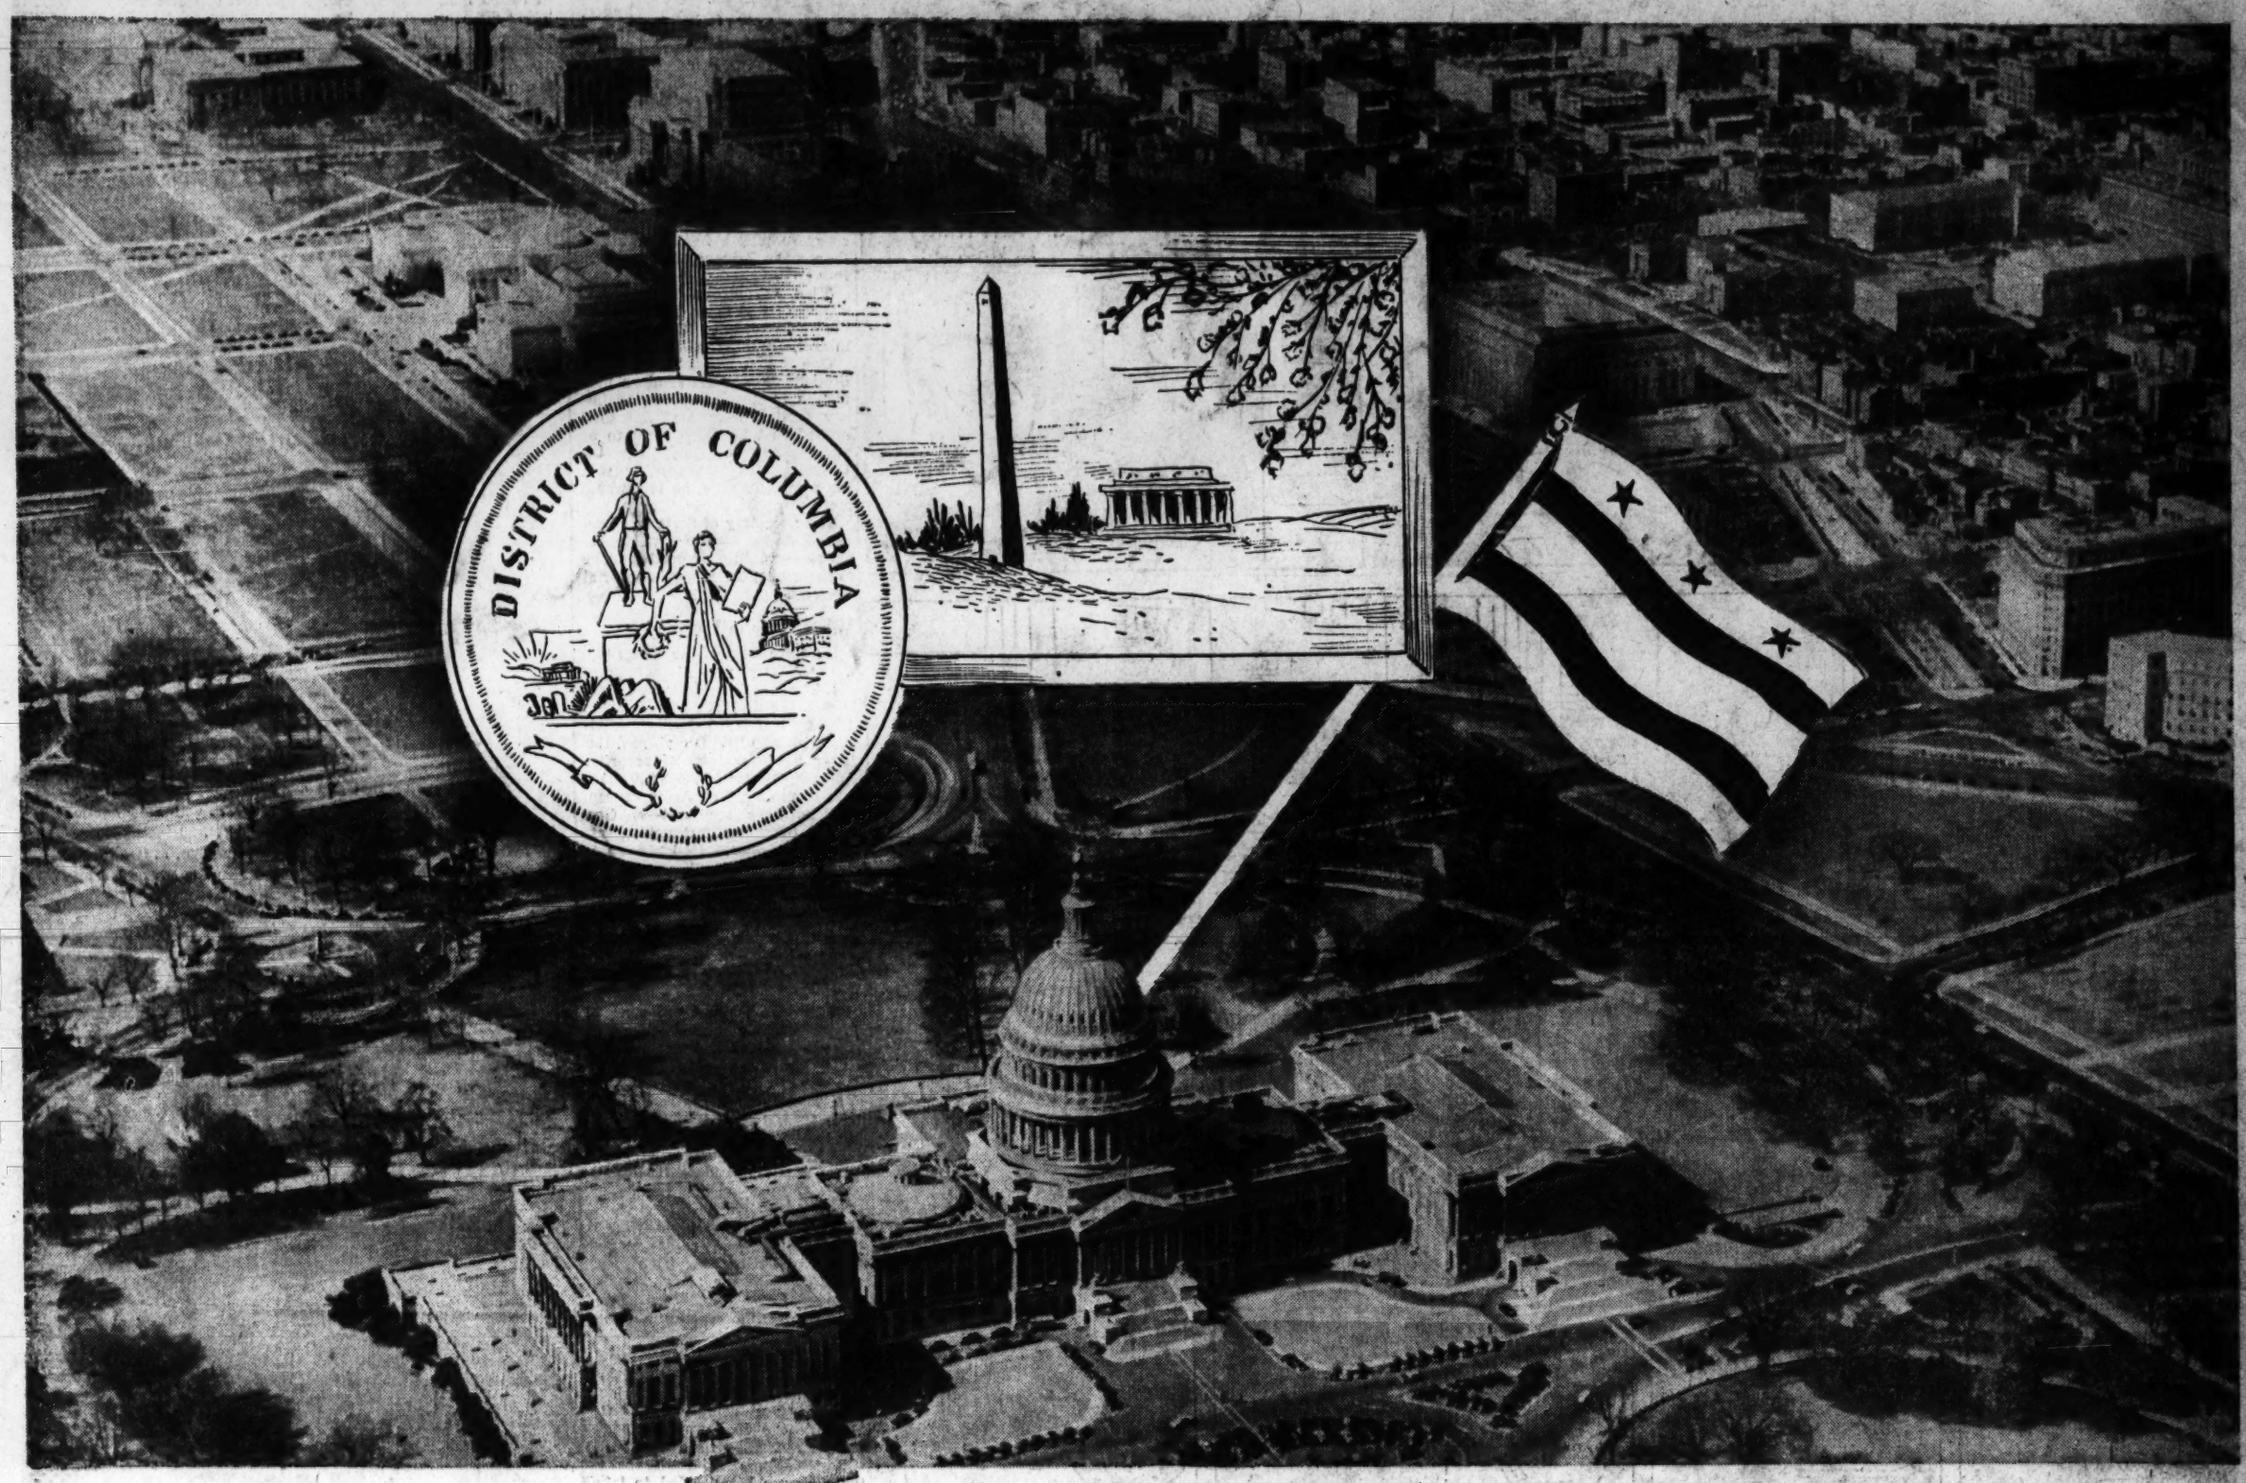
TWO STORES OF NATIONALLY FAMOUS MERCHANDISE



THE HECHT COMPANY SALUTES THE CITIZENS OF WASHINGTON WHOSE HOMES ARE IN

The District of Columbia

"THE FIRST CITY OF THE LAND...THE PRIDE OF THE NATION...THE CAPITAL OF THE WORLD"

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA . . became the actual home of our government in 1800 . . . when 126 clerks and officials moved their equipment and archives from Philadelphia to Washington. At that time, little had been built of the City as we know it. An early inhabitant described Georgetown as a city of houses without streets . . . and Washington as a city of streets without houses. The population then was three thousand . . . a tiny fraction of the present figure of more than a million.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA . . the ninth capital of the Nation . . . was preceded as the seat of our government by . . . Philadelphia . . . Baltimore . . . Lancaster, Pennsylvania . . . York, Pennsylvania . . . Princeton, New Jersey . . . Annapolis, Maryland . . . Trenton, New Jersey . . . and New York City.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA . . "the ten mile square" . . . was reduced to 69 square miles in 1846 . . . when all land south of the Potomac was ceded back to Virginia. Georgetown was almost lost at the same time. The "cornerstone" of the original District of Columbia lies in Alexandria, Virginia.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA . . burned by the British during the War of 1812. The coat of white paint applied to the President's house to cover the damage of the fire gave the White House its name. Most of the public buildings were destroyed . . . and while the Capitol was being rebuilt . . . Congress met in the "Brick Capitol," situated where the Supreme Court Building now stands.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA . . Washington . . . one of the few cities of the world to have been planned before it was built. Major Charles Pierre L'Enfant . . . French engineer, drill-master and artist . . . follower of Lafayette and friend of George Washington . . . made it his life's ambition to design a city worthy of being called the Capital of the United States. He lies buried in Arlington National Cemetery.

DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA . . an outstanding university center of America. The George Washington University . . . American University . . . Georgetown University, the oldest Roman Catholic college in the country . . . Howard University . . . Catholic University of America . . . all enjoy national renown.

All material herein has been obtained from civic groups of Washington, Bureau of the Census and Library of Congress.

● A native Washingtonian is a rare creature indeed and still more rare is the magnificent city in which he lives. Washington has been built upon the historic past, vibrant with the tempo of the present . . . alive to the challenge of the future. Washington is a city of which you may be justly proud. Today, more than ever, your Washington is the center of History in the Making!

● Not only is Washington the diplomatic crossroads of the world . . . but its stately buildings . . . tree-shaded avenues and verdant parklands make it the fairest city of the land, and certainly one of the fairest on earth.

● The incomparable architecture of inspiring administrative buildings leaves everyone with a sense of massive strength . . . of the immensity of far-flung government in action. The beautiful and famed monuments . . . the magnificent embassies and legations of every nation in the world are here . . . peoples of every land live in this thriving international metropolis.

● And yet with all of this . . . you'll find here the same familiar town-square and courthouse . . . (for the entire nation) . . . and in that alone, your city . . . our city . . . becomes the very symbol of our American way of life.

● The Hecht Company is proud to salute the city and community of which it has been a part for more than half a century . . . and to acknowledge a deep appreciation for the good-will and patronage of the tens of thousands of our fellow citizens, who have helped to build the First City of the Land . . . the Pride of the Nation . . . the Capital of the World.
